"The merciful man is merciful to his beast," is an old adage-in all probability a curruption of the proverb of Solomon who wrote--" A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast; but the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel." Its truthfulness is well known, though oftentimes inhumanly disregarded, and its importance to man will warrant its frequent repetition. I wish it might be painted over every barn door, in every livery stable-keeper's office, at every trotting park, and in conspicuous places on every public road where fast driving is common-in fact in every place where man frequents--in letters large and bold so that "those who run might read." The unmerciful man would have the monitor ever before him, and for the utter disregard of the admonitions of its truthfulness

there would be no palliative. The act of being merciful to a beast does not consist alone in acts of kindness or in sparing the whip and goad, but in continually looking to their wants and satisfying, not neglecting them. A dumb beast wants nothing to gratify the eye or the mind, nor even the taste in an inordinate degree. The horse, though of the higher order of animals, is without a soul; yet a beneficent Creator has given him instinct in a very marked degree; and, notwithstanding all their actions, are without thought or reason; yet man cannot fail to perceive that they have an intuitive impulse which prompts and guides them in all their ways and actions, and to co-operate with them and follow out their line of desires, and gratify their natural functions, will be the correct method

Most of the animals of the first or mam mal class of the animal kingdom, will make their wants known; and that man, whose duty it is to take charge and have the care of them, will tell you, if he himself posses reasoning powers in any ordinary degree, that their language is unmistakable, and with a little application of the mind to its consideration, is easily understood. Some few years ago I came to the following conclusion, and I have never seen cause to deviate from it---that I would not keep an animal or fowl except it was worthy of my care. If it was worthy of my care, then it assuredly was worthy of the best of care; and if I was unable to give it the care it deserved, I would at once relinquish keep-

Every farmer and every man is or should be acquainted with the wants of the animals he keeps. Never stint them in their glass dissolved in a half pint of water and food, but let them have an abundance, and by all means let it be of the very bestyou will find it eventually the most profit couple of lemons, and a pint of frothed able; fresh air, fresh water in profusion, clean beds, well housed and secure from the biting blasts and driving storms-give or cut out some nice shaped sponge cakes them these attentions; they will pay you four-fold. Try them, you who never experienced the gratification the heart feels in doing a kindness, try them; try mercy and kindness, attention and care, and my word for it you will never regret witnessing the living proofs of your whole souled charity. THE HOUSEWIFE'S HAND-BOOK.

ICE CREAM .- A very cheap luxury and easily made. Take what quantity of cream (sweet and thick) you wish. Sweeten and flavor to your fancy. Have some broken ice and salt placed around your freezer in a keg or tub that comes up as high at least as the cream in the freezer. Turn the freezer until the cream is in a mushy mass then with a long wooden paddle beat it ur til it rises up as light as the frothed white of an egg. A whip churn does not answer quite as well. When satisfied with its ightness, proceed to freeze it until stiff. Then mould it or wrap it up to keep it from thawing until wanted. If you have not pure cream, make a custard of fresh milk TWEEDS, and the whites of eggs, and use one-third with cream.

Cream seasoned and whipped to a froth, is nice with fresh fruit, or filled up in glasses in which there is a spoonful of jelley, or a maccaroon soaked in wine.

Custard .- Allow four eggs to each pint TAILOR TRIMMINGS, FURNISHING GOODS, &c of fresh milk. Reserve part of the whites which will be sold exclusively for cash at the lowest to froth and lay on top. Beat the eggs smooth, stir them in the milk, sweeten with best loaf sugar. Set a bucket with the mixture in a pot of boiling water. Stir un til done and remove from the fire instantly.

The same mixture may be baked. Apples or Quinces, pealed and cored, with the hole made by coring filled with jelley or brown sugar, and baked with a little wine and sugar around, are very nice; with a custard poured over and baked, they are termed a bird's nest.

Blanc Mange.—Dissolve an ounce and a half of gelatine in a pint of sweet cream. Sweeten, flavor and boil it. Put a little in a cup on some ice and salt, and if it will mould, it is done. Color or use white.

Coffee.—Pick, wish and dry the coffee roast it of a nice brown color; when you can mash it with your fingers it is done. Many people stir in an ounce of butter to a pound of coffee. It is best fresh roasted, but as that is too troublesome in real business families, it is usually prepared once a AMOUNT OF PORK FROM A BUSHEL OF ters. BEETS.—Two, or at most three, kinds are enough for the garden. The early Blood Turnip Rooted suits us, though some prefer the Bassano for the earliest. The Long Blood is the best for general winter use. Sow on a light, rich soil about the middle of April for the earliest—the 10th this year—and they may be used by the 1st of July.

Wagons, Carriages and Sleighs, of all descriptions and of the latest and most approved style and of the best material, at the old stand opposite the Union House, in the central part of Alba Borough, Bradford County, Pa.

The public are assured that the reputation the shop has acquired during the last six years under the superintendence of J. H. Fellows, will be more than maintained, as he will superintend the work as heretofore, he having long been and having had much experience as a Carriage and Sleigh Builder, would assure the public that no pains will be spared by the above firm to make the establishment worthy of their patronage. Thankful as one of the old firm for the patronage thus far extended, we hope to merit a continuance of the same.
