We learn, we believe, from reliable sources, that some six thousand panes of glass were destroyed in the Erie Railway work-shops at Susquehanna, by the terrible il-storm on Sunday last. We also learn that in certain parts of the town of Nichols. the oats and the buckwheat are very generally destroyed. The damage up east of Owego village, along the Susquehanna, is also very great. It is very possible that when the hail was so severe in a place like Owego village, surrounded by hills and shaded by trees, that in more exposed places the destruction of crops must be very great,
