Ploughing. BY D. G. EDWARDS.

Ploughing, like navigation, has its the ory, as well as its practical part; and the etter both are understood, the more profitable, and easier the plough-man can per-form his work. The theory of ploughing differs much in different soils, and in different seasons of the year, and for different kinds of crops; for instance, if greensward, well manured, is turned over for corn in the spring, it should not be ploughed so deep as the same ground ploughed at the same time without manure, for summer-fallow, or buckwheat ground, should be. Also spring wheat ground, ploughed in the spring, should not be ploughed too deep, (I speak of our red-shale soil); with few such exceptions, deep ploughing suits me the best. And deep ploughing I have practiced, both on and on the other side of the "briny ocean. Mr. President, before I leave what I think is in connection with the theory of plough ing, I beg permission to condemn one habit that I have seen in this country, and which is still more or less practiced, without any earthly reason for so doing, and only the same as the man going to mill with grain in one end of the bag and a stone in the other, because his father and grandfather And that habit is cross-ploughing every other year. It never was practiced in the school that I have been to, excepting summer-fallow or barley ground; and in Capital .... both those cases it is ploughed in very large lands,in order not to make it uneven for when the lands are ploughed six or eight paces wide, (which is the ordinary width of lands in dry ground,) the whole field is thus made uneven. Wherever the backfurrows cross, it raises the ground, and wherever the dead-furrows cross, it forms a wide low spot, from which spots the surface water can never be drained off; and after heavy rain, water remains on such spots, until the infant sprout catches cold on its mother's lap, and it never comes to maturity. Besides a loss of several bushels of grain per acre, it makes the ground unfit for both mower and roller, when seeded down for a meadow.

If such practice is considered profitable among the stumps on new land, then the stump machine itself certainly ought to be date for such fields as the stump machine is used upon is used upon.

Much more could be said on the theory of ploughing, but I hasten, for I expect others to speak, who I know are full as capable of handling both the subject and the plough.

Next the practical part. Having noticed much negligence in performing this important part of our occupation, I have for many years considered it necessary for some one to make a public notice, and correct the negligent, and teach boys a better style.-And while I am at that, the scientific and practical ploughman will be considered as the well man, who needs no medicine.

The first neglect I notice, is, not to commence in the right place; and that is, to plough a shallow furrow to form a headland the width of which should be in proportion to the teams -- if a single team, the length of the team, harness and plough will suffice; if double, so much wider; which furrow will serve as a mark to keep the furrows uniform in length.

The headland should be ploughed last, in the same manner as the other lands, reversing it every other year by back-furrowing it, in order to keep it even.

Nothing I despise more than to see man ploughing without headlands; for, by ploughing round, (or square, if you please, the team must be driven on the ploughe ground, in every corner, trampling the furrows, until it looks more like a road or brickyard than ground turned over on which to produce a crop.

The second negligence, which is not the least, is not to measure every land before it is struck out, for it should be uniform in width, and straight, in order that the last furrow may be whole and avoid turning back in the middle of the land.

I hope none of the boys will ever undertake to strike out a land without a mark for even our Bible teaches us to look on the mark, and not turn back, but hold our hands fast on the plough straight to the end.-I hope you will have pride enough to plough straight, if nothing else. Show me a plough man who has no pride, and I will show you one that I don't want to employ to plough for me ; for I follow my occupation for pleasure as much as profit.

The house-builder, and the wheel-right,

&c., have their chalk-line and square to use; and it is right they should use them —for without they would waste both time and lumber.

Why not plough by rule? Business men have their detectors; farmers ought to know how to detect poor ploughmen; for there are many worthy capitalists who invest in agricultural pursuits, who are not judges themselves; and also widows, having lost their life-mates, and are dependent on others to do their ploughing, &c.

First, they can be detected generally by their voice; but most always, like hog-shearing, more noise than wool. Next they curse, and whip or stone the team, sending the plough to a warmer climate, and him that made it, when in fact the fault lies all behind the plough.

I beg leave to address myself once more to you, boys. Never keep much noise when ploughing, nor allow yourselves to curse nor swear.

I have no doubt if the ploughing-match, once existing under the influence of our county Fair, had been continued, that it would have done much good ere this. I propose that another shall be organized.— One sub-district is enough in which to hold a ploughing-match. By so doing, we would raise a spirit of pride and competition, without which we shall never have the pleasure of seeing much reform.

To KEEP EGGS.—Last August we placed a thick layer of salt on the bottom of a large sap-bucket—oiled the eggs with fried meat fat, and placed them in the salt in such a way as to prevent touching each other, little end down. Then a layer of salt and then eggs, till the bucket was full. Set in the cellar. Used the last in May, and found them as fresh as need be-not a bad one

-To Make Berry Pudding .- Take two teacups of sour cream; two eggs, well beaten; one tablespoonful saleratus, a little salt; stir in wheat flour enough to make quite a thick batter; put half the batter in a well buttered tin, then put in one quart of berries, and the remainder of your bat-ter. Bake one hour and serve hot, with sweet cream and sugar. It is exceilent .-

Good BLACK INK .- Take one ounce of logwood and twenty grains bi-chromate potash, and put it into two quarts hot rain-water. After it gets cold bottle it and let it stand uncooked a week.

FARMERS MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

OF MIDDLE PENNSYLVANIA,

Office in Danville, Montour County, Penn'a.

Capital

The Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Middle Pennsylvania was incorporated by the Pennsylvania Legislature, in the year 1859, for the Mutual Insurance of Country property only, and immediately thereafter commenced its operations on that principle, which has been strictly adhered to since.

All losses have been promptly paid out of the Premiums collected on application for insurance without making any assessments.

The Insurance of Country property only, the low rates charged for Insurance, and the prompt payment of losses are deemed a sufficient recommendation of the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Middle Pennsylvania, to all owners of safe class country property.

Dentestry IWENTY-FIVE YEARS EXPERIENCE
IN DENTISTRY.—J. S. SMIPH, M. D., would respectfully inform the imbabitants of Bradford County that be is permanantly located in Waverly, N.Y., where he has been in the practice of his profession for the past four years. He would say that from his long and successful practice of 25 years duration, he is familiar with all the different styles of work done in any and all Dental establishments in city or country, and is better prepared than any other Dental operator in the vicinity to do-work the best adapted to the many and different cases that present themselves oftentimes to the Dentist, as he understands the art of making his own artificial teeth, and has facilities for doing the same. To those requiring under sets of teeth he would call attention to his new kind of work which consists of porcelain for both plate and teeth, and forming a continuous gum. It is more durable, more natural in appearance, and much better adapted to the gum than any other kind of work. Those in need of the same are invited to call and examine specimens. Teeth filled to last for years and often administered with perfect safety, as over four hundred patients within the last four years can testify.

I will be in Towanda from the 15th to 30th of every month, at the office of W. K. TAYLOR, (formerly occupied by Dr. O. H. Woodriff,) Having made arrangements with Mr. Taylor, I am prepared to do all work in the very best style, at his office.
