Farmer's Department. Color of Country Houses.

It is easier to decide what the color of city houses should be than of those in the country. Every one can see that streets lined with rows of white buildings would be intolerable; none but eagles' eyes could endure the glare. City houses should mostly be of a sober tint, absorbing, not reflecting, the sun's rays, and not easily disfigured by dust and smoke. But the case is somewhat different with buildings in the country.

Formerly, white was the prevailing fashion. It was a neat and cheerful color, and supposed to be the most durable. But a change was at length decreed in this fashion. Foreign writers condemned it, and native writers echoed their words with emphasis. Artists and travelers gave it a shower of ridicule. White, they said, " is too intense a color-it does not harmonize with the hues of a landscape. A house so painted forces itself into notice—it impudently stares you in the face. An object of a sober tint, unexpectedly gilded by the sun, is like a serious countenance suddenly, lighted up by a smile; a whitened object is like the eternal grin of a fool. No artist, of like the eternal grin of a fool. No artist, of any reputation, would introduce a white house upon his canvas. The color is too glaring for the eye to rest upon, under our brilliant sunshine." And so on. These criticisms turned the fashion into the opposite extreme. Dark. sombre colors, became all the rage. Many beautiful cottages and cheerful houses embowered among trees, were changed into gloomy, barn-like, prison-like structures. The most popular color was what the painters styled Victoria brown," a dingy, melancholy hue, in faint imitation of free stone. Nobody really liked the change; it was a little too abrupt; but then it was the fashion, and it must be swallowed down as a very genteel thing. But common sense could not be long sileneed, and she soon spoke out as follows: "Oh, ye sons of men, why run to such extremes! Because white is too glaring, must ye therefore take refuge in black? Choose some of the softer and more cheerful colors which I furnish you. -the various shades of gray, fawn, light drab, cream-color, straw color, the many pleasing tints in your rocks and sands." Men listened to this sage monitor, and the result was most cheerful hues, but not in intense white. Let us not maintain, however, that no country house should be painted white. A white cottage with green blinds, nestled among trees and festooned with vines, is one of the pleasantest scenes in any landscape Nor would we object, in all cases, to green blinds on other houses which are painted in some neutral tint. The porch, cornice, window-frames and other dressings, should be painted a darker or lighter shade than the house itself, to relieve what would otherwise be bald monotony.

Barns and other out-buildings should be painted a darker shade than the house, to make them inconspicuous, and to mark their inferior uses. Several enterprising farmers of our acquaintance, have lately rebuilt their barns, clap-boarding them and painting them white! Why do you so? we asked one the other day. "Oh, well," said he, "I think as much of my barn as I do of my house; and then, I wanted to spruce up a little." Wanted to spruce up a little; that was it. But his cattle and pigs have rubbed their muddy hides against his clean white paint, as if determined to get it as near the once fashionable "Victoria brown" as possible.

Fences should be painted in some subdued color, so as not to attract much notice. "A fence," says Cooper, "which looks as if it

And now, having left the house and got on "the fence," we shall decline saying anything

OVERHANGING FRUIT .- The papers are discussing variously the right of a land-owner to the fruit which hangs across the line into his neighbor's garden. It appears that lawyers have given different opinions, according to the fact whether they themselves own on the one side or the other. We know but little of law but equity is very clear on the subject.

A. has no right to turn animals into his own field, that will leap a good fence, or burrow under it, into B.'s land—this is self-evident with every person. On the same principle, he has no right to plant and nourish a patch of Canada thistles near the line, the roots of which will push under the fence and spread through B.'s fields, or the seeds of which will be scattered over the fence. Now if A. plants a line of fruit trees along B.'s boundary, one-half the roots extend into B.'s soil, and one-half the branches shade B.'s surface. Has A. any better right, thus to burrow under the fence, and to throw branches across the top, than he has to place animals in his field that will pass under and over a good line fence? There can be but one answer, to this question.

But B. has not an equal right to all the fruit on his side of the fence, for he incurred no expense in planting the trees. B. cannot therefore claim the fruit ; but he may claim an amount of damages equal to the annual value of land occupied and shaded-which may be paid in fruit or in such other way as A and B. can agree between themselves, or which may be decided by a third party acting for them .- Country Gentleman.

HORSE TALK .- The New York Spirit of the Times gives the following characteristics of a good horse :- 1. His eyes, even when seen in the stable, are perfectly clear and transparent, and the pupils or apples of the eyes are alike in color and size. 2. On being nipped in the gullet, he will utter a sound like that from a bellows. If, on the contrary, he should give vent to a dry, husky, short cough, beware of him. His wind is unsound. 3. His legs are smooth and "clean." If you find bunches or puffs, or a difference in size. though he may not be lame, disease lurks there. 4. If broad and full between the eyes, he is susceptible of being trained to almost anything. 5. If some white or parti-colored, he is docile and gentle.

MAXIMS FOR FARMERS .- For rich farms, stock with the stately Durhams; for poorer the active Devons.

CATHARTIC PILLS

A NEW and singularly successful remedy for the cure of all Billious diseases—Costiveness, Indigestion Jaundice, Dropsy, Rheumatism, Fevers, Gout, Humors, Nervousness, Irritability, Inflamations, Headache, Pains in the Breast, Side, Back, and Limbs, Female Complaints, &c., &c. Indeed very few are the diseases in which a Purgative Medicine is not more or less required, and much sickness and suffering might be prevented, if a harmless but effectual Cathartic were more freely used. No person can feel well while a costive habit of body prevails; besides it soon generates scrious and often fatal diseases. does very little towards aiding the picturesque."

And now, having left the house and got on everish symptoms, and Billions derangements. An extensive trial of its virtues by Physicians, Professors, and Patients, has shown results surpassing anything in therto known of any medicine. Cures have been effected beyond belief, were they not substantiated by persons of such exalted positions and character as to forbid the suspicion of untruth.

Among the eminent gentlemen who have testified in favor of these Pills, we may mention:

Did space permit, we could give many hundred certificates from all parts where the Pills have been used, but neates from all parts where the Pills have been used, but evidence even more convincing than the experience of eminent public men, is found in their effects upon trial.

These Pills, the result of long investigation and study, are offered to the public as the best and most complete which the present state of medical science can afford.—

They are compounded not of the drugs themselves, but of the medicinal virtues only of Vegetable remedies extracted by Chemical process in a state of purity and combinate of the compounded in the complete of the chemical process in a state of purity and combinate of the compounded in the complete of the chemical process in a state of purity and combinate of the compounded in the complete of the compounded in the compounded in

They are compounded not of the units, the medicinal virtues only of Vegetable remedies extracted by Chemical process in a state of purity, and combined together in such a manner as to insure the best results. This system of composition for medicines has been found in Cherry Pectoral and Pills both, to produce a more efficient remedy than had hitherto been obtained by any process. The reason is perfectly obvious. While by the old mode of composition, every medicine is burdened with more or less of acrimonious and injurious qualities, by this each individual virtue only that is desired for the curative effect is present. All the inert and obnoxious qualities of each substance employed are left behind, the curative virtues only being retained. Hence it is self evident the effects should prove as they have proved, more purely remedial, and the Pills a more powerful antidote to disease than any other medicine known to the world.

As it is frequently expedient that many medicines should be taken under the counsel of an attending Physician, and as he could not properly judge of a remedy without knowing its composition, I have supplied the accurate Formule by which both my Pectoral and Pills are made, to the whole body of Practitioners in the United States and British American Provinces. If however there should be any one who has not received them, they will

made, to the whole body of Practitioners in the United States and British American Provinces. If however there should be any one who has not received them, they will be forwarded by mail to his request.

Of all the Patent Medicines that are offered, how few would be taken it their composition was known! Their life consists in their mystery. I have no mysteries.

The composition of any preparations is laid open to all men, and all who are competent to judge on the subject freely acknowledge their convictions of their intrinsic merits. The Cherry Pectoral was pronounced by scientific men to be a wonderful medicine before its effects were known. Many eminent Physicians have declared the same thing of my Pills, and even more confidently, and are willing to certify that their anticipations were more than realized by their effects upon trial.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, howels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.
