THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The country awaits with unusual anxiety, the assembling of Congress, and the delivering of President Johnson's message. No document of the kind has ever been looked for with so much interest, nor ever read with so much eagerness as will be the forthcoming message of the President. This is occasioned by the peculiar circumstances under which President Johnson assumed the helm of State, by the stupendous and important results which have followed from our military operations, culminating in the sudden overthrow of the rebellion, and by the difficult task which is now being tried, of reorganizing and reconstructing the States lately in Rebellion.

It is idle to attempt to conceal the fact, that the loyal people of the country have experienced some degree of disappointment and dissatisfaction at the action of the National Administration in the pardon of rebels, and in the general management of hold of the public mind that the lessons of the past were to be ignored, that the blood in vain, and that Slavery was to be allow--A reduction of 30,000,000 frames in ed once more to regain its former standing the French army and navy estimates has been de- and prestige.
