Dreary winter is passing away, and joy ous spring again comes to cheer and glad-In many localities, the music of the groves and the sound of lowing herds and bleating flocks may be heard, while in other with snow, and desolation reigns. With March, farmers in some of the States commence farming operations, while in others chilling winds and pelting storms confine the husbandman to the in-door labors of the and the seed put in for various crops, but in some others the fertile fields and the babbling streams will still be bound in icy fetters Everything shou'd be on the march towards improvement. Should the programme of farming operations for the season not have been already completed, let it be done without delay. If a good system of rotation has not been already adopted, plan it at once. Where no field labor can vet be performed, put every thing in order to do it as soon as weather and soil are favorable. There are hundreds of good farmers who do not know the great value of a crop of peas. They have never raised a crop, and they do not understand how to use them up advantageously. Procure good seed, in time to have it ready to sow when the soil is dry enough to plow, and put in a few acres of peas instead of barley, oats, or Indian corn. Peas will leave the ground in an excellent condition if the soil be well prepared for them, and if sowed at a proper time. They will be found excellent food for all kinds of stock, and there is no better meal for feeding milch cows, or sows that

What crops will you raise? What will your soil produce; or what kind of grain, grass, or roots appear to be best adapted to the kind of soil, or what kinds of grain or other crops have grown for several years past on the soil? These are questions that every farmer ought to consider before he decides what kind of crops he will raise during the coming season. A farmer should endeavor, as far as may be practicable, to adapt the right kind of crops to his soil rather than to adapt the soil to the crops. If the soil is not adapted to either winter or spring wheat, do not attempt to raise it. If the soil is a good wheat soil and it has produced more wheat in years past than any other grain, it may be well to try some other crop that is also adapted to the soil, which will return perhaps as much, or more than a crop of wheat.

an equal quantity of good peas and Indian corn ground into meal.

Draining.—Before the soil is fit to plow, let it be examined for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not some portions of it may not be drained very advantageously, where it is excessively wet. Let wet portions of a field be staked out and drains cut for tile, stone or wood. During the month of March a long line of underdrain may be made before the soil is fit to plow, if the proprietor only has energy enough to lay out the work and commence at once. If it be delayed until the soil is fit to be plowed, and other work begun, the draining will

Cattle.—Begin to increase the amount of meal fed daily to all fattening animals .-Bullocks and dry cows that are designed for early beef should be well fed, watered and protected from storms during this month. Indian meal and oil meal fed now to fatten animals will start them right and return a good profit next June in early beef. Horses.—Give horses daily exercise, either by turning them loose in a yard for a few ours, or by driving them in the harness. Mares with foal should be handled with great care, and if there is much snow and ice they should be sharp shod to prevent their slipping down, which would be liable to cause slinkink. Feed breeding mares a pint of unbolted wheat flour daily in connection with their other food, as a small quantity of wheat flour is more highly esteemed than any other grain by experigrowing fœtus.

Houses .- Paint dwelling houses and other buildings during this month as the pores of the wood and sun-shrinks are now closed and the paint will form a more durable coating on the surface than if applied in hot Implements and Tools.--Begin in good of husbandry, and to repair old ones .-Todd's Young Farmer's Manual treats of the mechanical part of agriculture and edge many useful hints.

Manures.-Spread horse manure over the heap and never allow it to heat and become firefanged. Haul manure to distant fields ground has thawed, when the soil would be so wet that it would be injurious to drive over it and when a team would be unable to haul off a load. See that the rain from the eaves of buildings or from any other source does not wash away the soluble portions, the best part of barn yard manure.

Peas and Oats.—The oats keep the peas

more erect than they would otherwise grow, and as they both ripen at about the same time, the yield per acre is usually much greater than if either were sowed alone. There is no better feed for young swine, orses, neat cattle of all kinds, and sheep, than peas and oats. Seed may be obtained by the barrel or sack of seed dealers in most cities and large towns.

Potatoes.--Assort potatoes and feed out the small ones to stock; lay the best aside for seed.

Roots.—Every animal should be fed a few roots daily. Save a few of the best to be planted out for seed. If you have never vet raised roots, procure seed and make arrangements for an experiment with a crop of them the coming season.

Stones.—Both large and small ones may be hauled off the field as soon as thawed loose, before the soil has become soft. If the ground is soft, pry up the large stones on meadows and place billets of wood or small stones beneath them so that they may likely to be in the way of the plow.

Do not feed too high before the young pigs are ten days old, but give a few feeds of raw roots of some kind before and after farrowing.

Water.-Look carefully over the farm when there is a great amount of surface water, and see that it does not run across recently plowed fields, and wash away the soil. Turn small streams of muddy water regions the fields and meadows are covered from highways upon meadows and pastures; they carry with them much fertilizing matter, and will increase the crop of grass for Wheat .- Procure in time good seed of spring wheat, of the best farmers. Get the farm. In one State the soil will be plowed last year's wheat floured in order to have bran for feeding.

Wood .-- Improve every stormy and leasure day in preparing fire wood for next summer.

Weeds.-Rally all the available force of the farm, and with sharp hoes cut all the ANY OTHER ESTABLISHMENT IN TOWN. . bull thistles, teasels, mullein, and other biennial plants that will mature the seed the coming season. To make them grow, good early cut hay should be provided, clover is best for milk. For grain, feed oats, shorts, and oil-meal, and, if possible, provide plenty of roots, of which beets are best. A warm barn or shep is of impor-tance, for no prudent man will attempt to are raising young pigs, for the purpose of producing an abundant flow of milk, than have early lambs without a comfortable place for them.

A few small pens, sufficiently large for one sheep and lamb, say $3\frac{1}{2}$ by 3 feet ought to be provided, and as soon as the lamb is one of these pens. If the wool has not already been cut away from the teats, this must be done at once, if necessary, and the shepherd should see that the lamb sucks. After remaining separate from the flock for a day or two, if the lambs become strong and suck well, they can be taken out and put with the flock of ewes with young lambs, leaving the pens for younger ones. It is not well to allow ewes with lambs to run with those that have not lambed. To make with those that have not lambed. To make the small pens, take sound boards and match them together, so as to make the pen 2 feet 8 inches high, 7 feet long, and 3½ pen 2 feet 8 inches high, 7 feet long, and 3½ wide. If the weather is unusually cold, make a cover the to these pens and cover them over when you have fresh lambs, they need no bottom.

After the lambs are three weeks old, they should be separated from their dams a part of the time. This prevents the lambs from learning to eat wool from the sides and legs of the sheep, as they frequently do when left to themselves. Another advantage in separating them is, that they can be fed separating them is, that they can be fed the fed the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, that they can be fed to the sheep separating them is, the sheep separating the sheep separating them is, the sheep separating the shee with a little grain and roots and a few choice | locks of hay, all of which they will soon learn to eat. The system of management which is adopted very extensively in many parts of enced horse breeders for developing the the United States, is decidedly bad, not only mers, but for the productiveness of their WINDOW SASH AND GLASS, PAINTS, OILS AND Spices, Bird Seed, Lump Shades and Garden Seeds. for the immediate pecuniary interest of farfarms, and for the country. It is bad for farmers, because they receive only a light crop, when their soil is capable of yielding in many instances, twice as much as it has formerly produced, with the same amount of cultivation. It is bad for the soil, betime to procure new tools and implements cause it is kept in a very foul condition, which, of course, renders it less productive nd it is bad for the country, because field agriculture is the great motive power of tools and implements of husbandry, giving the nation, and anything that tends to diminish the quantity of grain will tend to cripple the resources of government. We refer, particularly, to the practice of while there is sleighing, or before the growing oats for many years in succession c. on the same soil, by plowing it only once, and seldom returning, in the form of fertilizers, to compensate for the crops that have been removed. Thousands of acres of excellent land for agricultural purposes are cultivated in this way, until Canada thistles, wild mustard, horse dock, and many other noxious weeds have taken almost entire possession of the soil; and one of the worst possession of the soil; and one of the worst and most eigent assertment of features in this system of management with the oat crop is, all the weeds mature their seed before the oats are ripe enough to cut, and enough is shelled out, when the oats for the worst and most eigent assertment of BOOKS, STATIONERY, MAGAZINES, PERIODICALS SINGING BOOKS, SHEET MUSIC, LITHOGRAPHS, PHOTOGRAPHS, PHOTOGR seed before the oats are ripe enough to cut, and enough is shelled out, when the oats seed before the oats are ripe enough to cut, and enough is shelled out, when the oats are harvested, to seed the soil for seven years to come, and the Canada thistle seed is blown all over the country. In all such localities, if farmers will discontinue oats, and raise a crop of Indian corn one year, and a crop of buckwheat the next season, and apply all the manure they are able to make, they will soon find that it will be far better, and more profitable, to adopt some short rotation system, even where oats have been considered the most profitable crop to raise, for several years in succession. It is quite impracticable for a farmer to avail himself of the great benefits arising from clean cultivation of the soil, when it is plowed only once each year, and then in the spring.
