

Agricultural.

NOTES AND SUGGESTIONS.

A new year has come—may it be a happy one to all our readers, and may the good plans made for the future be carried out. Our vignette is suggestive of the farmer's most valuable winter crop—the crop of ideas. Books are multiplying, and so are readers. Cultivators of the soil are every year realizing the advantages of gathering from books the views of scientific men, and a knowledge of the practices of other farmers, that they may, by comparing them with their own, improve their theories and their systems of farming. In this most interesting period of our country's history, no farmer can afford to neglect agricultural reading. The exigencies of the time make new crops profitable; they introduce new notions, open new markets, and give us new views upon agricultural as well as upon political and humanitarian subjects.

Farm Accounts.—No farmer is true to his own interests who does not keep just as accurate accounts of his business, as the best business man. It is not so easy to keep accounts, as where every thing has a definite money value, but it may and should be done; and after a little practice, we may soon get in the way of placing a just value on the labor of men and animals, our own time, etc. One of the most important things is a correct inventory of every thing that has value—of investments and stock in trade; of debts and dues; of live stock and implements; of manure in the ground and in the compost heap, etc. etc. We are farmer only to take a good inventory once a year, and keep other accounts, it would be an invaluable aid to him in regulating his future management.

Building.—Keep every thing neat and tidy, within and about the buildings; tools, chains, etc., left out may be covered up in the snow, and easily lost. Repairing and painting implements are always in order if the weather favors.

Cattle.—Open the windows and give change of air on warm, dry days; remove any decaying vegetables. Protect against frost and vermin.

Swine.—Oxen ought to be shod, and kept sharp, whether the ground is slippery or not. Feed in accordance with the labor demanded of them, but on no account let them fall off in flesh. Oxen low in flesh are more liable to meet with accident than others, and if a poor lousy steer breaks a leg, nobody wants the beef, and it is not fit to eat, not so with one in good condition. Young cattle ought not to be pampered, but well fed, and kept in growing order.

Calves.—Milk to within about six weeks of calving; young cows certainly to that time, if possible, to encourage a habit of holding out well. In icy weather be very careful of cows with calf.

Farmers' Clubs.—Hold frequent meetings. Discuss the farming of your own neighborhood, and how it may be improved. Find out who has got the best seeds of various kinds, and secure the advantage for the club. Make observations on the care of stock, and see whose are wintered the best, and most conveniently.

Feeding Staff.—Halt in that out in the fall, and work it out. Poor fences make bad neighbors.

Frost.—Defend water pipes and pumps from frost. Horses dug packed round them in barrels or boxes is very good, if not allowed to reach the water.

Grain.—Grind all feed out, except for sheep. Shell corn only as fast as wanted for use or sale. Give rats attention, and phosphorus paste.

Harness and Carriage Tops.—Keep clean, and after they have been wet, oil them thoroughly.

Horses.—Be very watchful of breeding mares in icy weather. Keep horses used on the road well calked.

Ice.—The earlier ice is secured, the better. If well put in, in the coldest weather, it is a good job, out of the way. Use clear, good ice only.

Manure.—Use all diligence to increase the manure and compost heaps. Gather the dung in the yard, and compost it with manure. Absorbents in the stables should take up all the urine, and keep the air pure and wholesome.

Markets.—Hold no produce after a good price is offered. Grain shrinks, heats, or is destroyed by vermin very often, and heaves and sheep, after they are fit for market, are seldom kept with profit more than a few weeks at most.

to comprehend cause and effect, to understand language and tone of voice, quickness to detect the temper of the man who handles him, to know if he is kind and loves him, or fretful, malicious or passionate, and likely to hurt him. The horse is naturally timid, and his fears, if aroused, not only make him less manageable, but impair his judgment, making him see harm in almost every thing.

The whip should be used as a wand of authority, as giving the trainer's arm a long reach, and as a means of giving signals—very seldom as a rod of correction. When it is used to chastise, never threaten, or let the horse know that he is to be whipped, but, having him perfectly under control, so that his springs and struggles will do no harm, give him one or two severe quick cuts. This must be done without the least spite—more in sorrow than in anger—and the training should be resumed as if nothing had happened. If a man is never spiteful and angry with the colt, the horse will rarely or never show any real viciousness.

A colt, properly trained, comes to the age of 3 1/2 or 4 years, halter broken, kind, fond to be handled and petted, and glad to see his master, who should have been in the habit of giving him an ear of corn, a sweet apple, a carrot, or lump of sugar, so frequently that he will follow him like a dog whenever he goes to the pasture. For the good of the horse, even unpleasant familiarities, such as his nose over one's shoulder, or in one's pocket, ought not to be sternly rebuked. Three ounces of sugar will, in our opinion, go further towards breaking a colt, than a day's work with a whip, and even at present prices, sugar is a good deal more economical. The colt being of such a character, he may be harnessed, putting on each piece of harness carefully, so as not to cause alarm, taking care always, should he show any alarm, to let him smell the article and look at it to his heart's content. The best place to harness a colt is a loose box, 9 or 10 feet square. The trainer should be deliberate, even tediously slow perhaps, if the colt is high strung. If he is very fractious, he may be Raried-tyed, so that he shall know definitely who is master. No person who is the least afraid of him, or who would jump or start when an attempt to kick, bite or strike might be made, should be allowed to have any intercourse with a horse in training. First put on a strong bridle, having measured his head and made it to fit beforehand. It should be of a size to be put on and off easily, and have a smooth bit, well with cotton cloth. It is well to accustom him to take a piece of wood into his mouth like a bit, repeatedly before putting on the bridle. This done, let him stand an hour not fastened, or give him a few turns about a circle, holding him by a 20-foot rein or rope. Previous lessons should have accustomed him to take various paces at the will of his trainer about such a ring, sugar or other dainty having been the reward of well-doing. At the second lesson in harness, let an assistant take the line in centre of circle, while the trainer takes the reins behind the colt, at first merely holding them, then letting him feel the weight of the hand on them, and finally guiding him, little by little, until he may be driven independently of the assistant, and beyond the circle.

When accustomed to the harness, standing and being exercised in it during one or two lessons each day for two days or a week, according to the disposition of the animal, he may be put into the thills, but neither the traces nor holdbacks latched. Now let an assistant rock, rattle, and move the wagon a while, and then aid the trainer to move it forward, while the colt is made to walk slowly, letting him have his head and look at the wagon. Before attaching the traces, at the second lesson in harness perhaps, the trainer on the high side, and his assistant on the other, may grasp the thills each with one hand, just in front of the tugs, letting the horse step forward and draw the wagon by the thills, and letting him feel its weight as much or little as desired. He may be backed somewhat in the same way. If his actions are not easily judged when it is safe to hitch him to the wagon. The vehicle selected should be one not heavy but strong, and which will run with little noise. One simple thing should be taught at a time, seldom two distinct ideas at one lesson. They should be daily repeated at each lesson until perfectly familiar, and after each good performance, the horse should be caressed and rewarded. What a horse learns in this way he remembers, and he will quickly exhibit a really remarkable confidence in his master and docility to serve him.—Am. Agriculturist.

How to Repair a Road. The first requisite is to have a dry bed for the road. Without this, the superstructure of whatever material it may be composed, will soon be rough and uneven. Some soils are naturally drained, and the gravelly soil, if thrown upon the surface and rounded a little, makes as good a path as any need be. Others need draining, and no amount of gravel upon the surface will make a good bed without it. We frequently find bad places upon a hillside where the water is always bursting out in rainy seasons. A three inch drain four feet deep just above these wet places would make them dry up permanently, and save a large expenditure every year. If tiles are not available, stones or wood should be used. There is no help for those mud holes but in draining the bed. A single dollar spent at the bottom is worth ten at the top in gravel. Roads are so constantly in use and the prosperity of the farmer so much depends upon them, that no pains should be spared to have them of easy grade and as smooth as possible. All classes in the community are benefited by good roads, but the farmer most. All his surplus crops must go over the road to market, and it makes a great difference with him in the course of a year, whether he be able to take a ton and a half at a load, or only half that quantity. Good roads add to the value of every acre he owns and of every thing he produces, to say nothing of their influence upon his manhood. They are a mark of the progress of civilization, and a pretty good index to the moral culture of a people. A team stuck in the mud, the snapping of wheeltraces and braces, the cursing and bad temper of the driver, show that "there is something rotten in Denmark." The mud holes in the highway undo the work of the school-house and the church. There is an intimate connection between the highways and the moral ways of a people. In mending either it is a very safe maxim to "begin at the bottom."—Am. Agriculturist.

A physician is an unfortunate gentleman, who is every day called upon to perform a miracle—to reconcile good health with wrong living.

He who admits that he has a secret to keep, by doing so, revealed one half of it, and the other will be likely to soon follow.

Why is a vine like a soldier? Because it is listed and trained, and has tendrils and shoots.

How to Break a Colt. The word "break" seems to imply that the young horse has a temper which must be broken, rather than the will which should be trained to act in junction with that of his master. The trainer of a horse should always proceed upon the principle that he is a rational animal—that is, that he has a will, affection, love of approbation, of carresses, and of sugar—intelligence, ability

CHEAPNESS, STYLE AND BEAUTY.
NOW IS YOUR TIME TO YOUR CLOTHING CHEAP AT YOUR OWN PRICES.
PROCLAIM IT TO THE PEOPLE.

Just received—a large stock of Fall and Winter Clothing at J. COHN'S Elmira Branch Clothing Store. He says coolly, boldly and deliberately, that he takes the most of the old style of clothing, and that he has Eighteen hundred and sixty-one come, and the light and beauty of Spring shames up, with all its radiant splendor. It is a grand old style of clothing, cheap, clear than any other man, as my goods are all bought cheap for cash, and they will be sold cheap for cash.

My goods are all manufactured in Elmira, therefore I can warrant them well made. Enough for me to say I have everything on the line of CLOTHING, GENTS FURNISHING GOODS, HATS, CAPS, &c., &c.

That is kept in any other Store in town. This is a free country; therefore it is free for all to do their trading where they can do the best, regardless of the cross and snarl of old fogy merchants. I invite you to come and see me—country as well as the city are invited—every person, rich or poor, high or low, bond or free are invited to call on me. My goods are all bought at JOHN SHILAM'S Clothing Store, next door to H. S. Mercer's Dry Goods Store, Main Street, Towanda, Pa. My goods are all bought at the lowest price, and are not to be undersold by any man, or combination of men.

No charge for showing our Goods. J. COHN.
Towanda, March 12, 1867.
