Country Gentleman calls attention : 1. Allowing weeds, such as thistles, docks, stramonium, poison, hemlock, etc., to grow along the highway.

2. Allowing elders, burdocks and nettles to grow along fences, and Canada thistles, foxtail, pig weed, rag weed, etc., to grow among and sometimes eclipse crops.

3. To plow, harrow, and seed or plant, land so wet that year after year it yields scarcely enough to pay tillage.

4. To allow boards to become knocked off board fences, and clapboards from barns; and the hinges of gates to become so deranged that they must be laboriously dragged over the ground in opening and shutting, quickly wearing them out.

5. To pile manure against the side of the barn until it rots and mires the cattle, instead of spreading it for crops, and leaving a neat, clean vard.

6. To admit pigs to door-yards to root up the grass, and help themselves to swill at the kitchen door.

7. To throw kitchen slops into a puddle at the back door. 8. To build barns on the public road, thus making a barn yard of the highway. 9. To scatter implements, such as plows, harrows, rollers, etc., about the barn-yard or along the sides of the road, exposed to all sorts of weather.

10. To throw rubbish, brush, etc., into the public road, to the offence of every traveler who has any appreciation of decency, instead of destroying or converting these materials into manure.

11. Badly built board fences, haif lifted by frost out of the ground, and leaning half over -occasioned by a shallow and careless setting of the posts, and by not draining the holes. 12. Cornfields with a dense undergrowth of weeds, and potatos with a dense overgrowth of the same. 13. Hedges and trees planted and allowed to grow up with grass, and consequently never being good for anything-iastead of giving them good and broad cultivation. Allowing cows and other animals to run in the streets, to pilfer from neighbors, and dry up by being frequently lost at milking

LIME ON POYE AND WHEAT .- A correspondent asks us, " Why a field put down first to wheat and then to clover, and limed, is gener-'ally successful; while with first rye and then clover, and limed, it frequently fails ?"

It is well known that, while wheat may flourish on limestone soils, rye is more frequently refused; still, on the application of progressed lime, such as that produced by the burning of shells, the rye crop is more likely to succeed than when limed with ordinary limestone of its immediate district. Rye always succeeds well the second year after liming, showing that salts of lime, rather than lime alone, are its requisites. When sufficient time has elapsed after the application of a coating of lime for all the combinations to occur with the lime with other constituents, so as to form a series of salts, the rye is more benefitted, while the wheat contains so large a proportion of lime in THE CHEAPEST AND BEST FAMILY AND GENERAL NEWSPAthe composition of its ash, that it is enabled to appropriate, it more directly and in a more primitive shape. The stubble of wheat is a better preparative for clover than that of rye, large portions of sulphur and its compounds being found in the stubble of wheat, and such compounds being more friendly to growth of

When wounds in the bark of fruit trees occur, the ragged portions of the bark around the edge of the wound should be cleanly and regularly cut, when the edges of the exposed portion of wood may be coated with a covering of Canada balsom. This will protect the bark from the oxdizing influences of the atmosphere, and at the same time permit the new growth to occur about the edges, so as to prevent further stripping of the bark. Some cultivators prefer the use of one ounce of gum shellac, dissolved in one quart of alcohol at MODERATION, PATRIOTISM AND COMMON SENSE 95 per cent strength. No larger portion of shellac should ever be used, as a thick coating is sure to crack and peel off instead of remaining firm to the surface. A thin varnish of shellac may also be used on the ends of branches when freshly trimmed. The alcohol evaporates immediately, leaving a thin coating of shellac, which becomes dry and firmly attached to the wood before any exudation of san can occur.

FARMER'S ECONOMY .- Some farmers talk a great deal about economy. I know one who will go three miles out of his way, over a bad road, to save a few cents at the toll gate. Another, who is so economical of blacksmith's expenses, that instead of getting a tire set at the right time, will make it do a weak or two longer, and some dark night may be found groping his way home with three wheels and a rail to his wagon, while a horse or two are unable to leave the stable on account of lameness, resulting from a misunderstanding of the word economy, as applied to the shoeing of horses. Many a man is so economical in matter of boards for barns, stables and sheds, that he builds them every year of corn or hay. These may be considered strange building material, but what I state is true. If an animal is exposed to the storms and colds of winter, it will take one-half of the food it consumes to keep it as warm as it would natuarally in a good keep it along. So the half of the grain and hay is used for making a stable—expensive building materials, but this is the economy, comfortable stable; the other half will just however, that I would not recommend, nor that which will pay heavy war expenses.-Ru rat New Yorker.

AMERICAN PLOWS .- A correspondent of the London Mark Lane Express says: "The Americans have driven our plow makers out Australian, Indian and coloneal markets, owing to their lighter and cheaper articles. Unless our makers bestir themselves here, by using steel instead of heavy castings, they will be likely to be "beaten on their own ground."

The Minnesota Farmer and Gardner says: The peaches grown about St. Paul are all protected in the winter by triming the branches near the ground and covering them in the fall, the same as we do here half hardy grapes, raspberries, &c. It is the best possible way to preserve them from the severities of the can be sold for CASH, at

CAUTION.

"To be, or not to be— hat is the question! Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer The slings and arrows of outrageous opposition, Or by taking up arms against a sea of printing ink, And opposing, end them."

And opposing, end them."

THE proprietor of the Argus takes occasion in advertising his Bindery to indulge in an uncalled for fling about a "sort of a concern," which is hoping "to delude the public." As I have opened a Bindery on my own account, the inference is that if the public bring their binding to me, they are in no danger of being defrauded. For two years I have worked for Mr. Parsons, and he has taken great pains t satisfy the public I was the "best Binder in America," as the columns of the Argus wil testify. Has he been all that time "deluding the public?" If I have been engaged in a fraud, he has been the principal. But I refer to my work during that time a evidence that there has been no fraud practiced.

Having served a long apprenticeship at the Bindery business. I have resumed business here on my own account, as I know of nothing which prevents me from following a legitimate and bawful calling for my support.—I shall endeavor by good work and attention to my business to give public satisfaction. ess to give public satisfaction.

Family Newspaper in the United States.

The first aim of the Times is, and will always be, to keep its readers thoroughly and reliably posted up, as to everything which may happen, of general interest, in any part of the world. It comments fully and freely upon all topics of importance in every department of public action, and always in the interest of Freedom, Order, and the Public Good. While its influence will be uniformly conservative, it advocates every measure of just and benificent Progress, and resists the increase, extension, or perpetuation of Slavery, as of everything else incompatible with the highest welfare of the whole community—
While it reports promptly and accurately all intelligence of general interest in every department of human activity, f general interest in every department of human activity, t never panders to vicious tastes, and excludes from its columns everything that might render it unsafe or improper for general Family perusal. It seeks to promote the general welfare by urging the claims of
