"What is your opinion in regard to fall plowing ?" asks an esteemed correspondent .--"I have a field I intend planting to cora.— Would it be letter to plow it this fall, and then cultivate it before planting, or to let it lie a it is all winter and break it up in the spring?

If an old sod, or rather heavy soil, we should certainly prefer to plow it in the fall, unless it is low and wet. If a young, healthy cloved sod, on light soil, it might be better to let it lie as it is all winter, and not plow it till just before planting. The clover would be several inches high, and when turned under in the spring would help to enrich the land; and it is said that the grubs will feast on the clover and leave the corn plants unmolested.

The great error in fall plowing is in not plowing early enough. It should be done immediately after the wheat sowing is finished. The teams can be spared then as well as later -Plowing late in the fall when the ground is cold and sodden, is of questionable benefit. An experienced farmer in England once pointed out to us a portion of a field of turnips that looked much superior to the turnips adjoining. On inquiring the reson for this difference, he said that both portions had been treated alike, except that the part which looked the best had not been "pin-fallowed "-fall-plowed .-The fact turned out to be that the land was not plowed till December, when it was too wet; and the next spring it was raw and lumpy; whereas the other portion turned up fresh and mellow. The fact is not one which militates against the practice of fall-plowing, but against plowing land when it is too wet.

We recollect of seeing a piece of low wet ground, near this city, plowed late in the fall. It was a tough sod, and was turned over in wide, flat furrows. During the winter it presented an almost unbroken sheet of ice, and in the spring was so wet and raw that it was with IRON AND STOVE STORE. difficulty got ready for planting. Such fall plowing is not to be commended. Had it been plowed early, and in narrow and high ridges, and the dead-furrows cleaned out, and a few surface ditches cut, so that the water could have passed off, the result would have been different.

Some good farmers in this vicinity plow their corn land in the fall, and then sow it to barley in the spring without plowing again .-One of the advantages of this plan is that the barley can be sown earlier, and a portion of the work which otherwise would have to be done during the busy season in spring, is done in the comparatively leisure season in the fall.

F. Holbrook, Esq., of Brattleboro', Vt., makes the following judicious remarks on this subject, in the New England Farmer for 1853 which are worthy of reproduction at this time. He says:

"From the last of October to the middle or later of November is a good time for plowing it preparatory to sowing or planting it the following spring. The autumnal weath-er is cool and bracing, and the oxen and horses strong and hearty for the work; while the temperature of the spring season is more relaxing, and the animals of draught are then apt to become laggard and faint,—particularly at the business of overturning green-sward.—

To be seasonable, spring work must at best be despatched in a great hurry, and it is relief and advantage to have the plowing done in the fall. If land in corn-stuble is first well harrowed, so as to pull open, and level down the hills and scatter the stubbs about, then plowed in the fall, the stubble, lying beneath the furrows through the winter, will not be apt to come to the surface by harrowing in the spring; the grain and grass seeds can be committed to the already prepared ground, at the earliest suitable day in the spring, the surface of the newlystocked land will be smooth, the rop of grain will distributed in harrowing, the crop of grain will distributed in harrowing, the crop of grain will be early and thereby luxuriant, and the young grass, having the benefit of the early rains, will get good root, be more likely to survive the heat and drought of summer, yielding a full bite of aftermath in the fall, and good succeed- TOMB STONES AND MONUMENTS. ing crops of hay. Sod-land plowed in November will be free from growing grass in the spring, the roots of the late overturned sward being too far deadened by the immediately succeeding winter to spring very rapidly to the surface. The plowed land, after being subjected to the frost of winter, will readily disintegrate and crumble down in fine particles when harrowed in the spring, -- yielding a mellow seedbed and facilitating the business of planting and the first hoeing, and the manure applied can be readily and nicely mingled with the kindly soil. Corn planted on sod furrows turned the fall previous, will not be so liable to injury from the copper-heads or cut-worms which eat off the young stalk at the surface of the ground, as though the land had been plowed in spring. So great heretofore have been the depredations of these worms on my young corn when planted on the sandy intervales which were broken up from grass in the spring, that now the meadow land which is to be made ready for a corn crop, is invariably plowed late v. E. Piollet, Esq. in the fall. By means of this precauiton the ravages of the worms have been pretty much prevented, but few hills of corn being entirely destroyed,-indeed, in passing through seven acres of corn to-day, vacant hills were not discovered, though looked for, and I think there

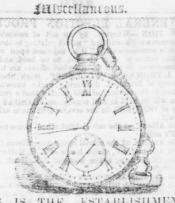

GIVE AWAY YOUR FRUIT .-- The editor of the Homestead thus discourses, in a genial way, on the advantages of giving away fine fruit, than which few things once can do give more exquisite pleasure both to giver and receiver:

can not be enough loss of crop from this cause to be of much account."

"One of the best uses you can cut a fine dish of fruit to, is to give it away to some friend who will appreciate it, and your skill in growing it. It is due to the art of horticulture as well as to yourself, to make these offerings. In no way can the taste for fine fruits, and the desire to cultivate them, be so rapidly disseminated. The rich old hunker over the way, who has all his life-time been too intent upon dollars to think of a fruit yard, or a vinery, will per haps fall into a fit of self-reproach, at the sight of a four pound bunch of Black Hamburgs, presented to his wife. She of course praises the grapes, admires the half-transparent skin revaling the rich juices beneath, but does not venture to make any suggestions, though her looks insinuate volumes The daughter Julia is in raptures with them, as girlhood is wont to be with everything beautiful. She wonders that papa does not build a glass house to grow grapes in, and can not keep wonder to herself. The daughter is the old gentleman's special weakness, as the mother well knows, and she can safely be left to do the talking.

The result has been, that within the east year, some three hundred houses have been erected, two mills, one steam, four stores, some forty vinyard and Peach orchards, planted, and a large number of other improvements, making it a desirable and active place of markness.

The Market, as the reader may perceive from its location, is the best in the Union. Produce bringing double

He can buy every article he wants at the cheapest price, and sell his produce for the highest, (in the West this is reversed.) he has schools for his children, divine service, and wil enjoy an open winter, and delightful elimate, where fevs are utterly unknown. In the way of building and improving, lumber can be obtained at the mills at the rate of $10 or $15 per thou sand. Bricks from the brick yard opened in the place every article can be procured in the place, good carpenters are at hand, and there is no place in the Union where buildings and improvements can be made cheaper.

The reader will at once be struck with the advantages here presented, and ask himself why the property has not been taken up before. The reason is, it was never thrown in the market; and unless these statements were correct, no one would be invited to examine the land before purchasing. This all are expected to do. They will see the land under cultivation, such is the extent of the settlement that they will no doubt, meet persons, from their own neighborhood; they will witness the improvements and can judge the character of the population. If they come with a view to settle, they should come prepared to stay a day or two and be ready to purchase, as locations cannot be held on refusal.

Instrumental Music will not, as heretofore, be taught in the Institution, but by special arrangement—a class will the taught in a hall adjoining the grounds of the Institute, by the Teacher of Vocal Music.

This arrangement has been adopted for the past term, and experience has proved it to be eminently superior to the plan pursued in former years. Special pains will be taken to secure the greatest progress of those wishing to take lessons in this branch. Terms will be as heretofore:

He will also be present to conduct its exercises as often as practicable, and will deliver frequent lectures on the Theory and Practice of Teaching, as also on other subjects connected with Normal training.

TIOGA POINT IMP'VED RAILWAY HORSE POWERS.

WE are manufacturing the above unrivalled Powers for One and Two Horses, under Emory's Patent, which are warranted greatly superior to the common Rack and Pinion Power. Our Horse Power is unequalled for convenience by any other;—being adapted to a great variety of uses where power is needed; for the reason that it is double geared, and that both ends of the main and counter shafts have couplings all alike, permitting the converge gear wheel, pinion and hand-wheel to be shipped from shaft to shaft and from side to side of the Power at pleasure; by which arrangement five different degrees of motion are obtained without extra gearing; degrees of motion are obtained without extra gearing; and also, any desirable length and velocity of crark motion for cross cut sawing. pumping and churning. These Powers run easily, are strong, well finished and made from good materials.

THRESHERS AND SEPARATORS.

These are made of various sizes. They are superior to those of any other manufacture, of which fact any person well acquainted with the heretofore leading machines, will be satisfied upon examination. Our FANNING MILLS, which are the very best in market, are fitted for power to be run in connection with the Tresher and Separator. arator. THRESHERS AND CLEANERS,

We have succeeded beyond our most sanguine expectations in inventing and constructing a combined Thresher & Cleaner of our own, which, we believe, for two horse power, has not its superior nor equal. Hruns easily and threshes and cleans fast, without wasting the grain, which is delivered in the measure cleaned fit for market.
These Winnowers are simple, easily managed, and are warranted to give entire satisfaction. BT We are prepared to furnish at once, or on very short notice, THRESHERS and WINNOWERS from any of the leading New York manufactories at the same prices as our own, and no charge for freight. All who
