" Oh ! that is somebody very wonderful .-Everybody is afraid to speak to her. She has written a book. Frank seems to be right down flirting with her, doesn't he? I declare, now he always wanted somebody out of the way.

Nobody here was good enough for Frank. Have you heard he has been offered a professorship and is going away? He is going to live in the same place she does. I shouldn't wonder at his courting her—should you?"

"I don't eare," said Cynthia in her heart, "I don't care. Oh ! yes I do. I care that he should have weighed me in the balances so calmly this afternoon, and found me so unworthy that he takes back the love he has offered me. Has he judged me very cruelly? or am I quite unworthy of his attachment ?-Oh! think that this morning I had it in my power to be happy all my life, when I refused him! Oh! how can any one compare any other man with him! And he loved me only today-and now, to-night, his reason says I am not good enough to be his wife; and he is afraid of being unhappy with me. Indeed, I am not good enough-but I would try to be."

-If you would snip it." It was Frank Handy's voice. She caught the word, and looked up eagerly. Frink saw her, and stopped embarrassed. He was holding up a torn fold in the dress of his partner

"If I knew where to find a needle and thread," said the authoress, with a half look at the bridesmaid

'I know. Let me sew it up for you,' said Cynthia.

Her pride had left her. She felt humbled to the dust. It would be a relief to do something for this woman- better than herselfwhom Frank preferred to her.

"Let me do it," said she earnestly. "Mr. Handy, I shall depend upon your escort. Frank Handy bowed, and the girls went together into a bed-room.

Escort ?- was it his escort to the city ?-He had told her? he should go there. Cynthia sewed up the hole in the blue dress, very sadly and quietly.

The animation faded from the young authoress's face, as she looked down on Cynthia's quivering lip, and saw a big tear fall upon her sewing. She had heard some one say she had been the victim of false hopes raised by Seth Taggart, and had in her heart despised her for it; but she felt as if the sad, heart-broken love bestowed on him endorsed him as far better than he looked. It was a woe, however, to which she could not openly allude. But, as Cynthia set the last stitch in her dress, she stooped down and kissed her. Every sorrow has its lesson," she said, "as every weed has a drop of houey in its cap. Blessed are they that suck that drop, and store it for good

She had gone, and Cynthia was left alone. Yes, she had much to learn. This night's experience had taught her that her reign was over, and her career of bellehood run. She, who was not good enough to keep a good man's heart when she had won it, would set herself to her new task of self improvement .-She would have her dear old father's love, and live at home, and little children too, should learn to love her. And then, perhaps, some day, when they both grew old, Frank Handy might, perhaps, see that he had judged her hastily, and not be glad as he was now, that she had rejected him. At least, every improvement in her would be due to his influence, though unseen; and so, even in her lonely life, ably reach here to-morrow. he would not be altogether dissociated from her. She sat in the dark, with her hands clasped tightly over her burning forehead.

She heard voices in the passage. The party was breaking up. People were beginning to go. Oh! why had she staid alone so long! Perhaps during that hour Frank might have changed his mind. She had deprived herself of the opportunity. She started up and hurried out amongst the the Company. They were all getting their cloaks and shawls on. Frank, in his great coat, was standing impatiently at the house "Please to tell her that my buggy has come up first," he said to some one, as Cynthia presented herself in the passage. 'I am ready," said the lady in blue, presenting herself.

Frank raised his hat to the company, took her on his arm.

'Shut up that door," said somebody, "and don't let the night air into the house.

So the door closed with a jar that went to Cyuthia's very heart. She turned aside and tried to help some of the girls flud their shawls and hoods, "Every lassie had her laddie," Cynthia had no one to take her home. She asked Tommy Chase to walk home with her, and he said he would as soon as he had had some more cake and some more supper.

Cynthia went back into the empty parlour, and sat down by an open window looking on the yard. She hid her face in her hands. All sorts of thought went singing through her brain; but the one that presented itself oftenest was an humble resolution that she would try to be such a woman as Frank Handy wisely might have loved.

There was a stir among the vines that drapped the window frame. She did not look up. It was the wind. She heard it sigh. She feit its warm breath near her cheek-warmer, surely, than the night wind. She lifted her head quickly.

Snip !" said Frank's voice at her side. trembled; and he trembled as he stood with a great hope and a great fear contending in his breast. His self-possession was all gone .-The struggle had unnerved him.

Oh! Snap!" cried Cynthia suddenly. And then, drooping her head, crowned with the hop bells, lower and lower-more and more humbly, till it rested on the window sill -she said, in a broken voice, "I know I am is elected, and that the Democrats have a manot worthy, Frank ; but you must teach me."

XXXVTH CONGRESS.

FIRST SESSION.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Jan. 27, 1358. SENATE .- In the Senate, Wednesday, Mr. Wilson introduced a resolution, which referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, authorizing a Commission to inquire into the condition of affairs in Utah before force is resorted to. The joint resolutions of the Legis'ature of Ohio, relative to Kansas affairs, were presented by Mr. Pugh, and after some debate were tabled and ordered to be printed. A substitute for the Pacific Railroad bill was presented from the minority of the Select Committee on the subject. The Army bill was then considered, and a substitute providing for five new regiments, according to the recommendation of the Secretary of War, was rejected, 38 to 8. The debate on the bill took a somewhat wide range, and was not conclud-

After a rambling debate in Committee of the Whole on the Printing Deficiency bill a partial report was made by the Committee on Elections in reference to the Ohio contested-election case, declaring it inexpedient to allow Mr. CAMPBELL more time to take testimony. By resolution of the House, Mr. VAL-LENDIGHAM is admitted to the floor and allowed the privilege of speaking during the pendency of his claim.

THURSDAY. Jan. 28, 1848. SENATE .- In the Senate, Thursday, Mr. Foor, of Vermout, introduced a proposition as an amendment, or rather addition, to Mr. Davis' Pacific Railroad bill, providing for two routes, northern and southern. A bill was reported from the Select Committee on the Banking System of the District of Columbia, prohibiting the issue of notes of a less denomination than $50 in the District by corporations located without its limits. The Committee deem it inexpedient to authorize the establishment of banks of issue in the District. The Committee on Commerce were instructed to inquire into the expediency of abolishing the Lighthouse Board. The bill providing for an increase of the Army was taken up and debated, with slight intermission, until the adjournment. The special order of the day was the resolution providing for the presentation of a medal to Commodore Paulding, but after a brief consideration the matter was postponed until the 9th of February. No question was taken on the Army bill.

House.-The House immediately on assembling went into Committee of the Whole on the Printing Deficiency bill, but after an unsuccessful effort to enforce the rule confining members to the subject under consideration, the Kansas question became paramount, and was debated until the adjournment.

Our informant traveled from Westport to Booneville, in company with a messenger bearing dispatches from General Calhoun to the Cabinet at Washington. The dispatches were telegraphed from Booneville. The tenor of these, as derived from the messenger, is that General Calhoun has thrown out the votes returned to Governor DENVES, alleging, as a reason for so doing, that such returns were not made in accordance with the Lecompton schedule, and should have been delivered to him, and therefore are illegal and void. This high-handed measure gives the Pro-Slavery party a majority of one in the Council, and a najority of two in the Lower House ; besides, elects the Pro-Slavery State ticket throughout.

The Free-State men in all the Territory are much excited about the matter, and say if CAL-HOUN persists in rejecting such returns, and if Congress admits Kansas under the Lecompton Constitution, they will resist to the bitter end. In the House of Representatives at Harrisburg, on Thursday, Mr. MILLER, offered the

WHEREAS, it is the imperative and indispensable duty of the government of the United States to secure every inhabitant of Kansas the free and independent expression of his opinion by his vote; to leave the people of the Territory free from all foreign interference, to decide their own destiny for themselves; and to protect them in the exercise of their right of voting for and against their constitution without the fair expression of the popular will being interrupted by frauds or violence-and whereas the organic act under which the Territory of Kansas is now governed, expressly declares its true intent and meaning to be : 'to let the people thereof perfectly free to form and regulate their domestic institutions in their own way, subject only to the Constithereof. tution of the United States" :

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representives in General Assembly met, That our Senators in Congress be and they are hereby instructed, and our Representatives requested to resist the admission of Kansas into the Union as a State until a constitution is represented that has been fairly represented to the people, and received the unqualified sanction of a majority of the bona fide citizens of the

The preamble offered by Mr. MILLER is in the precise language of Mr. Buchanan's instructions to Gov. WALKER, upon his assuming the executive office of Kansas.

These resolutions were referred to a lect Committee of three, where they will remain, and not be reported upon. Various motions were offered instructing the Committee to report within a stated period, but they were all voted, down, by a strict party votethe Administration men voting against, and the

We prophesy that the Democratic State Convention to be held on the 4th of March will unquailfiedly endorse President Buchanan and the Lecompton swindle, though we have as little question that three-fourths of the people of the Commonwealth sympathize with FORNEY and Douglas, in their endeavor to carry out the principles of popular sovereignty. The leaders are too servile and too powerful for the masses at the State Convention. The Administration will be endorsed and applauded, and the delegates will adjourn en masse to Washington, and clamor for their reward from the President

MURDER THIAL AT MONTROSE .- At the late term of Court in Susquehanna county, WAL-KER GEORGE ARCHER was tried for the murder of his brother WILLIAM ARCHER, on the 20th of November last, by shooting him with a gun. He was found guilty of murder in the second degree, and sentenced by Judge Wilmor to 3 years imprisonment in the Penitentiary.

The evidence in this case revealed a most lamentable and shocking state of unbridled passions on the part of the deceased. His father testifies that on the occasion of the shooting, "William (the deceased) began to cuss and swear," and when he reproved him, rushed upon him, and knocked him down, and afterwards William took down his gun, and said he would stop his father's career. In a 000 for rebuilding the Horse Race dam. short time he also knocked his mother down, and finally the disgraceful affair ended by his being shot in the back by the discharge of a gun in the hands of his brother George. Apropos of steamship, the Leviathan has been pushed, by hydraulic pressure, almost to the end of her launching-ways, and was to be left there until the strong spring tides of last month would enable her quietly to float.

His counsel stated that all the circumstances attendant on that trial had tended to brighten the innocence of Mr. ECKEL. He hoped that the order of this Court would restore Mr. ECKEL to the confidence of the community, or place him in the same condition—as far as possible—as he stood before the murder had been committed. The order was then entered for a not. pros. and for the discharge of the recognizances.

PITTSBURG ELECTION .. - The election for Assemblyman to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Mr. BACKHOUSE, came off on Tuesday, and is represented a very tame affair. There was no enthusiam or excitement. and but little interest taken in the result .-The vote out will, consequently, be very light, probably but little over half what it was at the Presidential election. In twenty-one districts heard from, Scorr, Republican, leads Salisbury, Democrat, 214 votes, Mr. Scorr is probably elected by 500 majority.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE. - This body has at length succeeded in effecting an organization after four weeks unsuccessful ballotings .--The plurality rule was adopted, and under it Mr. THOMAS ALVORD (Democrat,) was elected Speaker, and Mr. DAVID L. Mr. Thomas Alibone, late President of the Bank of Pennsylvania, has published a lengthy letter in the Philadelphia papers, defending himself from the charge brought against him; denying that he was ever engaged in speculations during the term of his bank Presidency ; stating that he went abroad solely on account of the state of his health. The fact that he was the largest stockholder in the Bank is almost sufficient to lead one to believe that he acted in good faith and for the best interests of the institution.

Official Appeal " to Every True Bemocrat. North and South-In and out of Congress-In the United States."

The Government is now in the hands of the Democrats. Its President, its Cabinet, its Congress are Democratic, and have been made they are referred. so by the voice and vote of the individual Democrats throughout the nation. A common responsibility, therefore, rests on all Democrats. as well in office as out of office, to quell these rebellions, and to restore law and order to both Kansas and Utah. There is no escape from this responsibility on the part of the Democrats whether they are in public or private life.

The President placed in power by the Democratic party, says to Congress, quell the rebellion in Utah by sending there a powerful and efficient army to subdue Brigham Young and his leading coadjutors, and bring them to a just and legal punishment. As to Kausas he says that after having gone through many tribulations and trials while in the midst of rebellion, and all the impediments which LANE and Robinson, the secret aid societies, and the Black Republicans everywhere, have created, she at last stands at the door of Congress with Constitution admitted on all hands to be eminently "Republican"-formed by legal convention; admitted by Walker, and Stanon, and Douglas, and almost everybody else, (but Jim Lane,) to have been a legal Convention-a Constitution voted for, as it relates to the only disputed subject embraced in it, by every bona fide inhabitant who had a mind or wish to vote-a Constitution which can be moulded and shaped after admission into the Union just as the people from time to time may determine. Kansas, standing at the door of Congress with such a Constitution as this : the President advises, should be admitted into Union on terms of equality with the other States of the Union. Mr. Buchanan is a Democrat : he was put

Yet, to vote against Mr. Buchanan's recommendation to let Kansas into the Union-is it not to join and vote with Lane and his associates, whose perpetual cry is "Vote against her !" "Keep her out !" " Keep her out !

There is no unsoundness in this argument. The Democrats are right on this issue, or the Republicans are right; James Buchanan is right, or James Lane is right. And no good Democrat will catch at nice and unnecessary distinctions in order to eurol himself, in or out and California are to join him for that purpose of Congress, on the side of Lane, the traitor but that a movement with reference to a West and rebel. There is not (we believe) one Democratic district, north or south, in this Union, when history shall duly record the great facts in this case, that will support, by Democratic sanction, the exclusion of Kansas on the Le- yet Young and his crew have pursued the
