A Friend of ours has tried the difference the past season, between manure under cover and that made in open yard. He spread equal quantities on equal areas of ground, and planted with corn. That there might be no unfairness, he followed up the two plots of ground with the same cultivation. He did not have to wait until harvest to make up his mind that sheltering manure was good economy. The corn where he put in the manure made under cover was far more luxuriant to look upon, came on faster, and matured earlier, and the yield was about one-third more of good sonnd corn.

He has since put up two manure sheds, and we think has begun a course of improvement that will not end with sheds. They are cheap
