A Railway Train Saved Supernaturally The Xenia (Ohio) News is publishing a series of reminiscences by an engineer. In No. 24 of his series the writer gives the following rather startling incident: "I was running a night express train, and had a train of ten cars PRINTS. -eight passenger and two baggage cars-and all well loaded. I was behind time, and was very anxious to make a certain point ; therefore I was using every exertion, and putting the engine to the utmost speeed of which she was capable. I wason a section of the road nsually considered the best running ground on most of it, when a conviction struck me that I must stop. A something told me that I must stop if I would save life. I looked back at my train; it was all right. I strained my eyes and peered into the darkness, and could see no signal of danger nor anything betokening danger, and there I could see five miles in the daytime. I listened to the working of my engine, tried the water, looked at the scales, and all was right. I tried to laugh myself out of what I then considered a childish fear, but, like Banquo's ghost, it would not down at my bidding, but grew stronger in its hold upon me. I thought of the ridicule I would have heaped upon me if I did stop; but it was all of no avail. The conviction—for by this time it had ripened into a conviction—that I must stop, grew stronger, and I resolved to stop .-Accordingly, I came to a dead halt, got off, and went ahead a little way, without saying to anybody what was the matter. I had a lamp in my hand, and had gone about sixty feet, when I saw what convinced me that premoni tions are sometimes possible. I dropped the lantern from my nerveless grasp, and sat down on the track, utterly unable to stand, for there was a switch, the thought of which had never entered my mind, as it had never been used since I had been on the road, and was known to be spiked, but which was now open to lead me off the track. This switch led off into a stone quarry, from which stone for bridge purposes had been quarried, and the switch left there, in case stone should be needed at any time; but it was always kept locked, and the switch rail spiked. Yet here it was wide open, and had I not obeyed my premonition-warning-call it what you will-I should have run into it. At the end of the track, only about ten rods along, my engine and train moving at the rate of forty miles per hour, would have came into collision with a solid wall of rock, eighteen feet high. The consequences had I done so, can neither be imagined or described; but they could, by no possibility, have been otherwise than fatally horrid. This is my experience in getting warnings from a source that I know not and cannot divine. It is a mystery to me- a mystery for which I am vhey thankful, however, although I dare not attempt to explain it or say whence it

A story is told of Dick, a darkey in Kentucky, who was a notorious thief, so vicious in this respect that all the thefts in the neighborhoods were charged to him; on one occasion, Mr. Jones, a neighbor of Dick,s master, called and said that Dick must be sold out of that part of the country, for he had stolen all his (Mr. Jones') turkeys. Dick's master could not think so. The two, however, went into the field where Dick was at work, and accused him of the theft.

"You stole Mr, Jones' turkeys," said the

"No I didn't massy," responded Dick. The master persisted.
"Well," at length said Dick," I'll tell you massy, I didn,t steal dem turkeys, but last hight when I went across Mr. Jones, pasture I saw one of our rails on de fence, so I brought home de rail, and confound it when I come to look, dare was nine turkeys on de rail!"

WE HAVE the following good one from an anthentic source: A sub-committee of a school board not a thousand miles from this city, were examining a class in a primary school. One of the committe undertook to sharpen their wits by propounding the following question:

"If I had a mince pie, and should give two twelfths to Isaac, two twelfths to Harry, and two twelfths to John, and keep half the pie myself, what would there be left ?" There was profound study among the scholars, but finally one lad held up his hand as a signal that he was ready to give an answer. "Well, sir, what would be left. Speak loud?"

The committee man turned red, while the other member roared aloud. That boy was excused from answering any more questions.

The brightest boy of the class examined for admissian to the Annapolis Naval Academy, was a little fellow from Texas, about fifteen years of age, who had been three years seting type in a newspaper office, and had studied mathematics and arithmatic with a dip candle in the garlet of a log cabin at night. He was poorly clad when he reached Annapolis, and on being asked how he obtained the means to reach Annapolis, replied that be worked for it and that his money falling short on the route had got some small jobs of typesetting in New Orleans and other points of his jonrney. If he should not be admited he expected to work his way home again. He is now to be seen on board the Constitution in his naval uniform, with his gilt buttons and anchor, looking as bright aed hopeful as if anchor, looking as bright aed hopeful as if he antcipated becoming a Commodore.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT MINORITY PRESIDENTS .-The democratic papers are deriving what comfort they can from the reflection that Lincoln is a minority President-in other words that he has not a majority of the whole vote polled. Now, Mr. Lincoln has in round numbers, 2,000,000 votes, and that is more than any President before him ever got; and very few of our Presidents, within the last 40 years, have had a majority of the popular vote .-Jackson and Harrison were about the only exceptions. There was a majority of 36,000 against John Quincy Adams in 1824, and James K. Polk was in a minority of 30,000 in 1844, as was Van Buren in 1836. The popular majority against Gen. Taylor was 151,708 and the majority against Buchanan in 1856 was 377,620.

One evening, we are told, after a weary march through the desert, Mohammed was camping with his followers, and overherd one of them saying," I will loose my camel and commit it to God;" on which Mohammed took it up. "Friend tie thy camel, and conmit it to God"-that is, do whatever is thine to do, and leave the issue with God.
