No longer brushing back my hair, It gently rested on my wrist ; Its touch seemed sacred as a prayer Just by the breath of angels kissed. I knew 'twas thin, and brown, and old, With many a deep and honored scam, Wearing one little band of gold The only trace of vonth's bright dream : And yet o'er every mark of care,

I fancied jewels gleaming there That were a beauty all divine. Another hand my fingers pressed— Twas like the lily diped in snow; Yet still it gave a wild unrest— A weariness that none should know There pearls with costly diamonds gleamed And opals showed their changing glow As moonlight on the ice has beamed,

In every wrinkle's mystic line,

The war ended, the rebellion subdued, the bondmen emancipated, the Republican party entered upon the third era of its eventful history. Though conquered by arms, the rebels did not accept the just, humane, and generous ideas of the victors, nor did they return to their proper allegiance and loyalty to the Government, but still bemoaning the Government as fixed and final has demonstrated its niter incapacity for separate; and will more the thereber of human organs—the apple of the eye, though pierced and buffets of the e demonstrated its utter incapacity for separate, and will move the whole enormous fabric with as much case as a giant would stir a straw.
