July, if the weather be only what we man" in some other way, injure themselves structed. for life. Many a farmer is undersized, crooked, or one-sided, because he was ambitious, when a boy, of being told that he was worth as much as a man in the harvest they will never be worth so much again. Drouths may come, and constant working of the surface, mellowing the soil, deeply as possible, without injury to the roots of the growing crop, is the cure which almost all may apply. A fine mellow surface absorbs water from the air. We can not too often urge irrigation. The brooks and streams which can be conducted over ally and thoroughly houses, perches, nests, meadows and lower-ground, are of almost and all. inestimable value, and yet it is hard work to make farmers believe it. Every man may have a demonstration of the advantages to him in a fortnight's time, if he will only conduct a small stream over his grass The time is not far distant when many farms will have irrigated meadows, yielding three, four, or five crops of luxuriant grass during a single season.

Barns .- Clean out thoroughly during rainy weather. Begin at the top and sweep down all spider webs, chaff and mouse litter from the beams and girders. Turn over loose boards on the ground floors, and brush out wire-worms, sowbugs, centipedes, and all other insects that exist there in the cracks. Where there are large cracks in the upper sides of beams, fill them with coal tar, and then scatter clean sand over them, so that it will settle into the tar. This preserves the timber and also repels insects

Barley.—Cut before it is dead ripe, and and cure with care, as the grain will be heavier and brighter, and command a greater price in market; and the straw will furnish a great amount of fodder. When hay caps are not used on the barley shocks, to protect them from rain, the long straight bunches of straw should be placed carefully all over the tops of the shocks to turn the water as much as possible, and save the grain.

Beans.—Field beans may be planted as late as the middle of this month, where early potatoes have been dug, or where Indian corn has failed.

Buckwheat.-Sow as soon as the middle of the month in this latitude. Where there of the month in this latitude. Where there is danger of early frost, put in the seed sooner. Do not sow more than one bushel per acre. Twenty-four quarts of good seed is sufficient. Buckwheat may be sowed after barley, in many localities, and ripen before frost. Sow the seed very evenly, and roll the ground where there are many small stones or clods, in order to have a smooth surface on which to harvest the grain. Butter.—See that milk pails and pans are thoroughly scalded; that those who milk have clean hands; that the milk is kept in a cool airy place; that the oream is skimmed off at the right time; that churning is done often; that clean salt is used, and that the butter well worked and neatly packed in inodorous vessels.

Cabbages.—Where the ground is rich, nice heads may be raised before winter from is danger of early frost, put in the seed heads may be raised before winter from or in the shade during hot weather. The plants set any time in July, if they are kept well hoed.

Corn.-Keep the horse-hoes and cultivators in motion among the growing corn. Use a short whiftle-tree when the stalks are so large as to break off easily. Straighten up all hills that are not disposed to grow erect. Hot weather is the best time to work among growing corn. Managed in this way, they will make good mutton in two months. Old ewes will fatten much sooner in hot, than in cold weather.

Stacks .- Where hay or grain is p stacks, make a foundation at least half a foot from the ground. The best way to build a stack is, long and narrow, and to cover it with good boards, placed directly on the top, forming a roof like the covering of a lean-to, sloping only in one direction.

Swine .- As soon as green peas are fit to feed, let the swine have a good supply. Keep shoats in a thriving condition.
