Norway Oats.

MESSRS. EDITORS OF THE BRADFORD REPORTER—Dear Sirs: There has been much published about the so-called "Norway Oats," and they have become the leading topic of conversation among prominent farmers in this section. Now, as I grew some of this grain last season, and many are anxious to know whether they are a new specimen, and an improvement, I thought it my duty to give the farmers of Bradford, through your paper, my experience and opinion of the said oats. Early last spring I purchased of D. W. Ramsdell, accredited agent, one bushel. Had a field which had grown potatoes the preceding year, with no manure, plowed in spring for oats, three days previous to sowing. Measured off one acre for Norways, one-half of which was steep side-hill and poor land. Drew, and spread evenly on poor places, eight loads of green horse manure. Sowed broadcast, same time, Norways, Black Club, and common white oats, side by side. Gave each the usual amount of harrowing. Nothing more done to Norways until harvested. Sowed plaster on other oats at the rate of one bushel per acre. Result of Norway, fifty-nine bushels measured from machine, or seventy-three bushels and three pecks by weight, which is more than double the yield of my other oats. I watched the growth of the three different kinds of oats, and took disinterested persons, at different times, with me, to examine them, and there was such a marked contrast in the width of leaf, size and color of straw, number of stalks growing from one kernel, and general length of head, that none doubted but what they were a new specimen and a great improvement. All who examined them while growing were pleased with the result, and requested me to save seed for them. I have sold and promised twenty bushels of my crop, at $5,00 per bushel, to individuals who saw them growing, and have thirty bushels more for sale at the same price.

Now I don't wish to delude my brother farmers in the sale of this grain by over-rating it, for I don't expect to make a fortune from it; but I do candidly think it an improvement, and also that I can grow one hundred bushels per acre from one bushel of this seed. Am fully impressed with the idea that there is no variety of oats in this section that can be made to compete with the genuine Ramsdell Norway, on the same land, with like treatment and culture. One thing I would say to farmers, who have grown Norways: If you had to make close examinations to discriminate between your Norways and other oats while growing, I think you havn't the kind of Norways which I have. Allowing that they have proven a failure in some instances, there is one thing worthy of note which speaks well for them, that is not applicable to humbugs. Their much greater productiveness than other oats grown side by side, has increased their reputation remarkably.

S. A. CHAFFEE.

ORWELL, Feb. 2, 1870.

Summary of the Benefits of Draining.

Tile draining acts in various ways. In a wet time it allows the surplus water to pass off, and air to penetrate the soil—thus raising the temperature of the lower strata, and stimulating the growth of roots.

It hastens the decomposition of roots and other organic matter.

It accelerates the disintegration of the minerals of the soil.

It improves its mechanical texture.

It tends to prevent grasses running out.

It renders soils earlier in the spring.

It greatly lessens the throwing out of gran in winter.

It allows us to work sooner after rains.

It keeps off the effects of cold weather in the fall—thus extending the growing season.

It hastens the decay of vegetable matter.

It admits fresh quantities of water from rains, which are always more or less imbued with the fertilizing gases of the atmosphere, to be deposited among the absorbent parts of soil, and given up to the demands of plants.

Warm air, containing moisture in the form of vapor, having a chance to circulate through a cooler strata of soil, necessarily deposits its moisture.

The throwing out of roots in winter is prevented, because there is no water to freeze and expand.

Use of Lime in Agriculture.

The action of lime is two-fold: first physical, and second, chemical. As a mechanical agent it opens stiff clays, rendering them friable, mellow, and more easily worked; chemically, it acts upon the vegetable matter of the soil and sets free those of valuable substances which, without the action of this agent, must have remained inert and useless. It also enters directly into the composition of plants, and in many varieties forms a large proportion of the weight of their inorganic constituents. It neutralizes certain acids which are often present in soils, rendering them useful for vegetation instead of being positively injurious, which they are in their original state. The existence of water in the soil, however, affects the of action lime very considerably. If the land is wet and undrained, lime will not exert the same influence which it would do in the case of thoroughly drained land. A greater quantity of lime is necessary to produce a given effect, and thus the neglect of thorough drainage entails a considerable greater expenditure in liming, than would have been necessary, if the land was either naturally or artificially dry.—Cameron's Chemistry of Agriculture.

Sewing Machines.

THE NEW AND IMPROVED ELIAS HOWE FAMILY SEWING MACHINES,

Were awarded the First Prize at the Paris Exposition, 1867, over 82 other Machines.

Also, the following State Fairs of 1868 have awarded this Machine the first premium:

New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Wisconsin, and Indiana.

At the County Fairs of Madison, Onondaga, Oswego, Wayne, Orleans, Tompkins, Seneca, Monroe, Herkimer, Schuyler, Livingston, and a host of others.

Report of the Committee on Sewing Machines, at the State Fair held in Rochester, fall of 1868: "Your Committee have examined the different Sewing Machines, to which their attention was called, and would recommend as the best Family Machine for all work, Elias Howe's Sewing Machine, and for the following reasons: 1st—Simplicity of construction. 2d—Regularity of tension on both upper and lower threads. 3d—Ease of management. 4th—Great range of work upon all materials. 5th—The perfect attachments to the Machine for felling, hemming, tucking, braiding, quilting, binding and cording, and the ease with which they are applied. 6th—The durability of the Machine, it being made of hardened steel, and adjusted in its bearings. We recommend a medal."

New style Hemmer, Braider, Tucker, Quilter, Corder, Embroiderer, Binder, Feller and Improved Tuck Marker.

It will use any and every kind of thread, from the finest to the coarsest, with a much smaller needle than other machines. Be sure and examine one before you purchase. Price from $50 to $200, and every machine warranted. The real value of our Manufacturing Machines for Tailors, Boot, Shoe, Harness and Carriage Makers, is too well known to require comment. Don't fail to call and see them.
