These latter will probwho have contributed to the result, ably have control of the Legislarures are doomed to certain and bitter disof both States, and can enact such-appointment. They are to realize the experience of the man in the fable who warmed the adder in his bosom, and they will awake to their folly and danger when too late to remedy the evils of their credulousness and folly. Gov. WALKER, of Virginia it is true, talks fairly enough, particularly in assurances generally, of a support of Gen. GRANT's administration. But the repulse given to the offer of the Chairman of the Republican State Committee, looking towards a union of the Republicans of that State, and the healing of all divisions, by the Chairman of the WALKER Republican Committee, is not evidence of a desire or intention to affiliate with the Radicals of the State, but rather shows that the Democracy are to be courted, and that the controlling influences of the dominant party are to be those which have not at heart the uccess of Republican principles. In Tennessee the contest has been protracted and bitter, and the position even more inexplicable and anomolous. Senter was supported by some of the most distinguished radicals of the State, and could he faithfully carry out the declarations made during the campaign, and fulfill all his pledges, there would not be any reason to regret his election. In the address which he issued to the people of Tennessee, he explained his position and policy in the following inequivocal language:---

"I stand fully and frankly upon the platform of the National Republican party, as adopted at the Chicago Convention in May, 1669, and as illustrated by the administration of President Grant. These views and principles are, as I conceive, founded in justice and right. They are similar to the doctrinos of the Dec-laration of Independence; they appeal to the con-actence of every honcest and sincere Republican. By them I am willing to stand or fall."
