We have received quite a number of replies to the above question, a few extracts from which will be interresting :

"Taking all things into consideration." says E. P. Barnes, of Pharsalia, N., Y., "I think fall planting the best. The planter then has more time to prepare his land, and get it in good condition for setting the trees. Fall planting, too gives the soil a chance to settle around the roots, so that the trees are at home and ready for growing, as soon as the warm weather comes, in the spring."

A well known writer of Massachusetts takes a different view of the matter. He prefers spring planting :

"After severing the trees in autumn from the vital heat of the earth, they are exposed to the severity of winter before having time to recover it again by summer growth. To an extent, the sap circulates in trees in the winter; and it has been shown that the tem perature of their central wood never runs so high or so low as the surrounding air, but keeps nearly within the range of 40 and 60 degrees Fah. Hence trees, when planted in likely to be winter killed than when planted in the spring as they are deprived of the warmth of their mother earth. As a general rule, the spring is undoubtedly the safest time to plant all trees; though some fruit trees will live in latitude 42 when set in the will live in latitude 42 when set in the sale of D. E. LENT'S celebrated Barometers, which every farmer should always have. As a general rule, the spring is undoubtedly the safest time to fall, as every one well knows. Apple trees are of this class. But those trees whose wood is spungy and formed rapidly, grow late, or have been much forced, are unsafe planted in the autumn, as the violence of transportation sud dealy cuts them off(as before hinted) from warmth, particularly necessary for their pre-Shearing a lamb in December would not be so impolitic. Peach and apri-cot trees very rarely live when set in au tumn ; cherry trees may possibly, and some STIMULATING ONCUENT, times pear trees do tolerably well. But since I have lost several valuable ones of the latter, when thus planted, from one place to another in my garden, I dare not venture only on the poorest; and then am careful to get up as much soil with the roots as possible. Set in the spring, I have never lost a tree of any kind, except eight plum trees, bought at auc- sician of London, and is warranted to bring out a thick tion, whose death I do not regret."

more or less mutilated, and the tree enfeebled; and when set out in the fall, less able to with stand the rigors of winter, more liable to heave out with the frost, and to be blown down by the wind. It is sometimes said, by fall setting, the trees becomes more firm and the earth settled about the roots, and consequently will start earlier in the spring. But the same end may be obtained by early spring planting, before the heavy rain, or by watering at the time of planting."

W. Alxander of Michigan, prefers to plant in the fall, especially when the trees have to be obtained from a distant nursery.

C. G. Brown, of Wisconsin, also advocates fall planting. Sometimes trees planted in the fall are injured by the "harder freezing of the ground where it has been disturbed but this difficulty may be easily remedied by covering the roots with a greater depth of earth than it is intended shall remain upon them." - Genesce Farmer.

On Rearing Calves.

E. Maynard, of Jefferson Co., N. Y., writes : "My manner of rearing calves is this : Take them from the cow as soon as the milk is good, and learn them to drink on new milk. I would not offer then their first mess in less than twelve or eighteen hours after being taken from the cow. Say remove them the middle of the afternoon, and offer the messes the next morning. Back them into a corner to prevent their wheeling about, get astride the neck, and with a boy to hold the dish, put the left hand on the top of the head, and with a finger in his mouth, put his nose gently into the milk, and if he has sense enough to be worth raising, he will 'eat when he is hungry. When he sacks the finger readily, draw it gently from his mouth, and leave it resting against his nose. In this way he will soon learn to drink without anything in his mouth.

One error that many persons fall into in feeding skimmed milk is, they feed to much while the calf is young. Two or three quarts twice a day is quite plenty for several weeks; increase the quanity as he gets older. Two gallons at a mess when he is three months old will do him no harm, and if he gets it three times a day at four months, all the better.

Many persons wean their calves by midsummer; I would feed them as long as the cows gave milk. Good calves and good pigs seldom grow well together. I never knew a man to get a premium on both at the same

"Calves should be kept warm and dry the first winter, and fed on good hay, with a little bran or shorts, and dealt with gently.

A gentleman in this state, who has had considerable experience in rearing calves, re-

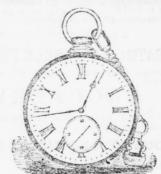

"There are two very good ways of raising calves, besides letting them run with the cow, which is seldom done by calf-raisers. One way is to let the calf run with the cow until three or four days old, then put it in a yard, and feed it new milk for three or four weeks, ated. I have also on hand the Largest Stock and Greatwhen it may be fed on part skimmed milk for a few days, when it may be fed entirely on skimmed milk, with the addition of a little meal or wheat shorts. After two or three weeks, the calves should be turned into a pasture by themselves, where they can get plenty of grass and clear water, but they should be fed with milk until three months old, when the milk may be left off, and only a little meal glassy and free from lice or disease.

"The other way is, to put the calf to skimmed milk after the first week, and continue feeding the same until three months old, letmed milk after the first week, and continue ting the east have what grass it will eat."

"To be, or not to be—hat is the question! Whether its notier in the mind to suffer The slings and arrows of ourngeous opposition, Or by taking up arms against a sea of printing ink, And opposing, end them."

THE proprietor of the Argus takes occasion in adverabout a "sort of a concern," which is hoping "to delude the public." As I have opened a Bindery on my own account, the inference is that if the public bring their binding to me, they are in no danger of being defrauded.
For two years I have worked for Mr. Parsoss, and he has taken great pains to satisfy the public lows the "best Binder in America," as the columns of the Argus will testify. Has he been all that time "deluding the publie." If I have been engaged in a frand, he has been th principal. But I refer to my work during that time a evidence that there has been no frand practiced.
Having served a long apprenticeship at the Bindery business, I have resumed business here on my own account, as I know of nothing which prevents me from following a legitimate and bawful calling for my support.
I shall endeavor by good work and attention to my business to give public satisfaction.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

A COMPOUND REMEDY, designed to be the most effectual Altera are that can be made. It is a concentrated extract of Para Sarsaparilla, so combined with other substances of still greater alterative power as to afford an effective antidote for the diseases Sarsaparilla is reputed to cure. It is believed that such a remedy is wanted by those who suffer from Strumous complaints, and that one which will accomplish their cure must prove of immense service to this large class of our afficted fellow-citizens. How completely this compound will do it has been proven by experiment on many of the worst cases to be found of the following complaints;

Scrofula and Scrofulous Complaints; Edutions and Eruptive Diseases, Ulcores, Pimples, Blotches, Tembers, Salt Rreim, Scald Head, Syphilis and Syphilis and the whole class of complaints arising from Indications. Exystplaas, Rose on St. Anthony's Pirk, and indeed the whole class of complaints arising from Influence of the compound will be found a great promoter of health, when taken in the spring, to expel the foul humors which fester in the blood at that season of the year. By the timely expulsion of them many rankting disorders are nipped in the bud. Multitudes can, by the aid of this remedy, spare themselves from the endurance of eruptions and ulcerous sores, through which the system will strive to rid itself of corruptions, if not assisted to do this through the natural channels of the body by an alterative medicine. Cleanse out the vitiated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, cruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it is obstracted and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when you find it is obstracted and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when you find it is obstracted and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when you find it is obstracted and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when you find it is obstracted and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when you find it is obstracted and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when you find it is obs

the drug gione has not all the virtue that is claimed for it, but more because many preparations, pretending to be concentrated extracts of it, contain but little of the virtue of Sarsaparilla, or anything else.

Puring late years the public have been misled by large bottles, pretending to give a quart of Extract of Sarsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any Sarsaparilla, but often no curative properties whatever, Hence, bitter and painful disappointment has tollowed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name itself is justly despised, and has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and included to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name ciously taken according to directions on the bottle.
