Cultivation of Tomatoes.

MESSRS. EDITORS : I wish to tell you my mode of growing tomatoes. I do not know that there is any thing new about it, it is not very common, and deserves to be much more general, since a dish of good early tomatoes is such a general favorite. My plants are al-ways forwared in a hot-bed, or in the green house, and grown in pots until they are about a foot and a half high, and are hardened off so as to bear turning out about the second week in May. I plant them about three feet apart in rows ; when planted I drive down a few stakes six or eight feet apart, leaving them about four feet high the whole length of the rows, and nail a strip of wood all along on the top, and tie two or more pieces lower down the stakes, about a foot apart so as to make a trellis something like a grape vine trellis.

Before planting I always dig the ground deep, and make it rich with manure. At the time of planting I mix the soil immediately about roots, about a table-spoouful of Peruvian guano to each plant, which gives them an and greatest variety of an guano to each plant, which gives them an early start. When they have grown sufficient ly long to tie to the trellis, I select two or three of the strongest shoots and tie them loosely to the trellis, cutting away all other small later-als which may grow on the main branches. I let these main branches grow until they have come in flower and set the first bunch of fruit, then I pinch out the top, one joint above the fruit, leaving the leaf entire. I then allow it to go on again until it has flowered, and set another bunch of fruit, when the top is pinch-ed out one leaf above the bunch, the same as at first, and so on of all the rest, taking care to cut ut all the laterals which may grow on the main branches down to the axels of the leaving the leaves entire If any one will take this little extra trou-ble, he will be amply repaid and absolutely as tonished at the immense clusters of fine large early start. When they have grown sufficient-ble, he will be amply repaid and absolutely astonished at the immense clusters of fine large tomatoes he will have. If planted in a favorable situation, they will ripen at least as early as those grown any other way out of doors, and frequently three days or a week earlier. When ripe they will hang longer on the vines without decaying. The situation can hardly be too sunny. Deep, light, loamy soil suits them the best. I always save my own seed. I began my saving a few of the roundest and smoothest tomatoes I could find for seed now I have them, not flat or wrinkled all up, but as round as an orange, and as smooth and have now at have them, and flat or wrinkled all up, but as round as an orange, and as smooth and have now at have them, but as round as an orange, such as the large days or a such as smooth and as an orange, and as smooth and there of the roundest and steel them the base of the roundest and show the them, not flat or wrinkled all up, but as round as an orange, and as smooth and the roundest of the roundest as the large them. Hor BEDS .- Not one farmer out of twenty knows what is to have his table well supplied with early vegetables, although the cost of a hot bed is so trifling, and it con be made in fanm is not very pressing. Choose a warm, dry border, and facing to the south or south-west, and out of the range of buildings and shade trees, so that it will have the full force of the sun's rays. Dig a pit from one to two feet deep, over which to place the frame. Make the frame of one and a quarter inch plank. The size may be from eight to five feet in width and of any desirable length. When the frame is adjusted over the pit, fill about half full of fresh horse stable manure which has been well kept and not exposed to the action of the weather. Put on the sashes and allow them to remain for three or four days, after which the soil can be put in from six to eight inches in depth. This must be the best mould that can be procured from the garden. The seed should not be planted for several days after the bed has been made, as there is danger of destroying the germ ; if seed is put over the hot manure too soon. Air should be given to the bed before it is planted. The frame should be banked up with warm manure and soil on all sides to protect it from codd frame should be banked up with warm manure | and soil on all sides, to protect it from cold, be well to cover it with straw. The bed should be sprinkled with water daily until the plants appear, and when the weather is sufficiently mild Appear, and when the weather is sufficiently mild the ashes can be removed to allow the entrance of fresh air, and make the plants grow strong and hardy. Now lift the vessel from the fire, and set it aside for ten minutes ; during this period the bran will fall to the bottom, leaving a clear liquor above, one pound of bar soap cut into small peices is now to be dissolved in it. The liquor may be put on the fire in the tin-pan, and stirred until all the soap is dissolved. In another vessel one pound of alum is dissolved in half a gallon of water : this is added to the soap bran liquor while it is boiling, and all is well stirred ; this forms the water proofing liquor. It is used while cool. The textile fabric to be rendered water-proof is immersed in it, and pressed between the hands until it is perfectly saturated. It is now wrung, to squeeze out as much of the free liquor as possible ; then shaken or stretched, and hung up to dry in a warm room, or in a dry atmosphere out-doors. When dry, the fabric or cloth so treated will repel rain and moisture, but allow the air or perspiration to pass through it. The alum, gluten, gelatine and soap unite together, and form an insoluble compound, which coats every fibre of the textile fabric. and when dry, repels water like the natural oil in the feathers of a duck. There are various substances which are soluble in water singly, but when combined form insoluble compounds, and vice versa. Alum, soap and gelatine are soluble in water singly, but form insoluble compounds when united chemically. Oil is insoluble in water singly, but combined with caustic soda or potash it forms soluble soap. Such are some of the useful curiosities of chem istry .- Scientific American.
