before they are covered by the snow. They are abundant everywhere, lying in heaps and windrows in the forest and by the roadside, and by the fences in every yard. The wood-lot should not be stripped clean of them; but doubtless every farmer's laud contains more of them here and there, than he can find time to cart home. Gather them up, by raking, or by sweeping with a large birch broom. Stack them and pack them in the large wagon, adding side-boards as high as convenient; you will hardly get too heavy a load. Cart them home, and use them as bedding for cattle and horses; use them for compost in the stableyard; use them to protect tender grape vines and shrubs and plants in Winter. Strawberry patches will fairly sing for joy under such a feathery blanket. By all means, save the leaves, and use them.

A LEAK IN THE STABLE.—Not a leak in the roof, though that would be bad, but in the floor, which is worse, and many leaks too, leaks between every plank? Why not make the floor tight as possible, and have one gutter near the heels of the stock, to carry off the urine into a tank below, or into a heap of muck or other absorbent? Or, in place of this arrangement, have the floors well covered with litter, of straw, peat, tan-bark, saw-dust, plaster or any dry absorbent material. Any body can see that this would save nearly all the urine for useful purposes, and would make the air of the stables pleasant and healthful to the stock and their owners.

The importance of this economy will appear when we reflect that the liquid voidings of a cow range from nine hundred to twelve hundred gallons a year, according to the age and size of the animal; and of a horse, from eleven to fourteen hundred gallons; which are worth more, pound for pound, than the solid excre-

As we have often said, the Chinese, and Ger mans, and other European farmers, save this portion of their manure with far greater care than we do. They would as soon let silver slip through holes in their pockets, as this manure leak through holes in their stable floors .-Doubtless, American farmers waste millions of dollars annually in this way. Friendly reader how much to you waste?

Comforts for Cows .- Now that the cold season is setting in, let the cows, especially the milk-givers, have all needful attention. They should be well housed and well fed. The stables should be just moderately warm, well ventilated; clean, and provided with suitable bedding. Aside from the mere matter of food and drink, the animals should be kept comfortable. This matter can hardly be over estimatshould be straw and hay and corn-stalks; but to expect cows to give much milk on such lean fare, is folly. Favor them with messes of chopped roots, of cut straw, or stalks mixed with meal of some kind. A favorite 'mess' for cattle, with a friend of ours is this: Cut up hay, or straw, or stalks, in pieces not more hay, or straw, or stalks, in pieces not more than an inch, or inch and a half long, put the provender, in a tub or tight box, and pour oiling water upon it; then sprinkle on a little salt, and cover the whole with a little bran or salt, and cover the whole with a little bran or meal to keep the steam in. When cold, feed it in messes of a bushel at a time. Good as this is, it should be varied from time to time, for cows like variety, as well as men. Cows should be salted two or three times a week.—

In mild weather they should range by day in a commodious yard, protected on two sides, at least, by covered sheds. And this yard should have a pen-stock of running water, or a trough kept full from a good pump: the first is the kept full from a good pump: the first is the Advantages of Pulverizing the Soil -The effects of pulverization or stirring the soil

1. It gives free scope to the roots of vegetables; and they become more fibrous in a loose than in a hard soil, by which the mouths or pores become more numerous, and such food as is the soil has a better chance of being sought after and taken up by them.

2. It admits the atmospheric air to the spongioles of the roots-without which no plant can make a healthy growth.

3. It increases the capillary attraction or spongelike property of soils, by which their humidity is rendered more uniform; and in a hot season it increases the deposit of dew, and and admits it to the root.

4. It increases the temperature of the soil in the same spring, by admitting the warm air and tepid rain.

5. It increases the supply of organic food. The atmosphere contains carbonic acid ammonia and nitric acid, -all most powerful fertilizers and solvents. A loose soil attracts and condenses them. Rain and dew, also, contain them. And when the fertilizing gases are carried into the soil by rain water, they are absorbed and retained by the soil, for the use of plants. On the other hand, if the soil is hard, the water runs off the surface, and instead of leaving these gases in the soil, carries off some of the best portions of the soil, with it. Thus, what might be a benefit becomes an

6. By means of pulverization, a portion of the atmospheric air is buried in the soil, and it is supposed that ammonia and nitric acid are formed by the mutual decomposition of this and the moisture of the soil-heat also being evolved by the changes.

7. Pulverization of the surface of soils serves to retain the moisture in the subsoil, and the prevent it from being penetrated by heat from a warmer, as well as from radiating its heat to a colder, atmosphere than itself. The effects are produced by the porosity of the pulverized stratum, which acts a mulch, especially on heavy soils.

8. Pulverization, also, as the combined effect of several of the preceding causes of all of several of the preceding causes of the control of several of the preceding causes of the control of several of the preceding causes of the control of several of the preceding causes of the control of the control of the preceding causes of the control 7. As John Bull is, he would be a better farmer.

No one knows until he has seen it, how careful English and European farmers and gardeners are of everything which can be converted into manure. And this is one ground of their superiority in agriculture.

Now, let us repeat what we have often said that few thing are more valuable for fertilizing purposes than decayed leaves. They are them up, now, this very month of November, before they are covered by the snow. They

DOUBLE THREADED

FAMILY SEWING MACHINE

The Revolving Looper is a late improvement on Raymond's Latest Improved.) Warranted the best in the world for Family Use! Price Within the Reach of Every Family. PRICE $35.

Hemmer, Feller, Binder & Tucking guage, combined, $5.

THE reputation of this Machine is now fully established as the most reliable Machine in the market for family use, and has been attested too by thousands of the most respectable families in the Union.

This Machine makes the celebrated "Double Lock Stitch," the only one made by machinery that meets all the requirements of Family Sewing. Each stitch is tied twice, so that every one is securely fastened and wholly independent of all the other stitches for strength, so that if the seam is cut or every fourth stitch broken, the sewindependent of all the other stitches for strength, so that if the seam is cut or every fourth stitch broken, the sewing must hold good while the fabric will wear. The machinery which makes this stitch is a marvel of simplicity, requiring no mechanical skill to manage it, nor does it require adjustment more than the mere change of thread and needles to adopt it to the character of the work to be sewed—coarse or fine as the case may be. It will sew gauze laces, and all varieties and kinds of fabrics between and including heavy beaver cloth, without changing either needles or thread equally well, and return to either variety of work with perfect satisfaction. No other Machine ever offered to the public will do as much.

A perfect Sewing Machine, one making a stitch answering all the requirements of the family, sewing coarse and fine work equally well, was the great desideratum of the home circle, previous to the invention of EDWIN CLARK'S REVOLVING LOOPER. The stitch is beautiful, trong, and elastic, and will not rip in wear or in accidental breaking a thread.

Every Machine is warranted to give satisfaction or the money refunded. We have a large list of references but will give the
