

News from all Nations

A very improbable story is about that 50,000 Fenians are about to invade Canada. The Queen of Spain is selling her jewelry in anticipation of being driven from her throne. Cambridge, Vt., last year made over three hundred tons of butter, valued at $228,000. An American locomotive took the first prize at the Paris exhibition. Fourteen out of the twenty newspapers published in Kansas are advocating female suffrage. A rebel riot has occurred in Brownsville, Texas, where they broke up a Republican convention. On the 21st ult., an ex-politician of Brooklyn shot Wm. B. Carr dead with an air gun. The murderer is in custody. Gov. Curtin delivered an eulogy on Gov. Wright our minister to Berlin, who recently died in that city. A Berlin dispatch asserts that a plot has been discovered in Hanover having for its purpose the assassination of King William and Count Bismarck. Gen. Sickles, believing that the South wants more bread than wheat, has wisely prohibited the distillation of spirits from grain in the Carolinas. The Government of Prussia and that of Denmark are negotiating for the settlement of the North Schleswig question. Fannie P. Hatch, a school teacher in Springfield, Mass., has been arrested and held to bail for severely whipping a pupil. Judge Reeves, of the Ninth District of Texas, has decided that negroes cannot testify against white men. Secretary Seward is opposed to our selling the Japanese government, the iron-clad Stonewall, but the sale has been made notwithstanding. Joseph H. Jackson a prominent lawyer of Fongochigee, was shot by an insane son, on Tuesday. His recovery is doubtful. Greeley says that a man that pays more for his shop rent than for advertising, don't know his business. Kelo has been convicted of murder in the first degree, in Camden, N. J., the first capital conviction since the county was organized. The Legislature of Massachusetts, after a long investigation, refused to repeal the prohibitory liquor law. The Judiciary committee have received the testimony of Chief Justice, and Attorney General, and Judge Underwood with reference to the failure to try Jefferson Davis. The czar of Russia, King William of Prussia, the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, and the Sultan of Turkey, will all be in Paris to witness the exhibition. The Danish Government, it is said, has informed the foreign powers that the Prussian Government continues to disregard the obligations of the treaty of 1865 in regard to Schleswig. Capt. John C. Ryan, the 'mysterious prisoner,' who was arrested and confined in 1865 at the supposed John H. Surratt, is about to present the Government for false imprisonment. Ex-Gov. Thomas H. Seymour, lately entertained the Russian Commissioners, now in Hartford. Present at his reception were Gen. Franklin and ex-Secretary Toney. Speaker Coffey thinks there will be no summer session of Congress, and it is found that more than half the Senators have gone to Europe, while others are preparing to follow. Henry St. Paul, of the Mobile Times, a few days ago sent a challenge to John Forsyth, of the Register. Mr. F. returned no answer to the note. Mobile is evidently becoming tinged with northern sentiment, on the subject of dueling, at least. The Lancaster Examiner says that the health of Thaddeus Stevens is improving substantially. Capt. E. H. Rauch has been appointed General Agent for the Temperance Union of Pennsylvania. James Greco, a boy sixteen years old, was killed near West Chester on the 15th ult., by the fall of a tree. The copperheads of Schuylkill county are trying to prevent the new law, suppressing murder and robbery, from going into effect. Mr. William Payle, of West Marlborough, Chester county, was fatally burned, a few days ago, by her clothing taking fire, while washing. The borough of Hanover, York county, has passed an ordinance forbidding the killing of cats to obtain their skins, under a penalty of $10. Mrs. Sarah Price, aged 75 years, residing near Southampton, Northumberland county, drowned herself in a spring on Monday last. The hotel keepers of Pithole city have agreed to publish the names of such persons as do not pay their board. A boy 12 years old has been arrested and held to bail for stealing a pocket-book and $10.45 in money, at Susquehanna depot. Rev. Julius Degmore has been arrested in Erie for stealing $100,000 worth of Revenue Stamps, while a clerk in the department. The Reading post of the grand Army of the Republic has taken steps to have a monument erected to the memory of Berks county soldiers who died in the service of their country. Under the new Jury law, passed at the late session of the Legislature, jurors are to receive $2.50 a day for their services, and mileage at the rate of 4 cents a mile. On Wednesday last, a miner named Daniel Carmichael, employed at the Locust Run colliery, near Ashland, was accidentally killed by a premature explosion. Mrs. Kulp, of Norristown, sued Jacob Fallmer for breach of promise. While in the lock-up, the 'Squire was sent for and the case settled by the happy pair being made one flesh. Charles Gresh, a resident of Mill Hill, Clinton county, fell from a building in that place on Thursday of last week, received such injuries as proved fatal. He was a carpenter by trade, and leaves a wife and one child. The President is now 'swinging round the circle,' South.

Bradford Reporter.

Towanda, Thursday, June 6, 1867. THE N. Y. CITY UNION LEAGUE AND HORACE GREELEY. In his controversy with the Union League of New York City, Horace Greeley comes off with flying colors, not however, in our way of thinking, by his logical prowess, but through his impudence, and the pusillanimity of his opponents. It was questionable policy in the League to notice G.'s defection; but after it had taken the matter in hand; it was cowardly to be driven to the wall by his defiant manner, vulgar denunciation, and boastful arrogance. Had he been some 'small potato,' how quickly he would have been shoved under, and the noisy gabbler of the Tribune knew his party, and acted accordingly. In his manifesto, which he sends greeting to the Union League Club, Greeley exhibits all the vanity and weakness of a child that has been spoiled by flattery. He re-publishes numerous long paragraphs from his own paper, to show that in bailing Jefferson Davis, he acted consistently, and in conformity with previously expressed opinions, striving in this way to prove that he did right. And he tells us, too, that his pleadings for mercy for the rebels, his amnesty letter, and opposition to confiscation, were all severely condemned by the republican party; and the republican press of the country; all those that had heretofore acted with him, believing him to be wrong in each one of these positions. Now, is it not a queer argument for one to assume, especially one who considers himself more enlightened than all others combined, that because he has done wrong once, twice, thrice, four times, five times, six times, any number of times, therefore, it is proven, that the last time he did wrong, he did right? In other words, because Greeley committed the folly, and the wrong, of striving to save the necks, and the property of the greatest and most fiendish murderers, and despicable and stupendous thieves of the present age, and who, by every principle of public law, and by the common practice of all nations, and the unanimous opinion of an injured and an outraged people, were condemned to the gallows, therefore, he Greeley, did right in bailing away from justice, in cheating the gallow and the American nation, the leader and instigator of a causeless rebellion, one under whose auspices the blackest crimes, and the most villainous destruction that ever disgraced a savage, were perpetrated! That is, if one steals a horse, and then burns down a dwelling he will do right to commit a murder! Is this not a pretty argument to come from one so enlightened as the editor of the Tribune assumes to be? Is it not, in truth, more like the argument of a lunatic? But again, if on a question of right or wrong, three millions of men are on one side, and one on the other, and thousands upon thousands of the three millions are at least the equals, in all respects, of the one, while he too, is judging of his own acts, which is likely to be right? Is it not palpably, the grossest vanity and egotism, that will prompt a man to set up his judgment against a whole nation in this way? And to get over this universal condemnation, Greeley, calls the members of the Union League Club, 'blockheads,' his subscribers 'uninformed,' and therefore, ignoramuses, and the republican editors, all but the editor of the New York Tribune, are 'little insects, whom God, for some inscrutable purpose permits to edit a majority of our minor journals.' Is that not logical? Who can, after such a display of wit, wisdom, sarcasm, learning, and gentility, all the essentials of a great argument, doubt the superiority of this man to all others in the republican ranks? After all, the modesty, the unpretending spirit, and the smooth, gentle words of the Tribune's editor, are the most remarkable characteristics of this production. The personal pronoun I occurs over fifty times in it, and he declares that 'one impudent puppy asked him squarely whether he was in favor of hanging Davis,' and surely it was a great outrage to ask so important a personage a plain question! What right has anybody to ask the Hon. Mr. G. such a question? Then he tells his readers how nobly he rejected the office of United States Senator; and that he preferred being wise, according to his own judgment of wisdom, to being an office-holder! That he ever wrote what people wished him to write, but what they needed to be told—for he always knows what other people need, and nobody else knows this! And then, because the republican editors of the country would not believe this, and would not heed what he told them, he 'never before realized so vividly the baseness of the editorial vocation according to the vulgar conception of it,' and while he 'despised' he 'was humiliated by the reflection that it was the power of such insects (meaning the republican editors of the country) to annoy him.' In all this, poor Greeley forgets the important fact, that each blunder he commits is only an aggravation of former ones, and

News of the Week

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Journal says: 'A special from New Orleans says that Maxmillian has been no room for doubt that Maxmillian has been shot before this. The feeling against him is intense. All Mexican officers in the imperial army will receive no mercy. The reply of Juarez, occupying a column in a Brownsville paper, to Minister Campbell, bearing date April 23, positively refuses to spare the life of Maxmillian if captured.' A dispatch from Fort Phil. Kearny details fresh depredations committed by the Indians. A Sergeant and six citizens were killed near Fort Sedgwick, three citizens had been killed near Fort Sanders, and emigrants were being robbed of their stock at all points. Our troops were being moved along the lines of travel, but, not being mounted, afforded but little protection. The dispatch says 'the Indians laugh at infantry.' A double tenement at Norfolk, Va., fell to the ground Thursday, and is supposed to have buried a number of persons in its ruins. Mrs. Chesire and child had escaped from the house, but were overtaken by falling walls in the adjoining lane and buried. The lower floor of the building was occupied as stores, and the upper portion as dwelling. The fall was caused by an excavation of the adjoining lot to erect a building. A gentleman named Field, Vice-President of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, is now in Montreal on a tour through the United States and Canada to obtain an expression of opinion from the principal Boards of Trade on the question of abolishing privateering during war. The Birmingham Board of Trade is now agitating this subject. Mr. Field is to meet in counsel with the Montreal Board of Trade on Tuesday next. At a meeting held at Winchester, Tenn., the militia called into service by Gov. Brownlow, was severely denounced. It was charged that they had killed one peaceful citizen, and compelled many others to conceal themselves to escape a similar fate. The President has been appealed to for protection, and in case of his refusing it, the citizens are recommended to protect themselves. The inauguration of the marble statue of Henry Clay took place at Louisville, Thursday, business generally being suspended, and all classes of citizens taking part in the demonstration. Judge Bullock delivered an address, and George D. Franklin read a poem written for the occasion. C. T. Lyons, 13 10 00 O. J. W. Comstock, 13 10 00 E. Averill, 13 10 00 Spaulding & Wright, 7 4 00 F. S. Wells & Co., 14 7 00 D. P. Park, 9 25 00 G. H. Voorhis, 13 10 00 Eastabrook & Kenyon, 14 7 00 Horace Carter, 14 7 00 R. C. Sinsabugh & Son, 14 7 00 Asylum, 13 10 00 Albany—S. S. Ormsby, 14 7 00 S. D. Stricker, 14 7 00 C. G. Manley & Son, 14 7 00 R. H. Wilson & Co., 13 10 00 Burlington—D. A. Ross, 12 12 50 Long Brothers, 14 7 00 A. G. Gorrell, 14 7 00 J. B. Boyce, 14 7 00 B. Morgan, 14 7 00 Burlington west—Ed E. Loomis, 14 7 00 Columbus—W. B. Burnett & Co., 14 7 00 A. B. Austin, 14 7 00 J. A. Watkins, 14 7 00 McClelland & Adams, 14 7 00 S. S. Snyder & Hayes, 14 7 00 E. H. Newman Jr., 14 7 00 Canton Troy—S. J. Hickok, 13 10 00 Robert Turner, 14 7 00 J. H. Moore, 13 10 00 Abner Doly, 13 10 00 Geo E. Bullock, 14 7 00 A. V. Trout, 13 10 00 J. O. Randall, 13 10 00 Wm. H. Darrk, 13 10 00 John Vanduyke, 14 7 00 Mix & Hooper, 14 7 00 O. K. Wickell & Co., 14 7 00 Simon Drickwell, 13 10 00 Burke Thomas & Co., 11 15 00 Franklin—Bernie McKee, 14 7 00 Samuel Thiele, 14 7 00 Fall Creek Bit. Coal Co., 13 10 00 Barclay Coal Co., 12 12 50 Samuel Bailey & Co., 13 10 00 Greenville—L. D. Taylor, 14 7 00 John T. Leonard, 14 7 00 O. W. McMurtry, 14 7 00 Herriot—E. W. Walker & Bros., 14 7 00 Giddings & Anderson, 14 7 00 Litchfield—Layton & Tuttle, 13 10 00 John McKean, 14 7 00 LeRoy—Hartman & Boyse, 14 7 00 H. M. Holcomb, 14 7 00 General Bailey, 14 7 00 LeRoyville—Bailey & Bros., 14 7 00 W. F. Robbins, 14 7 00 L. B. Roworth, 14 7 00 J. F. Roworth, 14 7 00 J. F. Roworth & Son, 14 7 00 Roworth & Co., 13 10 00

New Advertisements

Linna & Vandool 14 7 00 ... (List of various advertisements and notices, including names like O'Brien, Kercher & Co., and various goods and services offered.)

New Advertisements

Linna & Vandool 14 7 00 ... (Continuation of advertisements, including names like O'Brien, Kercher & Co., and various goods and services offered.)

New Advertisements

Linna & Vandool 14 7 00 ... (Continuation of advertisements, including names like O'Brien, Kercher & Co., and various goods and services offered.)

Miscellaneous

Linna & Vandool 14 7 00 ... (Continuation of advertisements, including names like O'Brien, Kercher & Co., and various goods and services offered.)

Advertisements

Linna & Vandool 14 7 00 ... (Continuation of advertisements, including names like O'Brien, Kercher & Co., and various goods and services offered.)