A correspodent of the Northwestern Far mer savs : "There is a difference of opinion with regard to the best breed of hogs—not so much, we think, with regard to the worst. Aud though some may think that 'a full corn crib s the best breed,' yet we respectfully beg leave to differ. "Your humble sevant last year had a present of two pigs of extra breed'—and wishing to get a stock of the 'extra breed,' took particularly good care of them They grew 'like ill weeds,' as a neighbor told me—and of different sizes and styles and in fact almost any kind so they did—precisely—long, tall, and thin, of Castings or Machinery in common use. like ill weeds,' as a neighbor told me-and and fast withal. They progressed—princi-pally in bones—finally, till this spring, when, having some scattered grain in the stack yard, we turned them into it-and presto! in a few days one pig, or hog, rather, had eaten eight ducks, and how many chickens we couldn't say, as we didn't keep count. Feeling perfectly staisfied that they were an 'extra breed,' we built a pen, not quite a mile from the house, and forthwith immured the carniovrous animal for the remainder of his natural life-not wishing to trust him with our other hogs, knowing that 'evil communications, eet.' Now, my private opinion is, that these belong to the breed that got an evil spirit into them, and then ran down a steep hill, into a certain lake, where most of them were drowned; though some of them must have escaped, else how came they here?

"The moral is, that a good breed is even better than a full crib-for these hogs (and I know there are plenty more like them) got all the corn and slop they could dispose of. And instead of thriving, as decent porkers should, they are little less than skin and bone. They will doubtless be large hogs when they get fat-the date of which fact is rather mytho-

"Now, why will farmers keep such laud sharks? Any farmer can take a good suffolk, or Chester White hog, and raise at least double the amount of much better pork, with the same quantity of feed. It wouldn't be a bad idea, I think, if the legislature would of fer a bounty, of say two dollars a head for the slaughter of the long-legged, long-nosed breed—three, four, and five rowed hogs, as a neighbor calls them; 'because,' says he, 'they can stand outside the fence, and reach their noses, or shouts, to the third, fourth, and fifth row of potatoes.' We feel satisfied that the time will come when they will be looked upon as a curiosity."

CORNSTALKS, WHEAT BRAN, &c .- Old Hurricane says, "there is a great evil and mistake in feeding too much coarse material to ani-mals." If he means musty straw, or mouldy, frost bitten cornstalks, such as farmers had last fall, he is right. But we have a farmer here who keeps nearly one hundred equinines, great and small, and many blood bovines, entirely on chopped cornstalks, trhough the winter months, adding a little corn meal, and I have seen his heifers leave hay to eat the finely cut cornstalks without meal. But all the stalks are cut up as soon as the corn was glazed, put in small stocks at first, and then two or three of these were bound together.

Cut up your garden sweet corn as soon as the ears are licked, and throw the half dry stalks in the hay mow. Your cow in the win-ter will eat such stalks, butts and all, before she will touch a mouthful of late cut timothy hay. 'Tis true that straw and late cut stalks are poor in nutriment, compared with early hay cured in cock with its juices intact; but in winter coarse material will supply carbon to support animal heat and respiration as well as fine. How often you hear a farmer say, " my cattle won't touch straw until cold weather sets in," then if they don't have straw, they have more hay or suffer.

Hampden contributes a capital article in the last Co. Gent., on the "Comparative Value of Wheat Bran and Indian Meal." I knew FASHIONABLE & DESIRABLE STOCK, a horse fancier who said that wheat bran was the best substitute for oats, as it was both oats and hay. Its analysis shows that it contains nized matter, (protein commuch more nitre pounds,) while it has much less oil and starch than than Indian Corn. But when bran or oats cannot be had, scalded Indian meal would be a safe substitute even for a working animal yet as a fast trotter would have more nerve, and perform better, if fed oats or even bran .-Country Gentleman.

PICKLINH RIPE CUCUMBERS—GOOD.—At our request, Mrs. S. Gooding, Niagara Co., N. Y. furnishes for the Agriculturist the following directions for a preparation of cucum-bers, which is pronounced extra good by several of our acquaintances who have tried them: Take ripe cucumbers, when yellow but not soft : pare and remove seeds ; cut lengthwise into quarters, or if they are very large, cut into pieces smaller than quarters; put into a kettle with just water enough to cover them, adding a handful of salt, or enough to make a weak brine; boil until cooked through, but not soft, (a little alumn added will harden the pickles;) take out and drain well from the brine; place them in stoneware or glass jars, and cover with a syrup made by boiling a quart of vinegar with four pounds of sugar, skimming it clear .-

to a green walnut, or boiled bass wood chips. (Green walnut, or butternuts, by the way, do make good catchup as well as good pickles.) An excellent housekeeper of our acquaintance furnishes for the Agriculturist the latest recepe for catchup, said to be very good; to wit: Take green cumcumbers; pare and chop very fine; sprinkle on sait, and let them stand an hour or so; put into a strong cloth, and press out all the liquid possible ; put the fine pieces remaining into a bottle, and add vinegar, black pepper, and salt. Cork tightly and set aside for use. Small bottles are preferable, so that only a small quantity need be opened at a time, as it molds after much exposure to the air .- Agriculturist.

Towanda, Feb. 22. 1861. CAUTION.

"To be, or not to be— hat is the question! Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer The slings and arrows of outrageous opposition, Or by taking up arms against a sea of printing ink, And opposing, end them."

And opposing, end them."

THE proprietor of the Argus takes occasion in advertising his Bindery to include in an uncalled for fling about a "sort of a concern," which is hoping "to delude the public." As I have opened a Bindery on my own account, the inference is that if the public bring their binding to me, they are in no danger of being defrauded. For two years I have worked for Mr. Parsons, and he has taken great pains to satisfy the public I was the "best Binder in America," as the columns of the Argus wil testify. Has he been all that time "deluding the public?" If I have been engaged in a fraud, he has been th principal. But I refer to my work during that time a evidence that there has been no fraud practiced.

Having served a long apprenticeship at the Bindery business, I have resumed business here on my own account, as I know of nothing which prevents me from following a legitimate and bawfal calling for my support.—I shall endeavor by good work and attention to my business to give public satisfaction.

A COMPOUND REMEDY, designed to be the most offectual Allerative that can be made. It is a concentrated extract of Fara Sarasparilla, so combined with other substances of still greater alterative power as to afford an effective antidote for the diseases Sarasparilla is required to cure. It is believed that such a remedy is wanted by those who suffer from Strumons compliants, and that one which will accomplish their cure must prove of immense service to this large class of our afflicted fellows and the such as the content of the Spring AND SUMMER CLOTHING, at JOHN SHLAMS Elmina Branch Clothing Store. it. but more because many preparations, pretending to be concentrated extracts of it, contain but little of the virtue of Sarsaparilla, or anything else.

During late years the public have been misled by large bottles, pretending to give a quart of Extract of Sarsaparilla for one collar. Most of these have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any Sarsaparilla, but often no curative properties whatever. Hence, bitter and painful disappointment has tollowed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name itself is justly despised, and has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and intend to snpply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of oblequy which rests upon it. And we think we have ground for believing it has virtues which are irresistible by the ordinary run of the diseases it is intended to cure. In order to secure their complete eradication from the system, the remedy should be judiciously taken according to directions on the bottle.
