HONORS TO THE FALLEN BRAVE.—In pursuance of the recommendation of the Grand Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, (Gen. Logan,) the officers and members of Post No. 68, of this place, made arrangements for paying a tribute of respect to the memory of their companions who had fallen during the Rebellion, by appropriate ceremonies, and by decorating their graves with flowers. This touching and beautiful tribute to departed worth, is to be continued, given to those who had raised the flag of their country, when armed men stood round the overthrow of our free institutions; and who had gone, singly and bravely carried that flag through Pennsylvania to the Gulf, subduing privations and encountering dangers, to earn many a brave man succumbed and found beneath the sod a relief from the horrors of rebel prisons, or from the agonies of wounds inflicted by rebel hands.

A grateful nation whilst it honors the living heroes, mourns in sincere and deep-felt sorrow over the brave men who sleep beneath the turf on their native hills, or are buried in far-off Southern graves. Their memory is a legacy left to those who survive to enjoy the blessings of free institutions, secured by their bravery and purchased by the sacrifice of their lives. To them most emphatically may be applied the words of Colman:

How sleep the heroes who sink to rest
By all their country's virtues' blest!
When Spring with dewy fingers cold
Returns to deck their hallowed mould,
Then shall dair a sweeter sod,
Than Fairy's have, ever trod.

Fairy hands their knell is rung,
To form their dirge is sung;
The bier that wraps them clay,
And Freedom shall awhile repose,
To dwell a weeping hermit there.

The order of Gen. Logan was to respond in every generous and loyal heart. The members of Post No. 68, exhibited a spirit of respect for their departed brethren, set about carrying into effect the recommendation with their characteristic zeal and energy. The Order of Exercises for Saturday, May 30, was published in our last week's issue, and, as far as practicable, was carried out. A heavy shower about 12 m., delayed the forming of the procession, for a short time, but the clouds soon broke away, and a bright sun dissipated the fears that the afternoon would be unfavorable.

At 12:30, the Court House bell rang for the assembling of citizens and societies, and the procession was formed in the following order:

Chief Marshal—Gen. H. A. FRITH.
Aids—Maj. G. MASON, Maj. C. L. MERCER,
Maj. Alex. Diven, Lieut. E. F. SMITH.
Waverly Cornet Band.
The Clergy.
Families of deceased Soldiers and Sailors in carriages.
Grand Army of the Republic and honorably discharged Soldiers and Sailors, under command of Gen. H. J. MADOLE, with Aids, J. K. VAUGHN, and W. S. VINCENT.
Members of the Masonic Fraternity.
Members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.
Ulster Brass Band.
Teachers and Pupils of the Several Schools.
Citizens.

The citizens of the procession were marshaled by Col. H. B. McKEAN and Lieut. C. F. OATES.

A noticeable feature of the procession was the number of about one hundred, comprising members of many different regiments, who had participated in the severest battles of the war, some of whom bear upon their persons the scars of rebel bullets. While we revere the memory of those who slept with the dead, we honor the living heroes, and many a hat was lifted in respect for them as they marched once more in line, with their comrades.

The procession passed up Main St., to Chestnut St., and thence to William St., where it was joined by twenty-two young girls, who had been selected to decorate the graves of the dead, bearing wreaths, and bouquets of flowers, and presenting an attractive and lovely sight. Having reached the Cemetery grounds, the procession was halted, and the mounted men dismounted. Playing thereon the Cemetery Bands played the Dead March, the girls proceeded to each grave, upon which they placed the wreaths and decorated the flowers. During this solemn and affecting ceremony, the tribute of many a sad, sorrowful heart, and tearful eye, was paid to the memory of those who slumbered beneath the green turf, but whose brave deeds still survive to comfort the mourning hearts of friends and relatives.

This sad duty performed, the procession marched to the island, where the music was led, and the opening prayer was made by the bands, the organist, and the choir. The Bands played the Dead March, the girls proceeded to each grave, upon which they placed the wreaths and decorated the flowers. During this solemn and affecting ceremony, the tribute of many a sad, sorrowful heart, and tearful eye, was paid to the memory of those who slumbered beneath the green turf, but whose brave deeds still survive to comfort the mourning hearts of friends and relatives.

THE GALAXY.—This is among the most enteraining of the amorous and taste multiplying magazines, filled with choice matter and illustrated in good style, not but flashy. The contents for June are: Stephen Lawrence, Yeoman, by Mr. Edwards; (illustrated); The Lady Jacqueline; Jarcho Life; Grapes and Wild Flowers; A Problem, (illustrated); To a Lady; Forged Marches; Beechwood, (illustrated); A trip to the Wyndham Gave! Our Galaxy Management; Apple Blossoms; The Galaxy Miscellany. The Galaxy contains 33 pages of reading matter, and is furnished at $4.00 a year. Address—SHEPPARD & CO., 498 Broadway, New York.

A FINE ENGRAVING.—We are indebted to the publisher and artist, J. H. Littlefield, for a copy of the engraving of his portrait of General Grant, executed by Dr. Gugler, a German, who attained celebrity in Europe before practicing his art in this country. As a specimen of steel work it is, we believe, not inferior to anything of its size and kind ever published in America and will unquestionably become the standard portrait of his subject. As a likeness it is unexceptionable, being done with a vivacity, an animation, and spirit such as is generally characterized by the word "speaking." The earnestness of expression, as of a man intently listening and just ready to deliver a spirited answer, is in this portrait remarkable, and, as such, has been much commented on. Published by the artist, J. H. Littlefield, 411 Pennellman Avenue, Washington.

SWEET WEDDING.—The Troy Times says a pleasant commencement of their twenty-fifth wedding day took place at the house of Mr. and Mrs. SAMUEL FENSTER on Friday evening last. The company was numerous and joyous, and the evening passed away with more than usual pleasure to the guests who did ample justice to the wedding feast. The affair was impressive, and the happy couple will long remember the pleasant faces, and kind wishes that cheered them on their Silver Wedding.

Mr. P. W. was the recipient of a superbly beautiful afghan, made by the hands of the ladies. Although silver presents were prohibited, an elegant silver cake knife and fork were the only thing among other presents. May the couple live to celebrate their golden wedding with undiminished health and prosperity, and may the circle of their friends increase with the years.

WATERLOO IRISH.—From the Advertiser:

J. E. BURN, one of the victims of the Rock Riot, has so far recovered that he was brought to his home in this village on Wednesday last. He was brought on a bed suspended by India Rubber strips kindly provided by the Erie Company, and without the fatigues of the journey quite well.

The work of completing the coal socket and coal pocket at the terminus of the Pa. & N.Y. Railroad, is the eastern part of our village, is being prosecuted with great vigor. They will be very extensive works, indeed, and they indicate the extension of the coal business soon to be carried on in this locality.

The rainy weather has very frequently interfered with work on the main turnpike at the junction, but it will soon be completed, and will be the largest structure of the kind on the State road.
