REPORT OF NOMINATING COMMITTEE. Whereas, a consideration of what is best for the public interest should in every case govern us, and an honest expression of our real sentiments can give no honorable man offence: we, our committee, appointed by the Convention at Towanda, Sept. 13th inst., to nominate candidates for your support at the coming election, believing a call for the "old line convention orginated with the friends of the slave power, therefore respectfully submit the following nominations :

1st. Believing the Hon. G. A. Grow eminently qualified to represent our interests in Congress, having steadily opposed the aggressive policy of the slave power, and learned in their school that force is the basis of their system, and therefore unwilling to admit that slavery exists by virtue of constitutional law or right: We therefore nominate him for Representative of the 14th Congressional Dis-

2nd. That as no officer of government can legally exercise authority not delegated by the people, and the people cannot delegate authorito do wrong ; your committee feel unwilling ticket being in advance of the republican party believe that crimes can be made legal and right by human legislation : we therefore nominate them for the offices respectively for which they have already been named by the republican party. All of which is respectfully submitted. N. J. Cogswell, Committee.

MILES CARTER, The report was received with cheers, and referred for further consideration to the 2nd Tuesday in October next.

The Atlantic ? elegraph.

The electricians engaged on the Atlantic Telegraph appear unanimous in the opinion that the insulation of the cable has become in ared by being suspended upon some projecting oint of a steep bank, and thus gradually inared by its own weight. The soundings taken a few hundred miles from the Irish coast show that a bank or steep range exists, the highest and lowest points of which are eight miles part, showing a difference in elevation of 1,200 feet. But no one can form an idea of Baley Jeremiah the nature of the ground in this intervening space of eight miles—whether the sides of the submarine mountain be broken by ravines or precipitous cliffs, or whether it be a gentle This spot which is 300 miles from Valentia end of the cable, is supposed to be the one where the insulation of the cable has been

We copy the following extract from an of icial statement dated Valentia, September 12, wherein this idea is set forth as being the prevalent one among the electricians:

"It must always remain a matter of doubt, lowever, wnether the falling off in the strain on the speed of the cable was observable at all intil the top of the bank had been reached, and had this been the case, it is quite possible that the cable may have remained suspended pon some projecting points on the steep, and insulation soon become gradually injured by ts own weight. This is of course but a probable conjecture, based upon the facts above stated. But at the same time it is impossible to account in any other way for the cable having become damaged since its submersion."
