respecting the use of guano :

First.—Never mix it with anything ; all lime, compost, ashes, and similar ingredients, too often contain enough caustic alkali to drive off the ammoniacal parts before the soil can surround and absorb them. A vast amount of mischief and loss often follow this sad mistake. If applied alone, the soil will best adapt

Second .- Mix as much as possible with the seed, not too deeply, but plow it in after sow-ing it broadcast, unless it be for beans or drilled and ridged crops, when it may be sown on the surface before the ridges are made

Third.—If applied as a top dressing, always apply it, if possible, before rain, or when snow is on the ground; and if on arable land, harrow, hoe, or scuffle, if possible, immediately after the operation.

Fourth.—The best mode to apply it is by water. A slight solution of it is by far the most powerful and speedy application.

Fifth.—If sowed with drilled grain, or indeed any seed whatever, it should never come in contact. It is not a bad plan to sow broadcast, after the corn-drill, and then harrow, as it is kept in the nearest proximity to the seed, without coming in contact with it.

Lastly .- Be sure to get, if possible, the genuine article; cheap guano there is none.

The quantity of genuine guano per acre used is from two to three hundred pounds. The latter quantity when the land is deficient and requires speedy renovation.

FARM AND GARDEN SEEDS .- The business of seeds for the farm and garden is one of so much importance, and yet is so little regarded by many, that it requires special notice, and should be urged upon the consideration of the thoughtful and careful cultivators of the soil. Much of the skill in culture fails of its due reward in consequence of imperfection in the seed planted or sown.

The law of nature, that " like begets like," is as true of the vegetable world as of the animal kingdom. In selecting seeds for field and garden culture, reference should always behad to plants or grains that have attained the highest perfection in growth and maturity. In saying seed corn, the farmer should select, when husking, the best and most perfectly developed ears, choosing from stalks that bear two or three ears when it can be done, thus securing yielding qualities. So of wheat, rye, oats and barley, select the largest and best heads. A man who adopted this method in wheat culture, greatly increased the yield of his wheat per acre. His custom was, to go through his wheat field and select the longest heads that were well filled, thereby multiplying the long heads in future crops. So of other grains.

Varieties of corn and other grains, roots, bulbs, &c., of the same species designed for seed, should generally be kept separate in cultivation. If you have an extraordinary varieof corn, never plant it near an ordinary variety, if you would prevent deterioration or "running out," as the farmer says. In perfecting a variety by experimenting, something is gained sometimes by mingling varieties. After having attained the degree of improvement desirable, then keep the variety thus improved separate from all others, while cultivating for the sake of crops, for market or use, either for bread or feedding.

A full, and well-matured kernel of wheat or corn will send up, when planted, a stronger plant with broader leaves, containing more vital power than seed of an imperfect or inferior kind. As vigorous and healthy animals will grow, thrive and fatten on keeping that the more delicate would continue lean and lank upon, scarcely more than deriving a bare subnce : so of plants, whether corn or some other grain, the vigorous seedlings grow and thrive, while the feeble weaklings lack energy to penetrate the earth and derive the nutrition necessary to perfect the plant. Always, therefore, select the best roots for seed, whether beets or any other, and continue to do so from year to year, thus progressing towards perfection.

Gather your seed when perrectly ripe, in

In buying seeds of whatever varieties, strive to procure the best-and such as are free from weed seed of every species and variety. The want of proper care in this respect has resulted in the extensive propagation of many noxious and troublesome weeds. In selecting beans, and peas for seed, procure the largest pods. Thus have subsequent crops been greatly increased and improved.

What has now been said will serve, perhaps to awaken greater care and attention, to the exceedingly important business of selecting, saving and storing all kinds of roots, bulbs, grains, &c., designed for future planting and sowing, in the field and garden. Far too little attention has hitherto been given to this subject. Bear in mind, that, if you would have healthful and vigorous plants, you must give special heed to the business of saving and procuring seeds. "Like begets like." Men do not usually gather abundant harvests from imperfect seeds or seeding. Now is the time to attend to this subject, so far as it relates to the latter harvest. L. W.-Rural New Yorker, Oct. 6.

ADULTERATION OF FLOUR .- A few weeks ago a baker in Montreal, Canada, returned twelve barrels of flour out of twenty he had purchased, because there was so much Plaster of Paris in it that he could not use it.

A Toronto miller, in speaking of this says there are numerous dealers in flour and milloffal in Quebec, Montreal, Kingston, Coburg, Toronto and Hamilton, whose business is to buy up empty barrels of such mills as are considered the manufacturers of the best quality of flour, into which, with the original millbrand upon them they pack the most inferior quality of flour they can purchase, and now they have even descended to adulterate that by admixture of plaster. He says he knows men at Toronto who are making fortunes by taking the best quality of flour from the barrels in which it had been placed after the inspection and branding, and replacing it with an article that is little, if any, better than shorts .- Newburyport Herald.

SIMPLE REMEDIES .- Cotton wool, wet with sweet oil and paregoric, relieves the ear-ache very soon. Black or green tea, steeped in boiling milk and sweeted with loaf sugar, is excellent for the dysentery.

If you have contracted the terrible disease, which when once seated in the system, will surely go down from one generation to another, undermining the constitution, and sapping the very vital fluids of life, do not trust yourself in the hands of Quaeks, who start up every day in a city like this, and fill the papers with glaring falsehoods too well calculated to deceive the young and those not acquainted with their tricks. Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Tetter, Pimples on the face and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin.

This article is now pre-cribed by some of the most distinguished Physicians in the Country, and has proved more efficient in practice than any preparation of Sarsaparilla yet offered to the public. Several cases of secondary Syphilic, Mercurial and Scrofulous diseases have entirely recovered in the incurable wards of our public institutions, which had for many years resisted every mode of treatment that could be devised. These cases furnish striking examples of the salutary effects of this medicine in arresting some of the most inveterate diseases, after the glands were destroyed and the bones already affected.
