Agricultural Department.

Calendar of Operations for August, 1861.

Farm .--- The first work of the month in this latitude will be to secure the remainder of the hay and grain crops, if any encut. Each day's delay after these have attained their proper degree of ripeness, causes loss in quality and quantity, by the shelling and waste of the grain, and the hardening of the fiber of grass. The interval between harvesting and prepar ing for Fall sowing affords a favorable opportunity for draining, drawing out muck, clearing up hedge rows, repairing buildings, mending roads, and other miscellaneous work which has been deferred because of other pressing operations. Now is the time to purchase additional stock for Fall feeding and fattening, if there be not enough on the farm to profitably use up the grass, grain and fodder produced. It is usually more profitable to consume raw products upon the farm, than to sell them as they come from the field. The manure, if properly cared for, will keep the land from deteriorating, and grain is more readily transported and as readily sold in the form of beef, mutton and pork.

Barns and Sheds need ample ventilation after being filled with hay and grain. Leave the large doors open in fine weather. Keep the fowls from laying upon the hay, or trespassing on the grain mows. Thresh and clean all scatterings. Examine the roofs for leaks, and repair if necessary. Painting is better deferred until cooler weather.

Butter-Observe directions given last month. Where a large quantity is sent to market, it would pay to cool it well in the ice house and pack the tubs or pails in large boxes, and surround them with fresh cut grass, which would preserve the buttor from softening by the heat.

Cattle-It is poor economy to keep young stock or those intended for Fall fattening upon short pastures. Plenty of grass now will be a saving of grain hereafter. Milch cows also need generous fare ; feed them from the soiling patch, if one was sown-or if necessary allow a daily treat of brau or shorts mixed with water and partly fermented.

Coru-The roots should not be disturbed now by plowing. If weeds are troublesome, pull them by hand, or hoe the surface lightly. Authorities are divided as to the propriety of removing the suckers. It would seem that the grain would be better if the strength of the plant were directed there by removing super-fluons growth of stalks. Experiments are needed to determine the truth in the matter.

Fallows or "Summer Fallows" should not be allowed to grow and ripen weeds whose seeds will be scattered in the soil. The harrow will generally destroy those growing, but a few will still be left, unless pulled or cut by hand. Remember that weeds produce seeds by the thousand each.

Fences-Remove all hedge-rows of briers, bushes and weeds. Lay new lines of wall where needed. Keep all in good repair.

Gleaning-Many bushels of grain will be saved by passing over the fields with the horserake after the grain is gathered.

Grain-Thresh as early as can be done con veniently; commence with the stacks. It is usually better to sell as soon as the market is fairly fixed. Use all that can be turned to account in fattening stock.

Hay-Cut any remaining until now. Gather coarse wild grasses for bedding. Secure salt marsh hay and sedge, during the low tides of August, and remove to safe quarters. Surround stacks with good fences to keep cattle from wasting.

Horses-Confine them in well ventilated stables during the heat of the day, and turn them in the pasture on warm nights. Breeding mares should not be overheated while suckling their foals. Accustom colts to be handled while young.

Insurance-Keep barns and other out-buildings insured, as well as the dwelling. Large accumulations of hay or grain send up a column of vapor which attracts lightning and exposes them to be destroyed, unless protected by FASHIONABLE & DESIRABLE STOCK,

Manure--Turn every source for making manure to account. Mow swales, gather roadside weeds, burn brush heaps, clear out privies, sinks, and sheds, etc., and have a large supply in readiness before tall plowing commences.

Meadows-Remove bushes, rocks, and other obstructions from mowing lands. Top dress new mown lands with fine compost, to protect the roots from scorching, and quicken the young growth. Keep stock from meadows until the grass is three or four inches high, and do not allow it to be eaten off very close.

Millet or Hungarian Grass-Cut before the seed ripens, if intended for hay.

Oats-Cut, as eoon as sufficiently ripe Cure the straw carefully : it is valuable for feeding.

Pastures-Occasionally scatter cattle droppings with a maul. Mow weeds frequently, allow none to ripen seed. Sow salt about their roots, to attract the cattle and sheep, and pre vent the young shoots springing up. Suffer no fields to be fed too closely.

Potatoes-Early sorts may be harvested as soon as matured and a crop of quick growing tarnips or late cabbages put in their place.

Poultry-Allow them to glean the grain fields after harvest. If confined to the yard, give plenty of water and occasionally a little animal food, to stimulate them to lay. Fatten chickens and ducks for market early ; it takes less grain in warm weather, and the prices are more remunerative.

Root Crops-Thin turnips sown last month. Keep the ground light and free from weeds by frequent use of the cultivator and hoe.

Rye-Harvest, any remaining. Glean the fields with the horse rake, and thresh out the scatterings for grinding and feeding to hogs. Select the best growth for seed, and thresh with a flail before wanted for sowing.

Sheep-Separate males from the ewes and give the lambs a rich pasture by themselves or with the yearlings. Keep a few older sheep with them as leaders of the flock. Examine the adders of ewes while weaning their lambs and draw the milk occasionally if necessary to prevent their becoming caked. Salt freely, and apply tar to their noses to repel the fly.

Swine-Keep them growing by liberal feed ing. Commence fattening. Early pork is usually in demand, and it costs less to make it .-Feed with green food frequently. Unthreshed pea vines are well relished, and are wholesome diet.

Winter Grain-Prepare grounds, to be sown early next month. It will succeed on sod ground but preference is generally given to cultivate it after oats, or an early hoed crop, as potatces.

THE proprietor of the Argus takes occasion in adver-tisting his Bindery to indulge in an uncalled for fling about a "sort of a concern," which is hoping "to delude the public." As I have opened a Bindery on my own ac-count, the inference is that if the public bring their binding to me, they are in no danger of being defranded.
