

or appropriated as military spoil. No property in the North would be spared from the hands of the rebels, and their rapine would be detested under the laws of war. While the loyal States thus have all their property and possessions at stake, are the insurgent rebels to carry on warfare against the government in peace and security to their own property?

Reason and justice and self preservation forbid that such should be the policy of this Government, but demand, on the contrary, that, being forced by traitors and rebels to the extremity of war, all the rights and power of war should be exercised to bring it to a speedy end.

Those who make war against the Government justly forfeit all rights of property, privilege, or security, derived from the Constitution and laws, against which they are in armed rebellion; and as the labor and service of their slaves constitute the chief property of the rebels, such property should share the common fate of war to which they have devoted the property of loyal citizens.

While it is plain that the slave property of the South is justly subjected to all the consequences of the rebellious war, and that the Government would be untrue to its trust in not employing all the rights and powers of war to bring it to a speedy close, the details of the plan for doing so, like all other military measures, must, in a great degree, be left to be determined by particular exigencies. The disposition of other property belonging to the rebels that becomes subject to our arms is governed by the circumstances of the case. The Government has no power to hold slaves, none to retain a slave of his liberty, or to exact his service. It has a right, however, to use the voluntary service of slaves liberated by war from their rebel masters, like any other property of the rebels, in whatever mood may be most efficient for the defense of the Government, the prosecution of the war, and the suppression of the rebellion. It is clearly a right of the Government to arms slaves when it may become necessary as it is to use gunpowder taken from the enemy. Whether it is expedient to do so is purely a military question. The right is unquestionable by the laws of war. The expediency must be determined by circumstances, keeping in view, the great object of overcoming the rebels, re-establishing the laws, and restoring peace to the nation.

It is vain and idle for the Government to carry on this war, or hope to maintain its existence against rebellious force, without employing all the rights and powers of war. As has been said, the right to deprive the rebels of their property in slaves and slave labor, is as clear and absolute, as the right to take forage from the field, or cotton from the warehouse, or powder and arms from the magazine. To leave the enemy in the possession of such property as forage and cotton and military stores, and the means of constantly reproducing them, would be madness. It is, therefore, equal madness to leave them in peaceful and secure possession of slave property, more valuable and efficient to them for war, than forage, cotton, and military stores. Such policy would be national suicide. What to do with that species of property, is a question that time and circumstance will solve, and need not be anticipated further than to repeat that they cannot be held by the Government as slaves. It would be useless to keep them as prisoners of war; and self-preservation, the highest duty of a Government, or of individuals, demands that they should be disposed of or employed in the most effective manner that will tend most speedily to suppress the insurrection and restore the authority of the Government. If it shall be found that the men who have been held by the rebels as slaves are capable of bearing arms and performing efficient military service, it is the right, and may become the duty, of the Government to arm and equip them, and employ their services against the rebels, under proper military regulation, discipline, and command.

But in whatever manner they may be used by the Government, it is plain that, once liberated by the rebellious act of their masters, they should never again be restored to bondage. By the master's treason and rebellion he forfeits all right to the labor and service of his slave; and the slave of the rebellious master, by his service to the Government, becomes justly entitled to freedom and protection.

The disposition to be made of the slaves of rebels, after the close of the war, can be safely left to the wisdom and patriotism of Congress. The Representatives of the People will unquestionably secure to the loyal slaveholders every right to which they are entitled under the Constitution of the country.

SIMON CAMERON, Sec'y of War.
To the President.

[After the Report of the Secretary of War had been sent to the newspapers, a modification was made, it is said, by the President.—The concluding portion of the original report commencing at the words "It has become a grave question for determination what shall be done with the slaves," was erased and the following paragraph substituted:—

"It is already a grave question what shall be done by the slaves who are abandoned by their owners on the advance of our troops into southern territory, as at Beaufort District, in South Carolina. The number left within our control at that point is very considerable, and similar cases will probably occur. What shall be done with them? Can we afford to send them forward to their masters, to be by them armed against us; withheld from the enemy, it lessens his military resources, and withholding them has no tendency to induce the horrors of insurrection even in the rebel communities. They constitute a military resource, and, being such, that they should not be turned over to the enemy is too plain to discuss.—Why deprive him of supplies by a blockade, and voluntarily give him men to produce supplies? The disposition to be made of the slaves of rebels after the close of the war can be safely left to the wisdom and patriotism of Congress. The representatives of the people will, unquestionably, secure to the loyal slaveholders every right to which they are entitled under the Constitution of the country."
SIMON CAMERON,
Sec'y of War.

SPECIAL NOTICE.
IN ACCORDANCE WITH WHAT seems to be the necessities of the times, and for my own business security, I have concluded to sell Goods FOR READY PAY!
I believe I have as good credit-customers as any one, and most of them prompt paying ones, but future prosperity in business I think requires that Groceries and Provisions should be sold for cash.
I hope, by attention to business, and an earnest desire to please, to still retain all of my old patrons.
Those who are indebted to me will oblige me by settling up at once.

CAUTION.
"To be, or not to be, but is the question! Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer The slings and arrows of outrageous opposition, Or by taking up arms against a sea of printing ink, And opposing them?"
The proprietor of the Argus takes occasion in advertising his Bindery to indulge in an uncalculated fling about a "sort of a concern," which is hoping "to delude the public." As I have opened a Bindery on my own account, the inference is that the public, by their blindfolding me, they are in no danger of being deceived. For two years I have worked for Mr. PARSONS, and he has taken great pains to satisfy the public I was the "best Bindery in America," as the columns of the Argus will testify. Has he been all that time "deluding the public?" If I have been engaged in a fraud, he has been the principal. But I refer to my work during that time as evidence that there has been no fraud practiced.
Having served a long apprenticeship at the Bindery business, I have resumed business here on my own account. As I know of nothing which prevents me from following a legitimate and lawful calling for my support, I shall endeavor by good work and attention to my business to give public satisfaction.

Below J. Kingsberg's store, Main st.

THE subscriber would respectfully tender his sincere thanks to the public for the very liberal patronage extended to him, and solicits a continuance of the same. He begs to assure that he intends to keep on hand a large and choice selection of MEATS of all kinds, the best of the country, and which he intends to sell at very small profits, either by the side, quarter or pound. A quantity of first quality of SALT PORK, packed by myself, cheap, by the barrel or pound. Cattle will be promptly delivered, at any place within the corporation.
Towanda, August 12, 1859. J. McCABE.

RAIL ROAD HOTEL
Near the Barclay Railroad terminus.
TOWANDA, PENNA.

T. R. JORDAN respectfully informs the public that he has leased the well known Hotel formerly occupied by M. T. Cameron, in the lower part of the borough of Towanda, which has been re-fitted and thoroughly furnished. He invites the patronage of the public with every confidence that his guests will be promptly delivered, at any place within the corporation.
No pains or expense will be spared to deserve the patronage of the public—and the charges will be reasonable.
Towanda, April 1, 1861.
