quantity of roots, not diminished. Grass-lands which failed to receive their dressing of compost last Fall, may be attended to now, before the ground becomes soft .-The manure dropped during the Winter, around hay-stacks in meadows, should be cleaned up and carted away on sleds before Spring opens, if left until May, the grass will be badly injured, if not killed. Dry meadows will take it kindly if you give them a bushel or two of plaster, or a few bushels of lime, or leached ashes, to the acre, and Winter grain, which got no plaster at sowing time, may well have it early this Spring.

Fruit trees exhaust the ground of its needful elements, and should be manured a little every year. A compost of chip-dirt and barn manure now spread over the orchard, will help the grass and the trees themselves.

Water-courses which are allowed to flow over mowing lands, should be frequently changed, so that all parts of the fields may get benefit from the irrigation, and the grass in no part become rank and uneven. Now, or as soon as the frost is out of the ground, this should be attended to.

If any dead animals .- cats, lambs, dogs, calves, cows, horses, etc.-have accumulated around the premises during the Winter, now is the time to dispose of them. Instead of being hauled into some retired spot, to decay above ground and fill the air with noxious smells, they should be taken to some unoccupied corner of a field and covered with six or eight inches of soil; this will not only obviate unpleasant effluvia, but will contribute largely to the manure-heap.

Now is the time to look after seeds, ii they have not been already provided. Let every article be the best of its kind, if good crops are expected. The garden should not be forgot-ten. Peas, beans, tomatoes, lettuce, radishes, and the like, should be provided for before the hurrying season comes

Now, split rails, and stack them where they will dry well, if they are not wanted immediately on the fences. Look well to all the farmgates, bars, and bar-posts; let none be out of repair after this month. A broken fence often costs about the value of a crop.

HOEING WHEAT IN THE SPRING .- In a pre vious article, we have alluded to the advantages of bringing seed wheat from the South, for the purpose of getting the wheat so early that it may escape the attacks of the midge .-Something can be done in this way; but we must also endeavor to cultivate the soil, so as to enable it to force the wheat forward. We must make it dryer, and warmer and richerat least richer in the oppropriate food of wheat i e., richer in the ammonia, without much carbonaceous matter

Underdraining not only removes injurious, stagnant water, but it also makes the soil warmer, and, consequently, plants growing on it ripen earlier. Tho midge will force farmers to avail themselves of this fundamental means of improving their farms.

But we do not now intend to give our views on the best method of growing wheat so as to avoid the midge, but rather to ask the experience of our readers in regard to the effect of hoeing wheat in accelerating or retarding its early maturity.

We have often seen wheat hoed in England, and always with decided benefit; but we cannot say whether it favored the ripening pro-

MORTON'S Cyclopedia of Agriculture (one of the latest and best English authorities) says : "All drilled wheat should be boed in spring, both for the purpose of loosening the surface weeds; it will always pay itself either by an increased crop or by saving in the after-cleaning of the land, and often it will make all the difference between a very good and a very bad crop."

There is one difficulty in hoeing wheat here which is not met with in England. Our springs are late, and the wheat begins to grow rapidly before the ground is sufficiently dry to hoe. Still, some farmers have adopted the practice here on a small scale, and, we believe, with very encouraging results. Those, too, who have harrowed their wheat in the spring, have found it beneficial.

Unless the land is very hard and foul, the Dutch-hoe is the best for hoeing wheat. When the drills are twelve inches apart, wheat can be hoed by hand for about seventy five cents an acre-and we know of no cheaper method of eradicating redroot and other noxious weeds.

If our farmers will try the effect of hoeing wheat, and the result is beneficial, some of our intelligent mechanics will soon construct a machine which will do the work well, and at a cheap rate .- Genesee Farmer.

How TO RAISE SEEDLING POTATOES .- After the vines having seed-balls on have been well dried, after being frosted in the fall, collect as many balls as may be wanted, squeeze the pulp out in a basin of water, wash all the pulp out by frequent rinsings, spread the seed on a board set up on the kitchen mantel until well dried, rub them and blow out all out all but the best and heaviest seed. Sow them the next spring in a hot bed, as you would tomato seed, and at the same time you would to raise early tomatoes; transplant after spring frosts, as soon as the ground will pulverize well into rich new or well manured old ground, in rows, one set in a place, two feet a part each way. Cultivate well, by hilling up as the young vines grow, to prevent them from falling down and mildewing prematurely. The better the tillage the fiver will be their size and the more abundant will be the yield.

From one rod square of rich new ground of a clay soil I raised by the above mode, the last season two bushels of some half dozen distinct kinds from the seed balls gathered from the pure white Neshannock, three-fourths of which were large full-sized potatoes, although planted quite late in the spring. A lot of the finest in quality and size which, together with several varieties of the second year's growth, I have buried, and after they are all well tested, those who are worthy of cultivation I shall name and distribute to all who may want samples.

I plant altogether upon the one eyed plan.

V. E. Piollet, Esq.

I plant altogether upon the one eyed plan, as recommended by Mr. Mc Williams, and have for the last four years, and succeeded four-fold better than the whole potato plan. If planted in hills two by three feet. I would recommend three and four eyes in each hill, if in drills, not more than six inches apart in the row.
