

News From all Nations.

The railroad bridge near Snyder is near completion. A cheese factory has already gone to work at Ripon, Wis. Some parts of Georgia have planted less cotton than last year. The Pennsylvania iron works, at Daville, are all ready to go into blast. The Piquionne Railway will not reach Eau Claire in less than two years. A man in Maine caught 242 minkes in one day. The Maine marble quarries employ 4,000 men. Kansas added forty-two to her newspaper last year. The floating capital on the Mississippi river is $1,500,000,000. Caterpillars are unusually numerous near Vicksburg, Ind. One man's interest in a Kewanee, Illinois, coal mine sold last for $10,000. The Brooklyn Police Commissioners want $20,000 next year. Mr. and Mrs. Madame Carl Hora are in Berlin. Maggie Mitchell has a new play, "Over Yonder." Ole Bull's brother Edward, originally coming to America in August.

Henry Ward Beecher has promised to preach one sermon at Saratoga some time during the summer. Boston papers record the mysterious disappearance of a temperance lecturer, who when last seen, was drunk. The fine for picking flowers at the Central Park in New York is twenty-five dollars. Bases are now caught in the Arkansas river, weighing two and one-half pounds. Senator Morrill and Speaker Blaine, of Maine, leave for Europe immediately. Illinois has paid the last claim against the Illinois and Michigan Canal and the Chicago and Alton Railroad companies have fenced their road for 200 miles along the river.

Ex-Senator Reeds, of Mississippi, is president of Alcorn University, at Jackson. The lowest estimate for the California gold this year is $6,000,000,000. The highest bid for the Calcutta gold is $12,000,000. Two Juliet, Ill., sisters, married the same day fifty years ago, have celebrated their golden nuptials.

The late fire in the woods of South New Jersey destroyed $800,000 worth of property, mostly standing timber.

The Kankakee (Ill.) Stone and Lime Company shipped 1,000 car loads of stone last week, 21,000 bushels.

The Massachusetts Senate has voted to consider its right to charter narrow gauge railroads.

Oysters in the shell, packed in ice, are shipped from Cristobal, Md., to Chicago in refrigerated cars.

The use of paper for railway car wheels is approved and increasing. The wheels have iron or steel-drawn tires.

Mr. Feupo, just deceased, in Massapequa, witnessed Washington's review of colonial troops at New York.

A horned toad travelled from Nevada to Washington, via express box by mail, and was taken out quite lively.

The bachelors of Detroit have a club, constitutionally prohibited from marrying below $20,000 and a broker house.

The Boston-builders of the iron tank includes big Novelty, have succeeded so well that they will at once duplicate her.

Broad's Island, Boston, connected with the battle of Bunker Hill, has been laid up and is no longer used.

Clarke Skeleford, Norwegian, and his wife are living at Waukegan, Ill., and his son is in the service.

The directors of the Texas Railroad report their early consolidation with the Transcontinental and South Pacific.

The post-office revenue for the current fiscal year is expected by the Department to surpass that of last year by $10,000,000.

Mr. Wood, of Shenandoah, Conn., has the contract for a bridge, 200 feet long, 100 feet wide, over the Roanoke at Shepherdstown.

The Big Springs on Laramie Hill Mountain has been bought by a Pittsburgh company to propagate trout. A great hotel will be built near by.

The St. Louis cattle market last week had only 2,000 head of cattle being driven in, and the number of purchases was very small.

The Pennsylvania capitalists who have bought iron lands in Alabama, expect to furnish the South Pacific rails at $10 less per ton than the iron competitors can per ton.

All of the western papers agree that the new state will exceed that of any previous, and California and Oregon are raised so much.

The bonds of the city of Frederick, Md., for subscription to the Fredericksburg and Potowmack Line Railroad are selling.

Norfolk, Va., is excited over bidding for the new bridge, which all the public players are showing how they came there, and two acres.

On the 26th of April, 119,000 head of cattle had passed Belton, Texas, for Kansas and Colorado, the cattle driving season having ended.

A New York police captain is induced to pay a visit to the police chief of a small town, given by a lot of gamblers and dance-house keepers.

The Houghton, (L.S.), Gazette says nearly all of the iron ore that will be mined this season has been contracted for already, and that each year will be more than 100,000 tons.

New Jersey has received 500 more Swedish emigrants, who immediately took up residence to join the like number received before. Another similar colony is due now.

The bands of several towns and cities along the Ottawa, Dauphin and Fox River, Illinois, are sold, for the fact that they have not been allowed sufficient voice in the community.

Jeffersonville, Kentucky, has obtained another significant foundry, which has three feet deep, two grinders were each half an inch wide, and the remains included a man twelve feet high.

Lafayette raised $1,000 of $15,000, at one meeting, to make Franklin and Jefferson counties, and the total amount, so far, has been subscribed previously, so that the result is certain.

For eighteen months Chinamen have been looting ships of pure gold in Australia, and have taken away $20 to $200. The pieces are to be cleaned, cut into small, and one thousand where that is located.

Whilst these resolves will not suffice to decoy any intelligent voter, they are evident that the shrewd and ambitious leaders of the Democracy recognize the necessity for ignoring the issues of the past, and advancing their standards to the ideas and requirements of the present. It is a virtual acknowledgement of the justice and propriety of the great and vital reforms which have been brought about by the Republican party. The bill of indictment prepared against the dominant party has been ignored — the Democracy surrendered the ground upon which it had made such a desperate but unsuccessful stand, aware that the party had been against them, and to hope for the achievement of success they must gain possession of the position held by their opponents. It will be a refreshing sight to see the Democratic party arrayed under the flag of Paris.

A Boston produce firm shipped 1,000 bushels of grain in bulk, received in a box, and sent to the market, and received the same way back, next, and was contracted for a like shipment by another. This apparently magnifies business.

Bradford Reporter.

EDITORS: E. O. GOODRICH, S. W. ALVORD.
Towanda, Thursday, June 1, 1871.

PUBLICAN STATE TICKET.
FOR AUDITOR GENERAL: DAVID STANTON, OF BEAVER.
FOR SURVEYOR GENERAL: CO. I. ROBERT D. BEATH, OF SCHUYLKILL.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The Pennsylvania Legislature adjourned sine die on Saturday last at 12 o'clock.

THE CONVERSION OF THE DEMOCRACY.

The Pennsylvania Legislature adjourned sine die on Saturday last at 12 o'clock.

The so-called Democratic party contains two distinct and antagonistic elements. Antagonistic, however, only as regards the policy and utterances of that organization. For, however much they may differ as to the language to be used, their discipline is so perfect, that they harmonize as a unit at the polls. These two elements are, firstly, the Bourbons and fossils of the party — men who never forget and never learn — who swear by the "Constitution as it was," and would restore the country to the same social and political condition which existed at the outbreak of the rebellion. These men ignore the inexorable logic of events, and will not become reconciled to the progress and the revolutions of the past ten years. They compose the ruling element of the Democratic party, and have heretofore shaped its policy, and named its candidates.

Lately, a new element has been developed, which has manifested a disposition to make a new departure from the fossilized and moss-covered traditions of the Democracy. Having vainly waited for the popular wave which was to bury beneath its overwhelming torrent the principles and gold watch and chain. We quote, closing paragraphs of Mr. STRANKE'S remarks:

"Speaker, four years of my legislative experience have been passed in conjunction with this House as a member of this body; and, consequently, in the discharge of my duties as a speaker, I have been compelled to adduce my own testimony to the unanimous testimony of this House, that, during my entire career, I have been a member of this body, and an individual member of this body, I can bear witness to the high summit of his political and moral character, and to the entire absence of any taint of baseness or infamy from his conduct."

Mr. MARSHALL then presented the Speaker with a handsome crayon portrait.

Mr. REED, of Gen. Sedgwick, our courteous and efficient Chief Clerk, I desire to present to you, as a slight token of regard from one who is a member of your staff during a long, tedious and turbulent session.

As the hour of twelve drew near, Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:—

"To me it is both with pleasure and regret that we are informed that our labor has terminated, and we are more to return to our families and our homes, than to our constituents, who have the right to demand of us, and judge us according to our acts."

As the hour of twelve drew near,

Speaker WREN addressed the House as follows: