LOCAL AND GENERAL.

☞We notice that an effort is being made to raise and organize a new Southern Tier (N. Y.) Regiment.

☞We are requested to state, for the benefit of Mr. WESTON's country customers, that he will be absent from town for several weeks. His return and resumption of business will be duly noticed.

☞NEW USE FOR COAL OIL.—Coal oil is said to be a sure destroyer of bed bugs. Apply plentifully with a small brush or feather to the places where they most congregate. The cure is effectual and permanent. Gilt frames, chandeliers, &c., rubbed slightly over with coal oil, will not be disturbed by flies.

☞During the past week we have been blessed with several refreshing showers, which have very materially improved the appearance of vegetation generally. The Spring, thus far, has been so dry that considerable apprehension is felt for the safety of the hay and grain crops. Present indications are that there will be but a small yield. Other crops look comparatively well, with the exception of those in the localities where the frost has touched them.

☞FIRE.—On Monday evening last, about dusk, the alarm of fire was sounded through our streets. The different Fire Companies were immediately on the ground of the scene of conflagration, with their engines. The fire originated in the barn on the premises of the Roman Catholic parsonage, on Second street. The barn, together with quite a quantity of grain and hay was consumed, but through the exertions of the Firemen, the adjoining buildings were saved. The loss is probably three hundred or four hundred dollars.

☞VOLUME XXIII.—Last week completed the twenty-second volume of the Reporter. We have the names of many subscribers on our books who have taken this paper from the time it was started to the present. To them we return our acknowledgements, and hope that they have been paid as well as we have, for, unlike most editors we have comparatively few delinquents on our books. The current events of the present year are of the greatest interest to every reader, and no pains nor labor will be spared to make the Reporter an instructive and interesting family paper; we therefore invite the patronage of our old friends and solicit the favor of new patrons, as our object will be to give a synopsis of the news both local and national.

☞The citizens of Rome and vicinity were agreeably entertained on Friday, May 23d, at the M. E. Church, by the eloquent and patriotic remarks of Hon. GEO. LANDON. The people assembled from every quarter and the Church was soon filled by an attentive and appreciative audience. By request of several, Mr. LANDON occupied a few minutes in speaking upon the subject relative to the "tonnage tax," and briefly explained the reasons for his vote in the Senate in 1861. His reasoning was clear and conclusive, and to all unprejudiced persons, satisfactory. He then delivered a national discourse which was listened to with marked attention. The effect was such as to elicit numerous responses and call forth frequent bursts of applause from the audience.

The LeRaysville Brass Band was in attendance, and discoursed several pieces of rare merit, which were performed to entire satisfaction. A contribution was taken up to defray the expenses of its members, amounting to twelve dollars. The meeting was one of more than usual interest, and will be long remembered with feelings of pleasure. H. T.

☞DISTRESSING SUICIDE.—A most sad incident occurred in Frederick, Maryland, on Monday night, says the Harrisburg Telegraph, in the death by suicide of Miss MEDORA WISE, aged eighteen years, the betrothed bride of the young soldier, DENNIS STULL, who died from wounds received on the battle field in defence of the "Stars and Stripes." Miss WISE, it seems, while visiting at a friend's house on Monday evening, was observed to swallow a draught of laudanum, from a two ounce vial; but when spoken to about it, treated the subject with unconcern, remarking that she felt unwell, and took it as a remedy. She then went to her home at Mr. JAMES T. SMITH's residence in E. Church street, and retired to rest. Tuesday morning she was found dead, her person decently composed and the trace of a gratified smile lingering on her face. It seems, that, at the funeral of her lover, she placed her likeness under his head, and remarked that she would not long survive him, and when her own death was discovered, the photograph of her betrothed was found under her head, signifying the wish that it should be interred with her remains. This is a sad episode of the unnatural war which is devastating the land and has added another fair victim to the broken-hearted train, sacrificed at the shrine of treason.

☞HOW TO MAIL MONEY.—When you wish to send money in a letter let your bills be of such denominations as will require the least number to make the desired amount; be sure that they are good bills. Put the money within the letter sheet so that it may not come in contact with the envelope, and secure the letter firmly. Put on the postage stamp yourself, and quietly drop it in the post office box, for register a letter is to label it as containing money. We find a few good hints on these matters in Field Notes: In sending gold or silver coin by letter, take a thin card the size of the letter when folded, cut out holes the size of the coin, set the coin in the holes and paste thin paper tightly over it to keep the money in its place. It is no use to stick coin upon a wafer to the sheet of the letter—it always gets off by jolting of mailmatter. Any amount of silver less than half a dollar can go in a light letter sheet for single postage; a half a dollar in an ordinary letter always costs double postage.

☞MORNING WALK.—We agree with an intelligent cotemporary that those who have never tried the exercise of a morning walk, (we mean an early morning walk taken about the time Aurora is shaking the dew-drops from her golden locks,) are entirely strangers to its rejuvinating, (there now, we did not intend to use that big word) and exhilerating influences. Ye who love to slumber and dose away the precious hours of morning, not 'and catch and inspiration of the balmy air, laden was young fragrance and freshness of the verdant meads

The King alone and moistened by "nature's tear freak of the bridegroom, and though the first song of the lark, raged, he prudently held his peace and sub[mitted] to the ceremony to proceed.

A few words will explain the motives of the bridegroom.

When Louis XIV came back from his great campaign in the Palatinate, he determined to unite his son, whose valor and daring in the war had greatly pleased him, to one of the wealthy wards of the crown.

He proposed the union to the young Duchess of Baliverene, and found her favorably inclined.

She had just come to court, having just emerged from the convent where she had completed her education.

She had seen the young Count often, though he had never designed to cast a glance upon her. She knew he was brave and noble, and, she thought handsome. The bar sinister in his escutcheon was no objection. She accepted him.

Unfortunately, Louis of Franche Compte, who, like his father, was something of a rep[robate], would not accept her.

"My son," said the King, "I have resolved you shall marry."

"My worthy sire and most excellent father," [re]plied the Count, "I have resolved to do thing."

The frown. He was not in the habit [of being] [con]tested.

DIED,

In Athens township, May 19, 1862, Mrs. NANCY MURRAY, widow of the late Abner Marray, in the 80th year of her age.

At Norfolk, Va., on the 16th ult., GILBERT CROWELL, son of George Crowell, of East Smithfield, Pa.

Death, that mysterious and unseen messenger of an Almighty Power, has summoned away from earth another mortal. Daily aye, hourly too! does the mournful echoes of the funeral dirge fall upon the ear with a sad and melancholy pathos.

We can stand by the bedside of the weary, toil-worn pilgrim, whose life journey is ended, who, tired and heart-sick, longs to lie down to sleep, to enter upon that rest whose quiet slumbers are unbroken, whose duration is eternal; and see the last spark of mortality expire, and call death a ministering angel.

We can stand by the death-bed of infancy and call death a welcome messenger, opening the portals of a fairer, brighter and more glorious land to mortals yet unpoluted by crime, unknown to sin. But when we see our comrades snatched away in the bloom of youth or vigor of manhood, we almost murmur at the decrees of an All-wise Providence. Yet, when we remember that the deceased fell while engaged in the defence of principles worthy of the heart's blood of any American citizen, we can hardly wish to call him back. Disease accomplished that which a battle-field might have done. One hour saw him in health, another a livid corpse.

No comrade watched beside his couch,
No friendly hand was near;
To soothe life's darkest hour, or shed
A sympathizing tear.

No father's blessing, sister's love,
No mother's tender care,
Watched by the soldier's dying bed,
Or knelt in humble prayer.

A martyr to our country's cause,
Though the gory battle-field
Enshrouded not his form in blood,
Which a nation's honor sealed.

Then honor to the soldier's grave,
Though costly marble marks it not—
It shall endure when traitor's names,
In dark oblivion are forgot. J. N.

GUARDIAN SALE.—In pursuance of an order of the Orphan's Court of Bradford County, there will be exposed to public sale, on the premises, at one o'clock P. M., on Saturday, June 21, 1862, all the right, title and interest of the minor heirs of Horatio B. Bowen, late of Wren township, in a certain tract of land situate in the township aforesaid, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at stake and stones in north line of [Burbank's] land and corner of land of Wm. Kin[g] north 33° east 18 9-10 perches by land of [Burbank's] land and stones in centre of highway; [thence] along said highway to a spruce, exclaimed Lydon[ ] 67° east 25½ perches to stake and stones, thence north 1° west 30 6-10 perches by land of J. D. Burbank's land 33 [perches] to stake and stones in centre of highway; containing 5 acres, be[ing] what the Duke is about.

One night, about eight days after [the] marriage, the Duke, plainly attired and muffled in a cloak, roamed through the Faubourg St. Antonie, as was his wont, in quest of adventures.

As he turned the corner of one of those narrow lanes that intersected that quarter at that period, a piercing shriek burst upon his ear, mingled with suffocating cries for assistance.

The Duke's sword was out in an instant—He was brave to rashness. Without a moment's thought he plunged into the lane.

He beheld a female struggling in the grasp of a man.

The man fled precipitately at his approach, and the girl sank into his arms, convulsively exclaimed:—

"Save me, oh, save me!"

The Duke sheathed his sword and endeavored to calm her fears.

He came every day he pressed his suit. There was only one way in which Bergeronette could be won—an honorable marriage.

The Duke was in despair and at his wit's end. He had a stormy scene with the King, who threatened to send him to the Bastile if he did not return to the Duchess.

So he came to Bergeronette, on the fourteenth day, to make a final effort to obtain her. They were alone together in the garden.

"Here me, Bergeronette,' he cried, when he had exhausted every argument and found her still firm, 'I swear to you were I free,
