Farmers Should Raise More Ducks.

farmers through the State did not keep ducks; as a matter of profit they are more profitable than hens .-It may be the impression that in order to keep ducks, a person must have a pond or stream of water near by, has deterred many from keeping them; but there is no need of any-thing of the kind. It is true that it is better to have a pond or stream but you can raise ducks just as well elsewhere. I know of parties that are very successful in raising them, that have only a shallow tub set in the ground and filled from the pump raising ducks and about the only one, There are one hundred and ten trees is letting the young go into the water too soon after they are hatched; they should not be allowed to go into with the blight, and I saw no signs water for a week or ten days after they leave the nest. When I speak I am aware that these of the profit from ducks, I do not have seen every day. I mean a breed of ducks that will weigh twelve pounds eing very large and excellent for drained. the market, and it costs no more to rear them than the common ducks that will only weigh on the average about eight pounds to the pair. The Rouen is a very handsome duck in gestion : and shaded with brown shaded on the outer edge with black. being large and heavy, do not care -Maine Farmer.

A PROTECTION AGAINST BORERS.—Mr. led. H. J. Foster, of Quincy, Mass., informs us that he has an apple orchard which has been badly infested by the borer. Two or three years ago, oung borers from most of the trees, no signs of their work to be discoverto had sprung up from seed in soil or manure. Acting on this discovery, he has since planted tomatoes extenquince bushes, and find it a complete or four onions in a pint of water protection, as the beetle which deposmonths upon the bark of the tree near put on with a brush. which a tomato plant is growing .-

Formerly we fed the plank, making a stool of it about as young brood with corn meal dough high as a chair. Over the hole in the plank firmly nail a plate of iron every season. Latterly we have salabout an eighth of an inck in thickness, and with a hole through the centre of the plate, just large enough to admit the passage of a corn cob.— Through this hole, with a small wooden mallet the ears of corn are to be driven. Our fruit men at Oneida have a practice of going over their pear the first pear blossom opened within orchard in August and September, to sight of the Pyramids? And what fair cut off the parts affected, in order to above a full stock of school girl of the pickle eating tribe, prevent the malady by the action of dreams of thanking the East Indies the sap, and to improve the unsight ly appearance which a blighted tree Parsley—the prettiest of all pretty presents. This job the past season greens taking so naturally to our fell to me. So arming myself with a American soil that it seems quite to pruning knife and saw, a bottle of shellac varnish, a note book and pen among us. Its native home is Sardi- cil, I went through the pear orchards,

The number of pear trees on our Onions, too, are only naturalized for-eigners in America. I had hoped hundred and sixty-two. These are that in poetic justice, research would divided into three orchards. The first prove this pathetic bulb to have one has five hundred and fifty-two sprung from the land of Niobe. But trees, embracing nearly all the leadno; Egypt stretches forth her withered hand and claims the onion as

They are ours-ours on a level plateau, about twelve feet to command, to have and to hold from above the Oneida Creek. The soil is time's beginning to its ending, though a clayey-loam, intermixed with lime Eegland and Ireland bluster over stone gravel. It is quite wet in the 'corn" and "praties" till they are stone gravel. It is quite wet in the that no attempts have been made to underdrain it. In this orchard I found seventy trees affected with the blight. Six were dead, ten had lost I could never understand why our half their tops, and the rest from one to half-a-dozen branches apiece.

The next orchard, seventy or eighty rods from this, is on land a little higher, and slightly rolling. The soil is a clay loam, resting on clay and quick-s and, and is well underdrained. The number of trees is thre hundred; the most of them were set six years ago. I found here but three trees that were touched with the blight; and these very slightly, each losing but one small branch.

The third orchard is on rolling land, a trifle higher than the others. The soil is a fine sandy loam, and so occasionally. In fact, the trouble of dry that it needs no underdraining. here, which have been set from eight to nine years. Not one was affected
