How to Make Good Cider.

There is hardly a title of cider made now as compared with forty years ago. Many of the old orchards have died out, and the temperance reform has prevented their renewal. The market for fine fruit has greatly expanded and nearly all the trees now planted are for the production of market apples. It took eight bushels of apples to make a barrel of cider, and the barrel sold for only a dollar. Apples now bring every year from fifty cents to a dollar a bushel. Fruit growers can hardly be expected to lament the change that is so much for their pecuniary interest.

Yet cider is still made all over the country in small quantities, some for the apple butter, some for vinegar, and still more for a beverage. When bottled and properly handled, it is as palatable, and much more wholesome, than most of the wines of commerce. In affections of the kidneys, it is an excellent remedy, and should have a place in every well appointed cellar. It is a matter of some importance, that what cider is made, should be made in the best manner.

The apples should be well ripened, but not in the least decayed. Every apple with the least speck of rot in it should be removed, if you wish a first rate beverage. The decayed and inferior apples may be reserved for making vinegar. Perfect cleanliness should be observed in the grinding process which should be performed two days before pressing, and the pomace should be permitted to stand and mellow in the vat, until it assumes a deep red color. Clean straw should be used in forming the cheese. If the straw be musty, the flavor will be communicated to the juice. If water be added, it will make it hard and unpleasant to the taste. The Casks, also, in which it is put for fermentation, should be thoroughly cleansed and finished off with a fumigation of brimstone. This is done by burning a few strips of canvass inside the barrel, dipped in melted brimstone. The fumes will penetrate all the pores and destroy the must and correct the sourness. After the fermentation is over, draw off into clean barrels, and clarify it. This can be done by mixing a quart of clean white sand with the whites of a half a dozen eggs, and a pint of mustard seed, and pouring it into the barrel. It may stand in the barrel, or, if a nice article is wanted, it should be put into some quart bottles and corked.

This cider will be fit to drink in case of sickness, and will always bear a good price in market. It retails at twenty five cents a bottle, and would bring at least two dollars a dozen by the quantity. This is much better business than to make a poor article from decayed apples, in a slovenly manner, and sell it for two dollars a barrel. [Correspondence American Agriculturist.]

Sow Rye Early.—Of all the crops raised in this northern climate, rye is perhaps the most surest; but even rye, sure as it may be, and that too, in a good season like the present. A neighbor of mine sowed part of a field with rye on the 25th of August, 1857, and the balance of the same field the last of October, land and seed both alike. The result was, a good crop on the portion first sown, estimated at 20 to 25 bushels per acre, while that sown late was not harvested for the reason that there was nothing to harvest. I have known similar instances almost every year, and yet there are those who continue to throw away their seed, lose their labor and the use of their land, because they have known a good crop raised on new cleared land, sown so late that it did not come up till Spring. [Correspondence American Agriculturist.]

THE GRAIN DRILL.—This implement has become of such general use as to be considered almost indispensable to the farmer. Its principle advantages are the regularity with which it distributes, and the uniform depth at which it deposits the seed. When a field is sown broadcast by hand and afterwards "harrowed in," some portions of it may be buried under eight to ten inches while others are not covered at all, and are of course wasted. This is obviated by the use of the drill. There is, however, room for improvement in the Drill as commonly constructed. The spouts which conduct the seed to the ground are generally arranged at a distance of from five to six inches apart, and the grain is thus deposited in rows, instead of being spread over the whole surface of the ground. If double the number of spouts, of smaller size, were used, it would certainly be an improvement. It may not be generally known that in England, where drill culture originated and is now most practiced, it is not unusual to sow wheat. Where this course is pursued, the space between the rows is not objectionable, but we may never perhaps see the day when it will pay to sow wheat in the United States.

In selecting seed corn, ears should be preferred which ripen earliest, and grow upon the most prolific stalks. It is but little trouble for the farmer to pass through his corn field just before "husking time" and select what he may need for next spring's planting. By pursuing this course for several years, it will be found that the amount of the crop is considerably increased and the period of ripening accelerated.

Hoes should be put up for fattening as early as possible, as they gain more from the same amount of food in warm, or moderate, than in cold weather. The yards and pens should be liberally supplied with litter, weeds pulled up before the seeds are ripe, and other matter which may be worked up into manure. It will help to pay the expense of making pork.

If farmers would sow their wheat earlier than is generally done, and upon deeply plowed, finely pulverized and well manured ground, there would be less complaint of winter-killing and of the ravages of the field weevil or midge.

SOAP SUDS FOR CURRANT BUSHES.—A correspondent of the Indiana Farmer says: "I have found the cultivation of Currants to be very profitable. By care I greatly increased the size of the bushes, and the quantity and quality of the fruit. My bushes are now about eight feet in height, and are remarkably thrifty. The cause of this large growth I attribute to the fact that I have been in the habit of pouring soap suds and chamber lie around their roots during the summer season. I am satisfied from my own experience and that of some of my neighbors, that this treatment will produce the most astonishing effect on the growth and product of the bushes."

The virtue of prosperity is temperance; the virtue of adversity is fortitude.

DICKINSON SEMINARY.
(MALE AND FEMALE.)
WILLIAMSPORT, LYCOMING COUNTY, PA.

The next Academic year of this Institution, divided into Three Terms, will commence AUGUST 15, 1858, with a full Board of well qualified and experienced instructors.

Williamsport, on account of its healthiness, convenience of access, and the intelligence and morality of its citizens, is a most desirable location for a school.

The buildings are large and convenient—with separate apartments for the ladies and gentlemen, and rooms for the Principal's family and all the instructors; thus placing the students under the immediate care of their teachers at all times, making all as one family.

The course of study is systematic and extensive, embracing the COMMON ENGLISH, SCIENTIFIC, CLASSICAL and MENTAL BRANCHES.

Board, (including washing, lights, fuel and room rent) $2.26 per week. Tuition from $15 to $27 per year. German, French, Drawing, Painting and Music, at low extra rates.

Payment for the Term, in ADVANCE.

Miscellaneous.

JEWELRY! JEWELRY! JEWELRY!
A. M. Warner's
New & Splendid Jewelry Store, one door north of Pattons Drug Store.

HAS just been opened with the largest and most choice stock of FASHIONABLE JEWELRY ever offered to a discriminating public. Indeed, he can safely say that with the opening of his new store has been inaugurated a new era in the Jewelry line, inasmuch as along with the choice and elegant assortment he gives the most reliable assurance of an almost incredible reduction in prices; the rich and tasteful articles having been all bought with ready cash.

A. M. W., when he reflects how, for the past years, with a far less attractive stock, he has enjoyed so large a share of public patronage, flatters himself that the immense increase of goods he now offers, which have been bought so much more advantageously, will enable him to increase the generous confidence which has hitherto been vouchsafed to him. He therefore solicits a continuance of the favor of his old customers, and invites the public generally to come and see the fashions.

THE WATCH REPAIRING DEPARTMENT will continue to be distinguished by the skill and despatch which has heretofore enabled it to enjoy the enviable reputation of being the most reliable in town.
