It is a very common thing for oat chaff and beards of barley and wheat to attach themselves to the eyes of cattle that have access to straw and chaff; and it is by no means uncommon to see the eyes of animals so much in flamed by such substances getting into them, that they often nearly or quite destroy the sight. A barley beard is a very ngly thing in a bullock's or a cow's eye; and oat chaff is quite as bad, if not worse. An animal can work out a beard, usually, much sooner than they can out chaff; because out chaff, if it once gets wet and gets on the ball of the eye. will adhere as closely as a piece of wet paper will adhere to a smooth board, and the animal cannot remove it; and in a few days a film will be formed on the eye, and probably the sight would be very much injured, if not detroyed. We know that such a harsh, huge " beam" must hurt an animal intolerably; because, when even a little atom of dust lodges into one of our eyes, we almost go into convul-

The usual way of removing such substances from an animal's eye is to blow into the eye, through a tube, some salt and alum, (most unmerciful remedy,) or to attempt to throw honey into the affected eye, or to squirt tobacco spit into the eye I would as soon inject sulphuric acid, or fill the eye with sand to remove such substances. My way of removing such substances I have

My way of removing such substances I have always found very practicable and effective, and by no means harsh. As soon as it is evident that there is anything in an animal's eye, which will be readily seen by its incessant running, put a rope on the animal, and if it will not stand quietly, tie it to a post. Rub the hand gently over and about the eye, until the hand gently over and about the eye, until the handle will allow you to handle the eye-lids. Out chaff will be seen almost always on the lower side of the eye bell; and many men can not see it, even when it is in full view, until it.

My way of removing such substances I have shall offer to any who will favor us with a call before purchasing elsewhere.

A barley beard will be found almost everywhere. Let the eye be opened as much as necessary, turning the eye-lids back if necessary; and there is no mistake but what chaff or beard can be seen.—Now take a good silk handkerchief in one hand and draw a portion of it over the fore-finger, and thrust it carefully into the eye ; and if the silk touch a beard, it will bring it out. But an out chaff will adhere closely, and it may be necessary to try again; but I never failed to fetch it the second time. S. To PREVENT BAD ODORS .- Both the fluid and solid secretions of men and animals contain nitrogen, a gas which has neither taste. smell or color, while separated from other bodies, and which has little affinity for other elements, though it is found that those substances most prone to fermentation are those which contain nitrogen in some form, or as an ingredient of their compounds. The fiecal matters of all animals owe their disagreeable smell chiefly to a compound of witnessen known as chiefly to a compound of nitrogen, known as ammonia. A curious change is effected, and that spontaneously, too, in these excretions as they cease to form a part of the living organism. They contain nitrogen, the elements of water, viz: hydrogen, oxygen and carbon—

"MISS HELEN M. CARTER, Assistant Instructor on Piano and Medodeon: MISS CLARISSA A. STOCKWELL, Teacher of French and Drawfing and Draw water, viz: hydrogen, oxygen and earbon.—
The carbon unites with the hydrogen, thus destroying the water. These two compounds being simultaneously formed, are set free at the same time, when they now unite, forming what of 10 days at Christman may be termed a double compound—carbonate of ammonia—the odorous element of privys, vanits, cass-pools and harn-varies vaults, cess-pools and barn-yards. Most decent people would gladly prevent these disagreeable odors from escaping and tainting the whole atmosphere about, if they could procure, cheaply, some effectual deodorizer. There is needed no better material for this than every man find on his own farm in a greater or less supply—peat, or turf, mingled with the fermenting mass, or spread over the with the fermenting mass, or spread over the specified spread of with the fermenting mass, or spread over the lessons, 50c, or for practice $2,00. heaps. Leaves and wood's mould, and plaster, make excellent absorbents and deodorizers, and of the whole. What better application need be asked for our soil than harn and prive man. be asked for our soil than barn and privy manure, and the contents of the cess-pool, all min- Washing, per dozen. gled with peat, turf, plaster, &c., and well erumbled down? There is no better general applications. B .- Prairie Farmer, April 23.

HEN MANURE .-- More than one correspondent has lately asked: How shall I prepare hen manure for use, what crops does it benefit, how and when should it be applied? To which we reply : Have on hand a lot of old barrels, and shovel the hen manure into them, mixing it as you go, with twice its bulk of loam, muck or sand. It is an excellent plan to scatter fresh dirt or plaster under the hen roosts every few days. The compost thoroughly mixed together, may be applied by the single handful to every hill of corn. Forty bushels of the mixture will thoroughly manure an acre. It may be applied not only to corn, but also to cucumbers, melons, squashes, grapevines, and indeed to everything growing in a garden. It is quite as active a fertilizer as Peruvian guano.

To KEEP HAMS IN SCHMER .- One good way is to put a layer of coarse salt in the bottom of a barrel, then lay in a ham and cover it with salt, and then another, and so on till the barrel is filed. Of course, this salt should be dry, and the barrel should be kept in a dry place. Another and better way, is to sew up each ham in a coarse cloth bag, then give the whole a coating of whitewash and hang up the bag in a smokehouse, or any dark, cool place.

A sure way of keeping hams fresh, but not a neat way, is to bag them as before mentioned, and bury the bag in the ash-hole, taking it ont as wanted.

We have known them to keep very well by simply wrapping in several thicknesses of newspaper and hang in an open garret. A corres pondent says they also "keep perfectly, as he has proved, by packing in sweet dry hay run through a hay cutter. Then wrap them with a single thickness of newspaper, and surround each ham with a portion of the hay; tie the GEO. H. BUNTING, whole in large cotton bags, and hang in a dry

WE are manufacturing the above mentioned excellent machine for Eastern Pennsylvania and the neighboring Counties in New York, and invite the particular attention of farmers to the following features of Kirby's Mower and reaper, which we believe to be superior to all others in use, in the following particulars:—It is the lightest in use; strong and durable; simple in construction; easily worked; adapted for horses or oxen; require much less draught than other machines; has no side draught though it ents a wide swath; will work on rough ground where no other machine can follow it; very difficult to be clogged in any kind of grass, be it wet or dry; not liable to get out of repair; is composed principally of iron; is a perfect combined machine, working equally well whether moving or reuping; and is the cheapest in price,—Mower being only $100, and the combined Machine $120,—making it altogether the most desirable Mower and Reaper in market.
