Mrs. Fremont.-This lady, it is not necesry to inform our readers is the daughter of Colonel Benton of Missouri, and is one of the best educated and most accomplished of American women. The Boston Chronicle relates the following anecdotes concerning her: - While Colonel Fremont was making his arrangements on our western frontier for that exploring tour in which he broke his road into the valley of the Sacremento, his young wife in Washington, according to his request opened all letters addressed to him there, and forwarded such as she deemed it important for him to see. Among the rest she opened a Government dispatch countermanding his tour, the fruit, perhaps, of jealousy in a "superior" official station. A most loving wife, as she had proved herself to be, must have been under a strong temptation to forward that; but happily for the world, she took the responsibility of keeping it, and neither her husband ner any one else, except the poor Tite Barnacle who sent it, knew anything of the matter till Col. Fremont returned, having gloriously Canton effected the objects of the expedition.

Once more: during the protracted struggle which resulted in the election of Mr. Banks to the Speakership, there happened to be fellow-passengers in a crowded car, between Washington and Baltimore, a Bostonian, as remarkable as any other in this city for his subserviency to the slaveholders, and a lady, admired beyond most others in Washington society for the brilliancy of her wit and the intelligent interest which she takes in public affairs. The conversation, of which she was the center, turning on the great contest in the House, she expressed her decided sympathy for the Re-publican side, exuited in its prospect of sucpublican side, exulted in its prospect of success, and complimented Mr. Banks in the highest terms. This was too much for the Bostonian, who expressed his surprise that a Southern lady should countenance such a demagogue as Banks, and such an enemy to Southern in the surprise of the surprise that a Southern in the surprise of the su as Banks, and such an enemy to Southern institutions. The lady replied, "I can relieve your surprise in regard to myself, Sir, for my husband, Col. Fremont, is a Free Soiler; but Pike. let me express my surprise, that you, Sir, a Northerner and a Bostonian, should oppose Mr. Banks in behalf of Southern institutions!" As the Bostonian who met with this terrible rebuke was candid enough to tell the story on his return, we forbear to give his name, in the hope that it has made him a wiser and better
