Bradford Reporter.

Towanda, Thursday, Oct. 31, 1867.

THE VICE PRESIDENCY.

Public attention is already directed to the consideration of the probable candidates of the Republican party in the contest which will take place in 1868. Just now there is a degree of unanimity in the proposition to make Gen. GRANT the candidate for President. A number of Republican organizations have declared for him—and Republican papers throughout the country have raised his name as their preference. We shall not now discuss the policy of this movement, nor advert to the probable causes which make him at this moment the most prominent candidate. It seems almost certain that he will be the nominee of the Republican National Convention—and if so nominated there can be no doubt but that he will be chosen President by a popular majority larger than ever given to any candidate.

Heretofore, the Vice Presidency has been but little considered previous to the meeting of the Convention. Circumstances have generally combined to make the candidate subordinate to the more important office of President. But the recent bitter experience of the party, in the wicked conduct and disgraceful betrayal of their principles by a man honored and trusted, elevated to the Vice Presidency by their suffrages, and then placed in the Presidential chair by the hand of an assassin—has taught the Republicans the importance of placing in the office a tried and true man, whose possible elevation to the Presidency will not endanger the principles of the party, and the welfare of the country. The Union men of the nation demand that the candidate for the Vice Presidency in the coming contest, shall be a statesman, whose antecedents and whose character will insure them against the disgrace and danger of again having their hopes and their principles outraged and betrayed.

Amongst the prominent men in the Republican party, there is not one with a wider national reputation, than GALUSHA A. GROW. His name upon the ticket for Vice President, would be a tower of strength. From one end of the nation to the other, it would be recognized as that of a man who could be trusted in any emergency—who had been thoroughly tried and not found wanting. There is no voter in the land, who would deposit his ballot for GROW with the slighest misgiving—who would doubt for a moment, that he was placing in power a man who would be faithful in any contingency which might arise.

Few men in the nation have such a brilliant and creditable public record as GALUSHA A. GROW. From the time in 1850, when the nomination for Congress, came unexpectedly to him, his course has been onward and upward. His ability and industry were early recognized in Congress, and his appointment as Chairman of the Committee on Territories, (then the most important Committee in the House,) made him virtually the leader of the Party of Progress. How indefatigably he labored for the interests of the Territories—how bravely he battled to preserve those broad domains from the encroachments of slavery and the designs of the slaveholders, who sought to carry the peculiar institution into those new fields—a grateful and appreciative nation will bear witness.

Having preserved the Territories from the aggressive designs of slavery, Mr. GROW sought to secure them for the possession of the actual settlers. His celebrated Homestead Bill, is itself a monument of which any public man might be proud.—This he introduced, and carried to its final passage, with a characteristic zeal and determination. Step by step it was fought by the slave oligarchy, and their Northern minions, defeated session after session, only to be again brought forward, and finally adopted. A law by which the millions of fair acres of our broad and fertile Territories are opened to the occupation and possession of actual settlers, upon merely nominal terms.

As Speaker of the House, Mr. GROW achieved a high reputation for a parliamentarian, a prompt presiding officer, and a fair and upright man. The Chair has never been more ably filled, than when occupied by him. He extorted from his political enemies the meed of unwilling praise. His ability, readiness and courtesy as a presiding officer, as shown in the House, mark him as peculiarly fitted to preside over that more dignified body, the Senate.

In the discussion of the great questions which have agitated the public, for the last seventeen years, Mr. GROW has taken an active and prominent part. His voice has been heard in the Halls of Congress in advocacy of the Right, and in denunciation of the plans and abominations of the slave-holders. In almost every State in the Union the people have listened with delight, to his able and lucid expositions of public questions, and his advocacy of the principles of the Republican party. His long public career, as a politician, has been marked by no wavering, no eccentricities, no lapses from the path of principle, but he has carried the flag of the party [illegible] "Not a star erased, not a stripe polluted."

The peculiar fitness of the nomination of Mr. GROW is already attracting the attention of some of the best men, and the soundest papers of the State. Being entirely disconnected with all cliques and combinations, there is a popular feeling that he is the safest and best man to be nominated. We believe that this feeling will spread and gain strength, until the propriety of his nomination will become so apparent, that it will be made with unprecedented unanimity. We want a true and safe man for the second office upon the ticket, a man with a National reputation—one whose name inspires confidence and excites respect. With all due reference to the distinguished gentlemen who may be mentioned—does not the name of GALUSHA A. GROW at once present all that is demanded, and expected by the people?

EUROPE.

Florence dispatches set forth that VICTOR EMANUEL's soldiers refused to fight against GARIBALDI. The cause of national unity in the councils of the King's Government is fast gaining ground, and it is now understood that a thoroughly radical Ministry will be formed, whose policy will be to make Rome the capital of Italy. The French fleet sailed from Toulon Saturday under orders to proceed direct to Civita Vecchia.

The Pope has addressed a letter to the Roman Catholic Bishops throughout the world, calling upon them to pray for the Holy See.

Friday, the police of Rome, when about to search a house, met with some resistance. They at once used the bayonet, and killed fifteen Garibaldians.

ELECTION OF GOV. BROWNLOW TO THE SENATE.—At the meeting in joint session of the two Houses of the Tennessee Legislature, on the 23d inst., the vote for United States Senator on the final ballot was announced as follows. In the Senate: Stokes, 10; Brownlow, 8; Maynard, 4; Fletcher, 2; Cooper, 1. In the House: Brownlow, 37; Stokes, 19; Maynard, 11; Fletcher, 8; Walker, 4. Whole number of votes cast, 103; necessary to a choice, 52. The Speaker announced that as there was no election, the two Houses would proceed to ballot again. The names of Mr. Fletcher and Judge Walker were withdrawn, and Gov. William G. Brownlow and Hon. W. Stokes were put in nomination. The roll of the Senate was called with the following result: Brownlow, 19; Stokes, 12; The roll of the House was called with the following result: Brownlow, 61; Stokes, 27; Walker, 1. Total for Brownlow, 83; total Stokes, 39; whole number of votes cast, 103; necessary to a choice, 52; majority for Brownlow, 23.

The Speaker announced the vote, and declared Wm. G. Brownlow duly elected United States Senator for the term of six years, beginning March 4, 1869; and on motion, the election of Gov. Brownlow was made unanimous. The vote wanted but five of a full Legislature.

DEMOREST'S ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY.—The current number of the favorite periodical is a very good one. In addition to its usual illustrations, including the colored fashion plate, there are three large plates devoted to fashions, and another feature of special interest to the ladies, viz: a full-size pattern of Winter cloak. The special departments are not neglected, and there is the usual variety of excellent reading matter, stories, poems, etc. This is the best and most useful of the parlor magazines, and no family can afford to do without it. Subscription price, $3 yearly, with valuable premiums. Address, W. Jennings Demorest, 473 Broadway, N. Y.
