Durham Cattle.

The Durham, or improved short-horns, as a breed, originated toward the close of the last century; the basis of it being a class of cows at that time to be found in the counties in the north of England, especially in Durham. They were noted as good milkers, and for large size, which was due to the fertility of that region. So susceptible were these animals in the hands of the skillful breeder that they gained a high reputation, and to this day they have maintained their position, though, as a breed, they have lost, to some extent, their strongly developed milking qualities of the old stock. This was, perhaps, the fault of the breeder rather than of the breed. The abundance of nutritious food furnished to the young animal induced an early maturity, which led to the general practice of breeding for beef rather than milk, and to the subsequent neglect of the dairy qualities. This valuable breed is well adapted to this country for producing beef, and they should be introduced in all parts of our best grazing country. As a breed they are eminently fitted for our soils and climates. They need plenty of feed, and, according to weight and bulk, they require no more than the native stock.

While commending the Durhams, or short-horns, for our country, there are places where other breeds, as the Ayrshire and Alderney, will prove more profitable, that is, where forage and grasses are scarce and high in price, or in the mountain ranges, where the herbage is short and difficult of access. In such locations a lighter, nimbler breed thrives, as the Ayrshires and Alderneys, as these two breeds are noted for their milk and butter qualities, are preferred in the Eastern States, but when beef is the consideration, the Durham and short-horns are the cattle to raise for profit, and we have at the present time, in this country as fine herds to select from as in the world.

How to Make Cuttings Grow.

Alluding to the manner of propagating cuttings, the New England Farmer says that it has been ascertained that a cutting will develop roots much sooner in moist than in rich soil. But the sand cannot maintain its growth for any length of time. To prepare pots for raising cuttings they should be filled nearly to the brim with rich garden loam, dark and porous, not clayed and soggy; then pour in one inch in depth of scouring sand; sea sand will do as well as the yellow sand. Wet this thoroughly, and place the cuttings, from which all but three or four upper leaves have been removed, close to the side of the pot; the contact of the ware against the stem of the cutting promotes its growth. Press the wet sand firmly around the tiny stem. A great deal of your chance of success in raising slips or cuttings depends upon this.

Plant as many cuttings as the pot will hold, from six to a dozen, according to the size of your pot; when they are firmly set in sand, two or three can be inserted in the middle of the pot. Set them away in a dark, warm place for twenty-four or thirty-six hours. Thus, cuttings will grow thickly in a hot bed, because the temperature is not dry. Their growth depends a great deal upon the light, heat and moisture.

If a bud is close at the base of a cutting it will strike root more easily—is not so apt to decay. The roots shoot from a bud, and the lower down it is the surer your success. When the leaves drop, the plant is commencing to grow; if they wither on the stem, it has begun to decay. By following these directions, no one can fail to grow all kinds of house plants. Roses and all the rarest flowers of the green houses are propagated in this manner.

The Horse Nettle.

A correspondent of the Oxford Press writing from Delaware county on this nuisance says:

The Canada Thistle (cirsium arvense) is harmless compared with the Horse nettle. I have known the nettle to get a foot hold on two farms in this neighborhood, in both cases was easily destroyed. In one case it was smothered out by a thick coating of straw or hay, in the other by cutting just below the ground and applying a handful of salt to the root. But the Horse Nettle (soi unum carolinense) whenever it gets well established will remain. Its march is onward. It is plentiful in Concord, Thornbury, Middleton and Chester. My old friend Mr. Mehan, of Germantown, says cut off the top continually, no vegetable can stand that, the root must die. Any reasonable weed would succumb to such treatment, and I suppose it may thus be prevented from spreading, but to destroy it is not so easy. I used seven bags of salt on one field last year with some advantage but it will take years at the same rate to destroy it. My advice to any one who is so unfortunate as to get it on his farm is: Every time the field is plowed there is a tenfold increase of the nuisance. Every inch of the root is sufficient to produce a plant, and the roots are coiled up in the ground, often spirally, waiting for the plow to scatter them about. I know of no method so likely to eradicate as the free use of salt, but even that will have to be applied again and again as new shoots appear. If all farmers would make themselves acquainted with the plant and attack it on its first appearance they might succeed in destroying it without great cost or labor.

KILLING FLIES.—The smoke of the dried leaves of a pumkin burnt on a bright fire will, it is said, cause flies to quit an apartment instantly or it will kill them. Birds must be withdrawn before the operation, and persons should abstain from going into apartments immediately after, as the smoke causes headaches. The employment of laurel oil is also said to be a preservative against flies, as they cannot bear the smell of it.

ENGLISH POTATO BALLS.—Boil some potatoes very dry, mash them as smoothly as possible, season well with salt and pepper, warm them with about an ounce of butter to the pound and a few spoonfuls of good cream. Let them cool a little, roll them into balls, sprinkle over them some crushed vermacelli or macaroni and fry them a light brown.

The foregoing we have frequently in our family, and will be much liked if the receipts are strictly followed.

PHILADELPHIA OPTICAL INSTITUTE,

For the manufacturing of the

CONCAVE CONVEX, CRYSTAL LENSES, LONDON SMOKED AND TINTED GLASS FOR WEAK OR INFLAMED EYES.

The Concave Convex Crystal Spectacles, made by the above institute are now a long time before the public, and the rapid and increased demand for them combined with the universal acknowledgment of their clearness in vision and ease to the eye, shows plainly that they are superior to any other glasses in the market.

The majority of Spectacles, (mostly imported) and no matter how fine the frames, contain but a poor and worthless article of glasses, (generally cast or pressed,) they are made to be sold only, without any calculation respecting benefit to the eye, and therefore the great complaint of poor and weak sight. Thousands are using glasses now which tires and fatigue the eye, where the objects get dim after short usage, or requires an intensely strong light and therefore destroying the sight, which, were they properly suited, would be preserved a life time.

The advantages claimed for the Concave Convex Crystal Glasses are the following:

The Lenses are ground of the best material, pure and hard, and made only for optical purposes, they are therefore not liable to get scratched or slip.

They confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision not found in any other glass.

They can be used equally well by day or candle light without tiring or fatiguing the eyes.

They are ground mathematically true in the concave convex mirror, according to the philosophy of nature, and shape of cornea of the eye, therefore assisting nature only instead of forcing it.

That the lenses are centered correct into the frames. They can be used longer than any other glasses without changing to a higher power.

The frames are made strong and durable by experienced workmen and warranted to give satisfaction.

WM. A. CHAMBERLIN,

Dealer in Watches, Jewelry and Silver Ware, Towanda, Pa. has the sole Agency for these glasses in Bradford county. No Peddlers employed.

SUSQUEHANNA COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

TOWANDA, BRADFORD COUNTY, PA.

This institution has just been thoroughly repaired and improved, and will be reopened TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 6, 1870, under the charge of G. W. Ryan and E. E. Quinlan, Associate Principals, who will devote their entire time to instructing in the various departments and to the general supervision and management of the school. They will be assisted by excellent and experienced teachers in all the departments.

The courses of instruction are Preparatory and Graduating English, Normal, Commercial, Scientific Classical and Ornamental.

The Preparatory is designed to thoroughly qualify the smaller pupils for the studies of the English Graduating Course, which comprises all academic studies, languages excepted.

The first year of this course completed, they can enter either of the other courses. The Normal course affords thorough instruction in Common School studies and Theory and Practice of Teaching. Students in the Commercial Department have all the advantages of the best commercial schools in addition to thorough drill in necessary academic branches.

The Scientific Course in addition to the studies of the Graduating English, French and German, comprises special instruction in the Sciences illustrated by an excellent collection of Apparatus recently provided.

The first two years of the Classical Course are intended to prepare students well for College; the third year to fit for advanced classes in College or to combine classics with a special course in the Sciences.

The Ornamental, Modern Languages, Music, Drawing and Painting, will be taught by competent Instructors.

Board and rooms are provided in the Institute. For further particulars address

My Satin and Silk Goods are cut blazing.

MISS E. BRANDT,

One door south of Mercur's Bank.

Sept. 29,'70.

THE UNDERSIGNED WOULD respectfully say that the Florist Establishment heretofore belonging to Mr. H. Mix, shall in future be conducted by me, and by strict attention to business I hope to merit the liberal patronage bestowed on my late employer. Also, in season, I will attend to the pruning of grape vines (within the borough). Any one desiring my services can find me at my Green House.

JAMES O. IRVING.
