The best management of barn and yard manure is a question attracting considerable attention among our agricultural papers, as it should, for it is one of much interest to farmers; and especially to those engaged in mired husbandry, or who combine keeping and raising stock with grain and fruit growing .--An attentive examination of much that has been written on the question, and bearing thereon, as well as considerable practical experience, has led me to the following conclu-

1. The dung of animals possesses its greatest material value in a fresh or undecomposed state; for there is more or less loss during decomposition, as it is managed with more or

2. The strawy refuse is best employed as litter for stables and yards for absorbing the liquids, and should in the end be pretty equally distributed through the manure. Used thus, its own decomposition is carried forward to a better point for application, and that of the dung retarded, as it should be while in the

3. The best winter management of manure is to keep it so mixed with absorbents-straw, dry muck, leaves, saw-dust, &c .- that no active decomposition takes place.

4. Or, keep the manure under sheds, which are also used as shelters for stock, or spread about a small yard where cattle are kept, level and well littered in both cases, and its solidity will prevent decomposition and waste. So managed, a mixture of the dung of different animals-the quickly fermenting horse-manure with the cold, slowly decomposing dung of cows and swine-will produce the best results.

5. The plan of keeping the manure under the stock, wintering them unfastened in large stalls or boxes, well littered, of course, secures a good quality of manure, retaining all liquids, and keeping up a slow decomposition, with a small loss from the same.

6. The best method of preventing loss of the fertilizing elements of manure, is to plough it under the soil as soon (if the season will admit) as it is so far decomposed that this can readily be done. Let the farm-yard be closed in the spring; applying the contents to corn and root crops, and as a preparation for winter grain or spring crops the next year.

7. All manure left in the yards through the summer should be heaped in piles, with a plentiful mixture of muck or other good absorbents, and sheltered from too much rain. A certain degree of moisture is requisite to its best condition. Such manure may be applied to winter grain crops, or as a top-dressing to grass lands in the fall.

8. The greatest sources of loss to the farmer, in the value of his farm-yard manure,

From waste of the liquid parts, arising from drainage and want of proper absorbents.

From the too active decomposition of dung-heaps, especially those composed largely of horse-manure. From the scattered state in which it is often kept about the yards, exposed to sun, rain and winds; and From delaying its application beyond the proper time to secure its greatest effect upon the soil and its product. These are hints, simply; yet, if I have been able to make my meaning clear to my brother-farmers, I think they will find them practically valuable. A much larger space would be required to go into an explanation of the reasons on which these recommendations are founded, and perhaps it is not essential to do so.

The many inquiries we receive on this subject induce us to give the results of any experiments we make or which come under our observation. Having had occasion recently to erect and paint a board fence about three hundred feet long, the following mode was adopted: The fence was made of six horizontal boards, besides the cap, nailed to red cedar posts, and to avoid expense, the boards (of nearly clear stuff pine) were left unplaned.—The expense of planing both sides by a material results of the condensation into our ampie communication in the present and the use of type of a generous size. In short, if we fail to make The Truncus worth its cost, it shall not be for want of expenditure or effort.

If it be deemed desirable by Republicans that The Truncus should be circulated in their several localities, we use them to see that Clubs be made up and forwarded in due season. The Postmasters are semi-officially adminished not to aid our circulation, but to urge instead that of journals deemed "sound" and "National" by the compatitions of Atchison and Stringfellow. We ask live Republicans everywhere to take care that these efforts be not effectual to quench the light of Freedom in the murky mists of Slavery. chine driven with steam, would have been about

The paint applied was made like common oil paint, ground water lime being used for the pigment, not on account of any virtue it may possess from its properties as a cement, but because of its cheapness, costing about half a cent a pound. It may possibly, however, be much better than some other paints, as a fence coated once with it in mixture with oil three years ago, appears as perfect as the day it was applied. In order to give it a warmer tint to correspond with the buildings adjacent, a small portion of Brandon red was added. A single coat of this paint was then given to the fence, the rough boards retaining enough to be equal to three ordinary coats on planed boards. About nine gallons of oil were thus consumed, costing about eleven dollars. The pigment was valued at fifty cents; and about four days were occupied in mixing and applying it, at 6 dollars cost, the whole surface on both sides and the posts being painted. The total cost was nearly eighteen dollars.

The expense of this application, as compared with using white-lead paint, applied in two coats of white-lead paint are estimated to cost fifteen cents per square yard. There were on both sides of this fence and on the edges of the sides of this fence and on the edges of the same of the sides of this fence and on the edges of the same of the sides of this fence and on the edges of the same of the sides of this fence and on the edges of the same of the sides of this fence and on the edges of the same of the sides of this fence and on the edges of the same of the sides of this fence and on the edges of the same of the sides of the sides of this fence and on the edges of the same of the sides of the sides of this fence and on the edges of the sides of this fence and on the edges of the sides of the sides of the sides of this fence and on the edges of the sides the boards over one hundred and seventy-two square yards, which at fifteen cents each, would amount to about twenty-six dollars -Consequently eight dollars was saved in painting, and five more, at least, in planing, if done in the cheapest manner, making thirteen dollars additional, which would make white lead nearly double the expense of the mode adopt-

A barn, thirty by forty feet, and with an average height of sides equal to eighteen feet, would present an entire surface of two hun dred and seventy five square yards, to paint which, in the manner we have described, on new unplaned pine siding, would cost a little less than thirty dollars. A coat of whitewash may be applied for a less expense than five dollars. Two coats of white-lead would cost forty-one dollars, besides the expense of plan-

There is no excuse for any farmer in not giving at least one coat of lime-wash occasionally to his outbuildings, if he cannot afford anything better .- Country Gentleman.

THE TRIBUNE FOR 1857.

The Election is past, and its results proves that the work devolved on the Republican party is not yet completed. In all the Eastern and Northern portions of the country—in New-England, New-York, Ohio and the North-West—the Republican banner floats in triumph; while in Southern Jersey, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois—in short, wherever few newspapers are taken, and where common schools are too new and too feeble to have educated the present generation of voters—the black flag of is most ruthless bands are precipitated on devoted Kansas, under the protection and smiles of the Federal Administration. Even as we write, the telegraph informs us that twenty Free-State men, guilty of attempting to defend their homes against the rapine and violence of Burford's and Titus blood-thirsty bandlis, have been convicted by Lecompte's Court of manslanghter'l and sentenced to five years' imprisonment at hard labor as felors. This is but a fair specimen of what has long passed for "justice" in Kansas—a justice which takes the criminals into pay and aids them in hunting down, plandering and "wiping out" the innocent, whom it consigns to the State prison if they are ever goaded into the madness of resisting their oppressor. Such crimes and wrongs as unhappy Kansas has for twelve months endured, even Hungary or Poland has never known; and the Power at whose institution these villainies were and are perpetrated sits enthroused in the White House, and has just achieved another four years' ascendancy in the Federal Government. Who, in view of these facts, can say that Republicans may now plet their arms, even for an hour?

Tus Tenuvse will be, as it has been, a Political Journal—avowedly, though not exclusively so. It recognizes the truth that Freedom and Slavery are here grappled in deadly conflict, and that in the result one of them must lose all control over the Federal Government. But, while it gives prominence and emphasis to the discussion and elucidation of the great issue of the day, it sinks none of the characteristics of a Business and Family Newspaper. The proceedings of Congress, like those in Kansas, will be watebed and reported by an able and fearless corps of Correspondents, while from London, Paris, Constantinopic, Hacana, San Francisco, Albamy and other centres of interest, our special advices will be, as they have been, fresh and reliable. A member of our Editorial corps—Bayard Taylor—is now in Northern Europe, and will spend the Winter in Sweden, Lapland, Russis, thence making his way next
