A Pure Douglas Electoral Ticket.

[From Forney's Press]

In answer to a multitude of letters (which we are utterly unable to publish), demanding a pure Douglas electoral ticket in this State, pledged against the Disunionists, headed by BRECKINRIDGE and LANE, we are authorized to state that RICHARD J. HALDEMAN, Esq., the Democratic Committee, appointed by the regular National Democratic Convention, will, under instructions from that Committee, address letters to the different candidates for electors, appointed by the Reading Convention demanding of them an explicit answer whether they are in favor of the nomination of Doug LAS and JOHNSON, for President and Vice President. If they shall refuse to answer, or shall answer in favor of the Disunionists, then their names will be stricken from the roll, and others substituted. We are also desired to state that it is intended to call a Democratic State Convention-whether a delegation or a mass Convention hereafter to be determined which body will proceed to fill any and all vagratify the friends of Judge Douglas to know that he, himself, cordially sustains the policy of having no connection, direct or indirect, with the Disunionists; that he desires above all, and most of all, to maintain the position in which he has been placed by his record and his nom ination, and also that he can enter into no coalition with Disunionists in the free States, who insulted and degraded those gallant men in the Southern States now fighting for the National Democracy, and for the old-fashioned principles of the Democratic party, against a banded oligarchy intent alone upon the destruction of the Union. No TRUE FRIEND of Douglas in Pennsylvania, or elsewhere, can touch an electoral ticket which contains upon it the single name of a Breckinridge Disunionist. deathly potion.

We publish in this week's issue, another article from Forney's Press, for the purpose of illustrating the spirit which animates the Douglas portion of the Democracy. MR. EDITOR :- It was my good fortune to attend the exercises closing the late term of the Susquehanna Collegiate Institute on Tuesday of last week at the Presbyterian Church. A respectable audience was present to participate in the pleasure of the occasion, and we hazard nothing in saying that every person was delighted with what he heard and saw. Ten or twelve riginal orations were delivered by the young men of the Institute, each one abounding in choice patriotic sentiments, clothed in eloquent language, and in a style of elocution quite superior to that of the ordinary productions of the kind. There was, to say the least, a strong current of sound logical thought running through each roduction which impressed the hearer and enlisted his hearty commendation. We listened to no spread-eagle flights of the imagination, to no "tales of sound and fury signifying nothing," but to good common sense expressed in forcible language, and finding its way at once to the heart, as such thoughts always will. As we have no programme indicating the particular names of the speakers of each oration before us, but have to depend pon memory, no young gentleman will accuse us of partiality if we say that the two productions entitled " Selfmade men," and "Self-made or never made," pleased us as much for the noble thoughts they embodied in words as for the effective and forcible style of delivery, while the two entitled "Comparative wrongs of the Negro and Indian," and "Slavery a Social Evil," though slightly antagonistic yet mainly true, perhaps exhibiting the politiabove the common order of school exercises. Fourth. We think the sciences attest the superiority of supposed the earth to be the centre of the system. It is true that Ptolemy in the second century assumed the magnificent truths which the telescope reveals. They knew but little of geography-that which we get from Homer is entirely fabulous. He deified the Atlas moun tains, and had the world rest on the shoulders of the God. Colchis was regarded by the poet as situated in the ex treme east, where stood a temple of the sun in which the god of day rested his horses during the night, and from which, in the morning, he drove his chariot through the Who's Crushed Our Now ?-A few years | Heavens: He indulges largely in the poet's fancy. In Sicily there were sirens who lured to destroy, magicians who transformed men into beasts, monsters of strange ness at the mouth of the sea of Azoph, and the pigmie north of Europe. Herodotus was better skilled in geography than Homer, but he declares that Europe was as large as Asia and Africa put together. Of the latter region he knew nothing beyond the limits of Egypt .-The Romans, by their conquests, added to the knowledge Who dodged the vote on the Home. of this science, but their ignorance of the globular form of the earth prevented the formation of any correct idea

They knew but little of medicine, and nothing of physon chemistry that they had no key to unlock its secrets, while physiology and minute anatomy are sealed sciences without the microscope.

And here it is proper to say that the speaker was parnlar movement of the blood through the body, with a tor disgusts him with his supercilicusness and arrogance of the Magnetic Telegraph.

The application of the Moxa in the case of Mr. Summers practice. Every surgeon of a half dozen years standing has employed it in the treatment of certain diseases and field of "remorseless criticism" exclaims: thought it nothing singular. Mr. Sumner was an illustrious patient, and he chose an illustrious surgeon.

But our notice of this address is sufficiently extended to indicate our belief in the higher civilization in which we live. We cannot reconcile ourselves to the opinion that two or three thousand years have passed, and yet our race with so many means of progress has not advanced,-that so many hopes and aspirations clinging to our humanity of a coming future, are to be rendered void. In many of his inferences was not the speaker mistaken. He referred to Homer, and yet in matters of history Homer is not considered reliable authority. His heroes and her ines are regarded by many as fabulous. Troy has no certain existence in the past, and even the poet himself has been supposed a myth. Again, are we not justified in the absence of such proof as it would be easy o render, in believing that the rail road near the pyramids spoken of never had existence but in fancy, and ere not the musical sounds said to have been en by the statute of Memnon, like the responses of the Delnay we not suppose this to have been the case when authentic history informs us that the head of the statute gainst it in his mouth?

In closing we have to express the great pleasure we received in listening to this discourse. In Athens, July 6, MARY AURELIA, daughter of J. L. and MARY ANN CORBIN, in the seventh year of "Thou gavest, and we yield to thee,

God of the Human heart! For bitter though grief's cup may be, Thou givest but our part. O, thou canst bid our grief be stilled,

Yet not rebuke our tears ; How large a place her presence filled, How vacant it appears. "We mourn the sunshine of her smile,

The tendrils of her love; Oh, was she loved too well the while Ere she was called above? Our chastened spirits bow in prayer And blend all prayers in one,-

Give us the hope to meet her there When life's full task is done.
