Farmer's Department.

Too Much Land.

The greatest difficulty under which our farmers labor in this country is the large quantity of land they attempt to cultivate, but which, for the most part, they only exhaust of the riches which nature has treasured in it .-The plowing, the manuring, the draining are defective. Year after year the same depth is stirred up and no new element brought into operation till the surface is literally thinned off in the process of bearing. To us the use of plaster as the ouly maaure appears injurious. It is a stimulant and little more, and without deep plowing to bring up new elements, previously unacted upon, must soon deteriorate the soil.

The manuring process is almost entirely neglected, and yet there are many sources whence the farmer might derive rich supplies which are left untouched. The head ridges and foot ridges of fields long cultivated become higher than the rest of the field, from carrying with it portions of the soil and depositing it at the turnings. This ought to be carried off to the barn-yard and placed in such a position that it would be acted upon by the cattle, and when sufficiently saturated and mix ed it will form a rich permanent basis for crops.

The process of draining is expensive, but its effects on the land are permanant. If drains were dug to the depth of three feet or more, as the soil might seem to require, and where stones abound on the soil, let these drains be filled up with them till within eighteen inches of the surface, and then a quantity of straw, hay or grass be spread upon them to prevent the earth from sinking through among the stones. Such a drain will last for centuries, and their effects be evident to every observer. How many acres are left year after year unhealthy, unproductive marshes, that a few dollars judiciously expended would make the very best land, not for one year only, but for all time to come.

But these matters will not occupy the thoughts of farmers till they ars compelled to think of them. Lands are too cheap and too plenty, and therefore not half farmed. The following re marks, made by a Mr. Sleeper before an Agricultural Society, sustain our asssertion :

"The great obstacle to the improvement of American Agriculture, is the propensity of the farmer, the mania, I might call it, to own more land than he cantill to advantage. And it is thus that we see scattered over the country large tracts of sterile, unproductive land which under good cultivation, would yield bountiful and abundant crops. Not only the dictates of sound philosophy, but numerous facts, drawn from experience, are constantly and loudly calling upon the farmer from every quarteroccupy a small farm and cultivate it well. wish that this admonition could be thundered into the ears of the agricultural population of our country, until a complete revolution should be produced in the farming system. This great truth is already beginning to be understord in other countries, and is attended with corresponding advantages. The densest population in Europe may be found in Flanders and Lombardy, where the land is divided into small farms, and being thoroughly tilled, produces abundant food for the inhabitants. And the experience of a quarter of a century in France, proves, that by the occupation of the country under small farmers, the land is producing one third more food, and supporting a population one-third greater, than when it was possessed in large masses. The law is universal that the secret of success in Agriculture, consists in the they may have originated, and no matter of how long standing. If you have contracted the terrible disease, which when once scated in the system, will surely go down from one generation to another, undermining the constitution, and sapping the very vital fluids of life, do not trust yourself in the hands of Quacks, who start up every day in a city like this, and fill the papers with glaring falsehoods too well calculated to deceive the young and those not ac-quainted with their tricks. You cannot be too careful in the selection of a remedy in these cases. The fluid extract Buchn has been pronounced by emi-nent Physicians THE GREATEST REMEDY EVER KNOWN. Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Tetter, Pimples on the face and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin. This article is now pre crihed by some of the most dis-tinguished Physicians in the Country, and has proved more efficient in practice than any preparation of Sarsa-parilla yet offered to the public. Several cases of secon-dary Syphilic, Mercurial and Scrofulous diseases have en-tirely recovered in the incurable wards of our public insti-tutions, which had for many years resisted every mode of treatment that could be devised. These cases furnish striking examples of the solutary effects of this medicine in arresting some of the most inveterate diseases, after the glands were destroyed and the bones already affected. secret of success in Agriculture, consists in the thorough cultivation of a small piece of ground, which, well manured and well worked, yields up its treasures in prodigal profusion. In al-most every section of this country, one capital error runs through the whole farming system. A great deal of money is invested in land, and a very little employed in its cultivation. And it is sad to see a proprietor of a large farm, pride himself upon the number of acres which he possesses, and undertakes to cultivate the soil without sufficient means." without sufficient means."

What a Farmer Needs.

The first thing of all is a thorough, practical and scientific knowledge of his business. To REV. JAMES McWILLIAM, A. M., Professor of Ancient acquire this he must have experience by either working with a good farmer or by seeing such working. Good farmers are not made by reading alone. I do not object to reading, but insist that to be a good farmer there must be much reading, for information must be had. and it matters not whether it is obtained by hearing and seeing or by reading. For instance, suppose a man sees his neighbor using some invention or some improvement either in farm machinery or in the rotation or cultivation of crops, and after thoroughly testing it himself, he should write out a description and have it printed in an agricultural paper or in a book. Would it not be as well to adopt after reading about it, as to wait till it is told face to face?

The next thing is to have some capital .--The next thing is to have some capital.— If you have no capital, work a farm on shares Oil painting in landscapes, per term...... or hire one till you have. There is no use of exposure to the hardships and risks of draining and cultivating the woods or the prarie unless there is some money to provide for necessities. A hard working man, with only a few hundred dollars, can make money on unimproved land. but it is hard business. One or two thousand dollars will buy a good farm in the West, with a dwelling, out-houses and fences. Farmers here live as comfortably as at the east and make money a great deal faster. If it is true that in all new States there are agues and fevers, but there are offsets by the absence of consumption, inflamation of the lungs, and the like eastern diseases. A western man dreads the eastern diseases about as much as the eastern dreads the western. Large farmers need machinery, such as mowing and reaping machines, corn shellers, and thrashing and cleaning machines ; also, a saw mill to saw all the pine wood and saw boards and other lumber into pickets or into any requisite form ; a grist mill to grind corn and all other kinds of grain as fine as a farmer requires ; a straw cutter, a cider mill and a press, which also answers for a cheese or wine press, cost only about thirty dollars a piece, and for which the same horse power will answer ; all are extensively desirable and valuable if not positively necessary .-The above mentioned machines are simple in their construction, and are cheap, desirable and profitable.

Farming requires no more labor than most other kinds of business, but it must be strictly attended to. A head is worth as much as a hand. Every-thing must be done its season. The weather is particularly to be consulted. to do which a knowledge of the rain clouds is desirable.-Baltimore Weekly Sun.
