The occupants of the house, having been rescued, succeeded in giving the alarm, so that an express train which was approaching the dam was saved from destruction.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION. Towanda, Thursday, Dec. 19, 1867. THE SECRETARY OF THE ASSOCIATION has just submitted to the Executive Committee a voluminous report. He pronounces the finances of the United States "in a much more satisfactory condition than they were a year ago; and he remarks that "in no other commercial country has there been less financial embarrassment than in the United States." Since Sept., 1865, the compound interest notes have been reduced from $97,014,160 to $71,875,040; the seven-thirtieths from $850,000,000 to $37,970,800; the legal tenders, including fractional currency, from $459,505,811 to $387,871,477 3/8, and the cash in the Treasury has been increased from $88,219,055 1/2 to $138,998,399.02. This has been the measure of success of the policy of moderate contraction thus far pursued. He shows great faith in the resumption of specie payments, and thinks it may be brought about by July 1, 1869. But to do this, there must be further contraction of the currency, the funding of the interest-bearing debt in long bonds, or it must be paid, the public faith maintained for the payment of the funded debt, and reconstruction brought to a successful result. He regards the cry to money scarcity all caused the present instability and insecurity in business circles, and the feeling has only to become fixed in community that financial matters are approaching hard jangling metal, to start business enterprise on a stirring footing. He contends that contraction must take place in legal tenders, and not in national bank notes, otherwise it might be proclaimed, that resumption is indefinitely postponed. He advocates high duties, and the extension of the specie list. He would simplify the internal revenue system, and lessen the tax on distilled spirits. He maintains that five twenties should be paid in gold. That the cry may be subdued, that the bondholders escape taxation, he proposes to fund all Government securities in consolidated bonds, bearing six per cent, with twenty years to run, with one sixth of interest reserved, and paid to the States in local taxes. He urges that the payment on the principal should be kept up to add to the national credit. By continuing the payment of taxes at the present rate of $8,80 per head, the debt may be paid in 1884. Whether that may be done soon or distant, Congress must determine. Undoubtedly the wise course is between unlimited expansion and stringent contraction. More that all, the people must be firm in advising their representatives to deal with the whole subject in all candor, justice, and for the highest national and popular good. THE VOTE ON IMPEACHMENT.
