Different Kinds of Soil.

Soils are usually designated by terms expressive of the predominant material in their composition, thus we hear sandy, loamy, gravelly, clayey, calcareous or chalky and alluvial soils.

A sandy soil is that in which sand is the principal ingredient. Such soil is usually quite defective. It is so porous that it parts almost instantaneously with the moisture, and plants in it suffer from drouth. All the soluble parts of manures are also quickly washed out of it, and hence it requires continual additious to produce even a scanty growth.

A gravelly soil is one made up in greater part of small stones, pebbles, decomposed rock, &c.

A loamy soil is one we hear a great deal about, and may be understood in various ways. It may be considered as a mixture of equal parts of sandy, clayey, and vegetable soil. It is neither so light as the sandy, on the one hand, nor so tenacious as the clay on the other ; and as a general thing, contains such elements, and is of such a texture, as to render it cligible for all ordinary purposes of cultiva-tion, and especially so for fruit trees. Loamy soils are spoken of as sandy loams, when sand forms a large ingredient, say one half their composition ; gravelly, when pretfy largely mixed with small stones ; calcareous, when lime is found in them.

Calcarcous or chalky soils have a large amount of lime mixed with the other ingredients of which they are composed. All the lands in limestone districts are of this character.

Peaty soil consists chiefly of vegetable mould from decayed marsh plants, in low, wet places. Alluvial soils are composed of decomposed vegetable substance, the sediment of rivers, and the materials washed down from neighboring hills ; the valleys of all our rivers and streams are composed of this, and it is the richest of soils.

GARDENING .- Gardening brings one under the favorable influences of home. This is a positive advantage, and accrues both to him who follows gardening for a livelihood and to him who makes it the recreation of leisure .--

The working man pursues his daily toil within sight of his own gables ; his wife's cheerful song is wafted out to him through the open casement : his children some of them labor at his side, and others soothe him with their innocent prattle. He who pursues gardening from a love for it, is not apt to spend much of his leisure in other and questionable amusements. The early morning finds him among his trees and plants, and when the day's busi-ness or study is ended, he hies to his garden as the most delightful refuge from care. The pursuit of office or wealth is laid aside for the study of nature ; the society of the street and market place is exchanged for the society of home. Every man will have amusements of some kind, and his character is often determined, for good or evil, by the nature of his amusements. Gardening affords a rational recreation, and one which carries with it the salutary influences of home .- Country Gent.

ORCHARDS .-- Under the universally prevailing custom, to the contrary, we suppose it is almost useless to say that a profitable orchard cannot be grown in our day, by devoting the soil thereof to grain and grass crops. But the time will come-must soon come-if we are to continue to have a proper supply of fruit, when the growth of all young orchards will be promoted by cultivating the soil with such crops as require open cultivation, such as corn, potatoes, buckwheat, and root crops .--Grass is the great enemy to orchards, and this appears to be the favorite crop with our farmers. It is beginning to be understood that fruit trees require suitable cultivation, and that fruit culture will pay independent of any other crops .- Mont. Ledger.

AGRICULTURAL DISCOVERY .- A Paris letter writer states that a scientific gentleman discovered, two years ago, embedded with some embalmed bodies, a species of wheat not then in existence. In the time of the early Gallic kings a certain quantity of wheat was placed in the coffins of embalmed bodies. Some of it was sown, and it yielded from sixteen to twenty stalks to a grain, while there was on an average twenty more grains in the head than in the ordinary wheat. A considerable quantity of this ancient wheat was sown on the government farm last fall. Great reports are received of its productiveness. The ordinary wheat of France is believed to be only a degeneration of this ancient grain, deteriorated by centuries of reproduction. This discovery takes France back fourteen centuries for seed wheat, and it is expected will put her in possession of one-eighth more agricultural wealth than she possessed before the discovery .- Boston Journal.

RUB OFF BUDS .- This is the time to examine newly planted fruit trees, or those of two years out ; and by rubbing off many of the huds now pushing forth, form the shape of the tree for after years. Cherry trees should not be permitted to form a whist of branches from the body oftener than once in two feet. Pinch off the end buds of straggling branches, as well as of those grown beyond their limit for perfect formation of the tree.

If newly planted trees show blossom buds, they should now be picked off. If permitted to grow and form fruit, it will exhaust the tree, and often cause its death the second year.

Dwarf pear-trees can now be shaped better even than by pruning in August or early spring, and all the growth of the tree can be saved, or its food given to the production of Suit. Examine carefully the probable direction in which the bud would grow if left on the tree, and rub off only those that promise to interfere with its perfect shape. If the tree is already straggling in form, probably nearly all the end buds will require to be rubbed off. If the variety inclines to grow too compact, now is the time to make it more open, by simply rubbing out a few buds. Look also carefully at the root, and rub off all buds that may be starting below the graft .-- Ohio Farmer.

son can feel well while a costive habit of body prevails besides it soon generates serious and often fatal disea which might have been avoided by the timely and judi-cious use of a good turgative. This is alike true of Colds, Fevenish symptoms, and Billious derangements. They all tend to become or produce the deep seated and for-midable distempers which load the hearses all over the midable distempers which load the hearses all over the hand. Hence a reliable family physic is of the first im-portance to the public health, and this Pill has been per-fected with consummate skill to meet that demand. An extensive trial of its virtues by Physicians, Professors, and Patients, has shown results surpassing anything hyberto known of any medicine. Cures have been ef-fected beyond belief, were they not substantiated by per-sons of such exalted positions and character as to forbid the suspicion of untruth. Did space permit, we could give many hundred certi-icates from all parts where the Pills have been used, but vidence even more convincing than the experience of minent public men, is found in their effects upon trial. These Pills, the result of long investigation and study, are offered to the public as the best and most complete which the present effect of medical complete ford. are offered to the public as the best and most complete which the present state of medical science can afford.— They are compounded not of the drugs themselves, but of the medicinal virtues only of Vegetable remedies extract-ed by Chemical process in a state of purity, and combin-ed together in such a manner as to insure the best results. This system of composition for medicines has been found in Cherry Pectoral and Pills both, to produce a more ef-ficient remedy than had hitherto been obtained by any process. The reason is perfectly obvious. While by the old mode of composition, every medicine is burdened with more or less of acrimonious and injurious qualities, by more or less of acrimonious and injurious qualities, by this each individual virtue only that is desired for the cu-rative effect is present. All the inert and obnoaious qualities of each substance employed are left behind, the curative virtues only being retained. Hence it is self evident the effects should prove as they have proved, more purely remedial, and the Pills a more powerful an-tidote to disease than any other medicine known to the world.

The composition of my preparations is laid open to all men, and all who are competent to judge on the subject freely acknowledge their convictions of their intrinsic merits. The Cherry Pectoral was pronounced by scienti-fic men to he a wonderful medicine before its effects were known.
