Hogs in Orchards.

We cut the following from the Rural American, and we assume and gratefully the editor's conclusions. We have in mind a New England orchard that was used for a hog pasture for more than twenty years, and for aught we know, had been used in like manner for many years previous. The trees are giants in their line, and a crop of fruit annually a sure thing. From that orchard a worm-eaten apple was a rarity. The hog is the best cultivator, and the insect remedy that can be put into an apple orchard. We know it from more than twenty years observation. After the stems of trees have attained a size of three or four inches in diameter, hogs will do the trees no injury. The domestic fowls—hens, chickens, etc., will also do good service in the orchard, whether apple, cherry or plum, for they are always on the alert for insects, without indulging in the thieving propensities of the robin and other birds.

"It has long been believed that hogs are very useful in orchards, to eat up the wormy fruit that falls. We have lately heard a farmer say, that of two orchards on his farm, the one in which he let his hogs run bore him almost double the amount of good fruit as compared with one from which they were excluded. But others doubt this. They say that the codin mote (the common apple worm) leaves the apple before it falls, and burrows in the ground. They insist that the insect does not propagate its kind in the apple as it does in plums and peaches. We beg leave to express a doubt here. We know that we have found worms in apples and cannot believe that common notions on this subject are groundless. At any rate we make it our yearly practice to pick up all the worm-eaten fruit under few pet trees in our back yard, and feed them to our horse; and we know that the fruit on those trees is annually improving. In a large orchard we would let the hogs pick them up. That the dung dropped by the hogs and the little rooting which they do are beneficial, there can be no doubt.

TAKE CARE OF TOOLS.—It is a lamented fact that nine out of every ten of our farmers lose as much from a want of proper care of their tools as from the actual wear and tear of them.

Repeated wetting and drying spoils sooner or later, any kind of wood-work; the moisture getting into the cracks soon increases them. This may be prevented by a timely and occasional application of some cheap paint. Much has been said and written upon the value of tool-houses, and it is hardly necessary for me to add my might to the general collection; but providing the tool-house is not all that should be done—the shovels, spades and forks are brought into the tool-house, with the dirt sticking to them, and in that condition they remain through the winter, or until they are again needed.

All practical farmers know how much better a bright plow turns the furrow, how much easier it is on a team and driver, and yet they will bring their plows and harrows in every spring and fall, with the dirt sticking to them, and allow them to remain in that condition until again wanted, much to their own loss and expense.

There are various mixtures which might be applied to the iron to prevent rusting, the cheapest of which is common unsalted grease. A better article may be formed by melting together six pounds of fresh lard and two of rosin. An old iron pot is a good thing to keep and compound mixture in.

As soon as the tool is done being used for the season, clean it off and give it a coat of the above mixture, and if it remains undisturbed for years it will come out as bright as when put away.

TO ASCERTAIN A HORSE'S AGE.—A horse has six teeth above and below before three years old he sheds his middle ones; at three he sheds one more on each side of the central teeth; at four he sheds the two corner and last of the fore teeth. Between four and five the horse cuts the under tusk, at five he will cut his upper tusk at which time his mouth will be complete. At six the grooves and hollows begin to fill up a little; at seven the grooves will be well nigh filled up; except the corner teeth having little brown spots where the dark hollows formerly were. At eight the whole of the hollows and grooves are filled up. At nine there is very often seen a small bill to the outside corner teeth; the point of the tusk is worn off and the part that was concave begins to fill up and becomes rounding; the square of the central teeth begins to disappear and the gums leave them small and narrow at the top.

GOOD HAMS.—After hams have been smoked, take them down, and thoroughly rub the fleah part with molasses; then immediately apply ground or powdered pepper by sprinkling on as much as will stick to the molasses, when they must be hung up again to dry. Hams treated in this manner will keep perfectly sweet for two or three years. This must be done before the fly deposits its egg, for after that is done nothing will stop their revages. The above has been practised in our section for more than twenty years. No soaking is necessary. One pint of molasses and one and a half or two pounds of black pepper are sufficient for any ordinary family. Try this plan, if you want good sweet hams.—Cor. Rural American.

TO PREVENT STEERS FROM JUMPING.—To prevent steers from jumping fences clip off the eyelashes of the under lids with a pair of scissors, and the ability or disposition to jump is as effectually destroyed as Sampson's power was by the loss of his locks.—The animal will not attempt a fence until the eyelids are grown.

ONE of those wonderful children who are continually astonishing their mothers—in print—is represented by the Boston Journal as exclaiming, "Mamma, where did they hatch the first hen?" The reporter came away before mamma made reply.

THE love that has nothing but beauty to sustain it, soon withers away.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS EXPERIENCE IN DENTISTRY.

J. M. SMITH, M. D., would respectfully inform the inhabitants of Bradford County that he is permanently located in Waverly, N. Y., where he has been in the practice of his profession for the past four years. He would say that from his long and successful practice of 25 years duration he is qualified to call the different styles of work done in any and all Dental Establishments in city or country, and is better prepared than any other Dental operator in the vicinity to do work the best adapted to the many and different cases that present themselves oftentimes to the Dentist, as he understands the art of making his own artificial teeth, and has facilities for doing the same. To those requiring under sets of teeth he would call attention to his new kind of work which consists of porcelain for both plate and teeth, and forming a continuous gum. It is more durable, more natural in appearance, and much better adapted to the gum than any other kind of work. Those in need of the same are invited to call and examine specimens. Teeth filled to last for years and attentions for life—Chloroform, Ether, and "Nitrous Oxide" administered with perfect safety, as over four hundred patients within the last four years can testify.

I will be in Towanda from the 15th to 20th of every month, at the office of W. K. TAYLOR, [formerly occupied by Dr. O. H. Woodruff.] Having made arrangements with Mr. Taylor, I am prepared to do all work in the very best style, at his office. April 22, 1867.

DR. VANBUSKIRK, OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL DENTIST, has opened rooms in the Beidleman Block, directly opposite the Means House, for the practice of his profession, and is prepared at all times to perform all operations belonging to Dentistry. The different kinds of Plate Work, will be recommended according to their honest merits. Natural Teeth filled and restored to their original beauty, with material the best adapted to each individual case. The greatest care in Extraction will be given to the correction of irregularities and the extraction of Teeth. In this Department of practice the Doctor would say he claims an amount of skill and experience equal to that possessed by any one in this or any other country. Teeth will be extracted without pain, by the use of gas, chloroform or ether, and in a manner very satisfactory to patients, as the testimony of hundreds can be shown. Please call and examine specimens of our work, and be assured of the correctness of the statements. Advice and consultation will be cheerfully and gratuitously given.

Towanda, June 6, 1867.—6m.

HARDING & SMALLEY,
