

It is the right of the father to have the protection, the education and guidance of that child. And because of the relation between him and the child, it is the duty of the latter to honor and obey the father. Here are correlative obligations and duties springing up from the relations that exist between them. So, sir, in the relation of families there are obligations and duties that spring from that relation. Suppose you meet a poor fellow being by the wayside unable to lift himself upon his feet, from the relation that exists between you and him as members of the same great human family, you are bound to administer to his wants even if there was no law, human or divine, requiring it. Justice, truth and virtue are everlasting principles that spring from the relation of things. Human laws and human constitutions are supposed to embody these eternal principles; and when they do embody them, and are in harmony with them then they are legal and morally obligatory, but when they contravene these prior principles they are per se null and void. If the law of God and nature demand a thing and the law of the land prohibits it, the law of God and nature are paramount. If the Almighty commands a thing and the Constitution forbids it, I say God's law first—and I am neither a fanatic or a traitor. Now, mark, sir; I believe the Constitution of this country, rightly interpreted, is the embodiment of the everlasting principles of justice and truth, liberty and right; hence when I swear to maintain it, I swear to maintain the principles that the great Creator has ordained of old. But I follow this abstract principle a little farther. I did not come here to preach, although probably there are as great sinners here as anywhere. Now, sir, how does the Senator's doctrine operate? Let me look at it? You observe he did not confine himself to the Constitution merely; it was battling this "higher law" principle that has been hissed at and hawked at. How does his position strike in certain directions? whom does it effect practically? The old Statesman Daniel was prohibited by the Constitution of the country from praying. You recollect the history. He faced the window, prayed to God and took the consequences. Was he a fanatic or traitor? You remember when the image was reared by legal authority, and every man commanded to fall down and worship it, there were three men who stood erect and said "God first and kings afterwards." They were thrown into a fiery furnace, but the form of the fourth was with them, and there was not so much as the smell of fire upon their garments. Were they fanatics or traitors? The Apostles were sent forth alone and single-handed to do battle against the world. No kingly smiles illumed their pathway; no royal patronage attended their progress; without titles, moneyless and friendless, their rule of duty, their hope and heritage was thus: "Go preach. Lo! I am with you." The authority of the land forbade them, under penalty of death, and their calm reply was, "Judge ye whether it be right to obey God or man." They acknowledged a higher law; were they fanatics or traitors? How was it with Reformers—with old Luther, when he woke up, ran against the Greek Testament, and found that the church and the world were all astray? He lifted the trumpet to his lips and blew a blast that shook all Europe; the Vatican quivered and the Pope cowered. The legal authorities commanded him to desist; but his reply was, "I shall go to the Diet of Worms, though there stood in my way as many devils as there are tiles on the house tops." And he went. Was he a fanatic or a traitor? Oid Bunyan, the eloquent thinker, and author of a work that immortalizes him, was forbidden by the great nation of England to do what was abstractly and absolutely right—forbidden to preach the Gospel to the poor. He refused compliance, went to jail, lay there twelve years, and during these years wrote a work that adds more to the glory of England to day than the martial conquests of any king that ever sat upon the throne. He bowed to the supremacy of a higher law. Poor old limner Pilgrim's Progress! Though the good and the great honor him now—through his native land, in atonement for the past, rears monuments to his memory, what avails it? Accord, I go to Berks county Democracy, he was either a traitor or a fanatic!

What shall we do with the patriot fathers of '76? They lived under a Constitution, one too, that was perverted to their oppression, and they were blessed as we are, with sophomoric tutors, who declared that there was no higher law than the Constitution. Their response was as they drew the sword and threw away the scabbard—"resistance to tyrants is obedience to God." Were they fanatics or traitors? Allow me to say to Senators, that ever Constitution, the best, I think, the world ever saw, acknowledges its own possible imperfections by containing within itself a clause providing for its own amendment, while the perfect, unchangeable, infallible, everlasting code of God and nature contains no such provisions. Ah! sir, I must tell the Senator from Berks, that while he may be a very good lawyer, he is a most miserable divinity scholar; while he may live long enough to deserve L.L.D., he must recant the heretical, and I will add silly, principles asserted by him yesterday, or he never can become a D.D.

Mr. Speaker, the simple truth of the whole question is this: It is the providence of conditions and laws to embody and enforce what is naturally and intrinsically right and just. When they do this it is the duty of men to respect and obey them. When they fail to do this, it becomes a duty to change, and if needs be, to resist and overthrow them by force. This is the higher law doctrine, and it is neither fanaticism nor treason. You must indorse it or reprehend the patriots and sages, the moral heroes and reformers of all past time.

There is one other position taken by the Senator to which I call attention. He challenges us to show that the Bible anywhere prohibits slavery, or that the teachings of Christ require its abolition. That challenge, sir, I accept.—In support of his theory he avowed that the chosen people of God were eminently slave holders. He declared that anti-slavery doctrines led to infidelity, and threw himself into contortions of anxiety, lest I should totally relapse from the faith. Let me tell him that the prostitution of the Bible to the support and sanction of a system that embodies within itself all the elements of crime and cruelty, lust and oppression, does not betray a tendency to infidelity, but it is infidelity matured—it is haggard, piebald, rictal atheism. To cast the Bible into the flames with scorn and contempt would be an offence against high Heaven, but not so great an offence as to pervert its teachings into the support of rottenness and lies.—But let us examine his position. He affirms that God's chosen people held slaves, and his forced inference is that consequently American

And long may it wave,
O'er the land of the free,
And the home of the brave!
While her Stars and Stripes
Shine out like sun,
Telling all the nations
That Freedom's begun."

This is a free country; therefore it is free for all to do their trading where they can do the best, regardless of the cross and snarl looks of old fogy merchants. I invite you to come and see—country as well as the city are invited—every person, rich or poor, high or low, bond or free are invited to call.

Come one, come all, and stop your speed.
We've Goods enough for all in need,
The boys themselves are at their posts,
And they alone can supply a host.
O'er other dealers in this town.
These same boys have won renown,
For selling the cheapest and the best,
And selling more than all the rest!
Hurrah! hurrah! I'er bill a d'pluin,
Accept our thanks, and call again,
Among our assertions you'll always find,
Goods to fit, and please the mind.
We're on hand, and always willing,
To sell our Goods, and earn a shilling!
So hold your horses, and come this way,
We shall be glad to see you any day.

The Argus Book bindery

Again in Full Operation!

WE have the gratification of announcing to our friends, customers, and the public, that we are now prepared to book in all its Branches in the latest and most approved styles, and on the most favorable terms.

BOOK BINDING,

Having secured, permanently, the services of Mr. H. C. WITTEKAMP, a finished workman from Philadelphia, and having added extensively to the nature of the concern—giving greater facility than formerly—we can present to the public the most positive assurance of our ability to please our patrons.

Our Customers are requested to be particular to remember that the "Argus Bindery," is in the Argus Building, as formerly, (first building north of the Ward House) and is connected with our Book and Stationery Store and Printing Office, where all work should be delivered.

CAUTION.—We are compelled in justice to ourselves, and our old customers, as well as to prevent an imposition upon the public generally, to caution them against a sort of concern, that falsely holds out to the public that it is the Argus Bindery. This fraud is practiced no doubt, with a hope of deluding the Public. Against this bold and deliberate attempt to deceive, they are hereby cautioned.

Particular attention paid to re-Binding. All work guaranteed.

Country Produce of all kinds taken in payment for work.

Having made complete arrangements, we are prepared to Rebind and BIND BOOKS to any style or pattern, at prices as low as elsewhere.

class, and direct the course to be pursued.

It will also be present to conduct its exercises as often as practicable, and will deliver frequent lectures on the Theory and Practice of Teaching, as also on other subjects connected with Normal Teaching.

Those persons, therefore, intending to engage in teaching for the winter, will find it greatly to their advantage to be present during the Fall term.

Prof. Coburn's connection with the Institution is no such as to in any way interfere with the discharge of his regular duties of his office.

No pains will be spared, on the part of the Faculty and Trustees in sustaining the high reputation the Institution has hitherto enjoyed, and in rendering it more worthy of future patronage and support.

WARD HOUSE, Towanda, Pa.

The Subscribers having leased this well known Hotel for a term of years, would inform their friends and the traveling public, that they will be most happy to accommodate all who may favor them with a call. It will be the aim of the present proprietors to make it a place of the most comfortable, pleasant and cheerful. Yours Truly, POWELL & SMITH. Jan. 1, 1861.

McCabe's CENTRAL MEAT MARKET. Below J. Kingsley's store, Main St.

The subscriber would respectfully tender his thanks to the public for the very liberal patronage extended to him, and solicits a continuance of the same. He has to assure that he intends to keep on hand as heretofore, a choice selection of MEATS, such as the best the country affords, which he intends to sell at very small prices, either by the side, quarter or pound. Also a quality of first quality of SALT PORK, put up by myself, known as "Horne's" or "McCabe's." Meats will be promptly delivered, at any place within the corporation. Towanda, August 12, 1859. J. McCABE.
