Meadow or Mowing Lands.

Now that Mowing Machines are so rapidly coming into use, those farmers who work them are compelled to bring their meadows in a better surface condition than when the scythe only was used; as, on a good bottom depends greatly the success, or the want of it, of the machine. Some mowing lands are frosty, as it is termed ; that is, heaving up, by the winter frost, of the spongy soil which overlies the hard pan beneath; and when the frost is wholly out of the ground, it settles unevenly, or hummocky, and requires the aid of a heavy roller to crush it back to an equal surface. Other lands have more or less small surface stones which are thrown upwards by the frost, and when the ground settles they remain there in the way of either the scythe or machine. Others, again, have been top-dressed during the previous autumn, and the coarser parts of the manure lie loose on the surface, and will not sufficiently decompose before the hay harvest. All these require the roller, as soon as the frost leaves the ground in the Spring, and a heavy roller too, to bring all the hummocky turfs, and small stones, down to an even surface.

The meadows should be gone thoroughly over, too, to cut and take out all rooty grubs or brushes that may have sprung up since the last haying. Where roots are left in the ground, they frequently send up thrifty shoots late in the season, which, if left uncut, will be sure to break or cripple the machine in passing over them. All these shoots, and the grabs from which they spring, are best taken out by the roots at once, by the grubbing-hoe, or axe.

It is now a good time, also, to examine and see whether any bare spots are in the meadow; and if so, sow them with the proper grass seeds, raking them thoroughly in with a sharp iron tooth rake; or if the barren spots are large, with a sharp toothed harrow. Let the meadow be covered with grass in every part; all low places drained off, that the young grass be not drowned, or foul stuff come in, and this should be among the first labors of the opening season.

RAISING TURKEYS .- Acorrespondent, writing from Michigan, October 4th, gives the following as his mode of raising turkeys. It is his opinion that farmers can raise a pound of fowl easier and cheaper than a pound of pork. He says:

"Heretofore I have been unfortunate in raising turkeys, but this season I have adopted a different mode-a plan of my own inventionby which I have been successful. Others may have adopted the same course, but not to my knowledge.

" Young turkeys are very apt to die before they attain the age of three weeks. I came to the conclusion that the fatality among them was caused by vermin, heavy feed, and cold, damp weather. My method this season has been this:

Take the eggs of the first laying and set under hens; the second laying let the turkeys hatch. Two or three days before hatching sprinkle the nest and fowls themselves with sulphur. When the young were hatched, I took a little sulphur, gunpowder and lard, mixed, and greased their heads and necks, to keep off the vermin while the young brooded. If it does not remain on, in eight or ten days put on another coat.

Mode of Freding.—I took equal quantities of wheat bran and Indian meal, and wet with sour milk, or lappered milk, with a good lot of fine cut schieves once in two or three days in with it and fed them till a month or six weeks with the school, and one half at the middle of the term—Fuel and contingencies included:

ILATE POTATOES—Time of Planting.—For late potatoes, location permitting, we would get them in between the 20th of April and the 10th of May.

After Culture.—As soon as the potatoes begin to come up run a harrow through them over the rows. This process—destroys grass

This process—destroys grass Tuition on Piano Forte with use of Instrument,... and weeds; insures a general stand and serves as a cultivation of the potatoe. When the potatoes are up three or four inches throw a furrow from them and turn it at the same time, so as to leave a slight flat hill and strew four bushels of ashes over the vines. In two weeks plow again, preserving its flatness. The weeds and grass on the rows must be relieved by the hoe and hand. At this working strew over the vines on each acre a mixture composed of 5 bushels of ashes, 2 bushels of salt and 1 bushel of plaster. In two weeks after this give a third and last working, increasing the size of the hill a little, preserving its flatness, and by repeating the top dressing before advised.

QUANTITY OF SEED PER ACRE.-It requires from 12 to 15 bushels of potatoes cut into sets to plant an acre.

To PREVENT HENS SETTING .- Make a small open pen, of laths; or some similar material, in one corner of your hen house, about eight inches wide and of any convenient length and height. Let one of the laths or slats be so secured that it may be easily taken out or moved to one side, so that a hen can be conveniently passed or taken out of the pen. On the bottom of this pen, and running lengthwise through it, set up a couple of laths one edge. and fasten them about the same distance from each other and the sides of the pen. Run a small perch across the pen and the work is done. When a hen wishes to sit, put her in there .-She will soon find that she can walk leisurely on the floor, or roost comfortably on the perch but she cannot sit without " riding on a rail," and that they seem to think is'nt decorous,-The length of time for which they will have to be confined will vary somewhat, and in obstinate cases it may be necessary to put a few pegs or tacks into the edges of the laths .-Gennesee Farmer.

Young FRUIT TREES .- Young fruit trees which lack vigor of growth from too poor a soil, should be stimulated with a good coating of old manure spread around them and spaded in as soon as the frost leaves the ground. All fruit trees, except of the largest which do not stand in ground kept constantly cultivated by the hoe, should have the soil for several feet kept well spaded around them. Soapsuds, especially for peach trees, are fine.

STRAWBERRY BEDS .- They should be kept free from weeds and grass, well watered when bearing. To keep the ground always moist keeps down the weeds, yields a tannic acid, keeps the ground moist, and preserves the fruit from dirt and sand.
