IMPEACHMENT.

The country has quietly settled down, and the people are awaiting convention was composed of delegates from the progress and issue of the Impeachment trial, divested of the tem. porary excitement that for a day or -At Plainfield, N. J., a lad, twelve two disturbed the minds of many.-All the proffers of aid to Congress or the President, were not required by the emergency, for the law itself is ample to dispose of the question.-The case is sufficiently plain-and the offence of the President so palpable, that he has no defenders.

Let us look calmly at the situation :— The constitution provides that the President may appoint his cabinet"by and with the advice and consent of the Senate." He cannot make an officer alone. This check on the appointing power was put by the founders of our government to prevent the posibility of an ambitious and unscrupulous Chief Magistrate gathering around him bad men who should aid his dark and dangerous designs. It could have been made for no other purpose than to prevent just such a combinaton of the Executive and his Cabinet as Mr. Johnson has been trying to accomplish.

By courtesy the appointees of othe Presidents have been allowed to take office on being nominated by him without waiting for confirmation. By like sufferance other Presidents have been allowed to remove and fill Cabinet offices at their pleasure. These courtesies Mr. Johnson has forfeited by his violation and lawless course; by his attempted usurpations and insults to the Senate. The plain letter of the Constitution gives him no power to remove an officer nor appoint without the consent of the Senate.

That there might be no excuse for going contrary to this constitutional limitation, on the strength of precedent.Congress last March, nearly ay ear and Win. Bigler. -An appeal for aid is made by the ago, passed the Civil Tenure of Office sufferers of the recent fire at Pithole. Great law, based on this clause of the Contitution and provides for the punishment of its violation. The first section of that law is this:

Section 1. That any person holding any civil office to which he has been appointed and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and every person who shall hereafter be appointed to any such office and shall become duly qualified to act therein, is and shall be entitled to hold such office until a successor shall have been in like manner appointed and duly qualified, except as hereafter provi

This is all there is in law that relates to removals. The section contains a proviso in relation to certain | President, and Gen. Speed for Vice Presicabinet officers holding over from one administration 30 days in the term of the next President elected, viz: Porvided that the Secretaries of the Treasury, of War, the Navy, of the Interior, and the Postmaster General and the Attorney General, shall hold their offices respectively during the term of the President by whom they may have been apppinted, and one month threafter subject the removal by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

This proviso was made, in part, to secure Mr. Stanton's continuance in Lincoln appointed him.

Last August in the recess of the Senate the President suspended Stanton and appointed Grant-temporary Sec. of War. The Senate refused to concur as soon as it reassembled, so that Stanton immediately went back into the office; the President could not remove without the consent of Governor, Maj. F. A. Hoffman for Secreta-nized the Tennre of office law. Therefore, when he attempted to expel Stanton and put in Thomas he acted in defiance of the Constitution. of the Tenure Law and of the authority of the Senate, which had just voted Stanton back into the office. He contends he only did this to test the question before the courts. Why does he then order Stanton to give up the office before his successor is appointed : and why does he authorize Thomas to act as Secretary of War before he has been confirmed. He now recognizes the latter as Secretary as fully and completely as if the Con-

The oath was then administered to him by Justice Nelson in the following words: "I do solemnly swear that in all things appertaining to the trial of the impeachment Andrew Johnson, President of the United states, I will do impartial justice according to the constitution and laws. So help me

tary in succession." The roll being called, the oath was administered to all the Senstors present, until the name of Senator the Treasury. is to come out of this storm with the prerogatives and limitations of the different departments of the govern-United States should the proceedings of impeachment be sustained. This led to a debate which continued until late in the afternoon, when the further consideration was postponed until to-day, and the court adourned until one o'clock to day. The cour o-day met in pursuance of adjournment and has decided in favor of Mr. Wade's right to sit as a member of the court, and has in compliance with the suggestions of Chief Justice Chase in his communication to the Senate of Wednesday last, adopted rules for the government of the court, which are in substance the same as had been previously adopted by the Senate. The court of impeachment is now completely organi ed, and has issued a summons to the Presilent, commanding him to appear for trial on Friday of next week, the 19th inst, The President no doubt by this time res lizes that congress has the moral courage to arraign him for his many unjustifiable assumptions of power. It was hoped when the House some three months since, refused to adopt the report of the majority of the ommittee on the judiciary, recommending that articles of impeachment be preferred against the President, that its action would end to soften his temper, and that he would be induced to modify his course of action, but this was a delusive hope, as his late ac tion shows that he was encouraged thereby, to still greater aggressions upon the legisla tive department of the government. He has finally laid on the "straw that broke the almost certain. The conduct of the President strongly indicates that he has been acting under false gress, and presenting the names of Grant notions of the power conferred upon him as and Wade for President and Vice-Presi ent. | commander in chief of the army and navy by the Constitution, forgetting that Contion convened in the Hall of the House of gress in the language of the Constitution has power to "make rules for the governmen and regulation of the land and naval forces," and that he as President, can only be Commander in Chief in conformity to the Constitution, and to the laws made in pursu ance thereof. There can be no doubt that under his view of the power conferred upon him as Commander in Chief, he had determined to treat the laws of Congress regulating the army as having no binding force upon him. and under this assumption issued his order of removal of Mr. Stanton, and his command to Adjutant General Thomas to take possession of the War office as Secretary, ad interim, and the whole plan was previously concocted and agreed upon between him and General Thomas, and others, in sympathy with the President. To those who may not be acquainted with the history of Adjutant General Lorenzo Thomas, a short sketch may be interesting. He is now about sixty years of age, was educated by the government, for the Regular Army, acted as Adjutant General through the War, his duties being of an executive character, he has never done duty on the battle field. A man of exquisite neatness of dress and personal appearance, he was always a favorite in what is termed "elegant society" in Washington, and especially a favorite among the ladies. In connection with his appointment by the President as Secretary of War ad interim, the character Somerset county instructed for Gen. Grant in which he was found at a masqurade ball, no the night the Sergeant at arms of the Senate went to serve the notice upon him, of the action of the Senate dissenting from his appointment, and pronouncing the action of the President in violation of the Constitution and the laws, is quite suggestive, and may prove interesting. After a long search in endeavoring to learn his whereabouts, he finally found him at a masqued ball, in the character of Mephistope les; on sending in word to the General he came to the door, with his mask on, when the officer told him he had a notice from the Senate to serve upon him, when Thomas said, "how do you know I am Gen. Thomas?" when the officer said, "I know you by your shoulder straps." The General then raised his mask and the officer read to him the notice of the Senate. The character he had assumed is suggestive of the part he was playing in the role of the President, in attempting to make him ad interim Secretary of War. The reader will readily draw the parallel, when they consider that Mephisto-peles is "one of the seven chief devils in the old demenology, the second of the fallen archangels, and the most powerful of the infernal legions after Satan himself." Johnson as Satan, and Thomas as the second of the fallen, and we have the parallel. C. VOTE ON IMPEACHMENT.

The following, is the roll of honor rom Pennsylvania. Their vote is history—a legacy of honor or shame to their children forever and ever. On the resolution to impeach the President, the members from Pennsylvania voted as follows:

Absent or not voting - Koontz. Rep., Finney, Rep. Total, 2. Mr. Koontz has since obtainted permission of the House to record his yote, and voted "aye."

IMPEACHMENT.

The legal proceedings which the President was to institute so prompty to test the constitutionality of the Tenure of Office act are no longer heard of His Excellency probably finds the legal proceedings in the Senses effecting his tanne of office too closely to give him much time to contest the tenure of any other office.—

The Secretary of War has been patiently awaiting the expected quo war ranto, but it has not yet appeared and in all probability will not. Hon. ROBERT S HALE, of New-York, member of the thirty ninth Congress, who was retained by the Secretary to appear for him in case these proceedings were instituted, left for home last

It will be remembered that the reports printed of the latter differed widely from each other.

WASHINGTON MARCH 8, 1868. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate called at the White House, and delivered to the President the sum mons of the High Court of Impeach ment to appear before it on Friday, the 13th inst. The President quietly. remarked that the summons would receive his attention and the Sergeantmost of today with several of his legal advisers. This evening a number of people were at the White House, seeking an audience, but Mr. Johnson was to busy too see any one. There is some doubt whether he will appear in person before the Senate on Friday

Gen. Thomas will hereafter attend he Cabinet meetings as Secretary of War ad interim, and the President will transact through him all buisiness pertaining to the War Depart ment. It is presumed that the House mpeachment Committee will give their immediate attention to this virtual organization of an independent

War Department in the White House. The House Managers of the Impeachment of President Johnson are holding daily sessions, and have already summoned a number of witneses; among them are the reporters who reproduced Mr. Johnson's 22dof February speech. Mr. Bingham is severely ill, and confined to his able to go to work on Friday next.
