"Wha for Scotland's king and law Freedom's sword would strongly draw, Freemen stand, or freemen fa', Caledonian! on wi' me!"

At an early hour on the morning f the second of July, I landed on Scottish soil at the little port of Ardrossan. Our passage across the "North Channel" occupied about nine hours-the route of our vessel lying between the Mull of Kinture and the Isle of Arran on the north. and Ailsa Crae on the south. On board the "Earl of Belfast" it was my good fortune to form the acquaintance of Hon. Horatio King and members of his family, who, after a brief excursion to Ireland, were now like myself making their way towards Glasgow and Edinburg. A native of Maine, Mr. K. had been for many years a resident of Washington, connected there with the Post-Office De-

After a delay of an hour in the gray dawn at Ardrossan, we proceeded by railway towards Glasgowpassing through Paisley, so widely celebrated for its manufacture of showls; my wife, however, not hap-pening to be with me, I did not find it absolutely necessary to stop for the purchase of one.

A considerable portion of our route lay through a region abounding in the tall smoke stacks of mining and manufacturing industry: presenting in these modern times a comewhat incongruous feature amid many scenes of romantic historical associa ions, through the land of the heather and the plaid, where the grimy arti-san now takes the place of the picturesque Highlander, and the sooty chimney of the forge, mill, or col-liery usurps the once undisputed domain of the turreted castle. Arriving in Buchanan Street. Glas-

Its iron manufactures are immense—about 1.000.000 tons of the material being required annually for their supply; while in 1830 only 40,000 were used. In the year 1800, the receipts for customs were $4,000—while they now exceed $4,000,000. UNHEALTHINESS OF FEATHERS.—The reason of feathers being so unhealthy to sleep on is because they are very poor conductors of heat, and consoquently keep the skin overheated, de-bilitating it, preventing the full per-formance of its functions, and rendering the person more liable to colds. Not only this, but the functions of the skin being impaired, the liver, kidneys and lungs have to do extra duty, and are liable to become diseased in consequence. Another objection to feathers is, that
