Agricultural.

Watering Garden Plants.

Watering garden plants, as commonly practiced, is an absolute injury to vegetation, for the reason that it is not done plentifully enough. When the earth is dry and hot, the application of a little water only increases the heat, and has a tendency to make the soil more compressed and dryer than before. The most of our soils are more or less calcareous and the action of the sun's heat has the same effect as heat upon lime-stone; the carbonic acid is expelled and when brought in contact with moisture, heat is generated, and unless sufficient moisture is applied to overcome the heat, vegetation suffers.

A sprinkling pot should never be used in time of drouth, unless the soil at the roots of the plants is at the same time thoroughly soaked, and the watering should always be done after sunset, when the dew has begun to fall. This is in accordance with natural laws. Rain and sunshine seldom appear together; and further, when nature waters vegetation, the atmosphere is filled with moisture.

Pool water and soap-suds are good for the garden, and cistern water may be used, but should be exposed to the sun and air through the day before applying. Strong liquid from the barnyard is death to garden plants, and should only be used after diluting until very weak. Our plan of watering, to avoid making a hard surface crust around the plants, is to dig three or four holes on different sides of the hill, a few inches away, and into these pour not less than one pailful of water, and after all has sonked in, replace the dry earth, and then with watering pot sprinkle the tops. We have many times carried cucumber and other vines through severe drouths, and received a bountiful yield from them.—Ohio Farmer.

The Rutga Baga Crop.

Some of our best farmers annually put in an acre or two of Rutga Bagas and thus lay up for winter a supply of good, succulent food that comes into use when they are obliged in a great measure to depend upon dry food only. When the bagas are chopped up and sprinkled with a little corn-meal or bran, they are eaten eagerly by cows and steers, and are not only fattening and milk-producing but extremely wholesome. They are raised as easily as a crop of ordinary turnips in drills. The ground must be well prepared and manured deeply, the rows struck about thirty inches apart and the seed drilled in. When up two or three inches the plants should be thinned out, removing the weakest, to four or five inches apart, and thoroughly cleared of weeds. The cultivator should be passed through once or twice carefully. In three or four weeks another thinning out should take place allowing the plants to stand from eight to ten inches apart. The hoe should be freely used between the plants and the cultivator between the rows. Frequent stirring of the ground is indispensable in the production of a large crop. They are not removed from the ground before November. We have known eight hundred bushels to be raised to the acre and have heard of twelve hundred.

The seed should be put in the ground from the 15th of June to the 1st of July. A sod broken up the previous autumn is perhaps the best for this crop.—Germantown Tel.

Getting Rich by Farming.—J. R. Garretsee describes in the American Rural Home, his visit to the farm of E B. Root, well known as an enterprising farmer living west of Rochester. He began farming when eighteen years old, on thirty acres which his father left to him. We have, on a former occasion published a statement of his success, but we may now recapitulate from the account before us, that from the products of his farm, as he increased it in size, he paid off all the heirs, bought and improved 400 acres more, then worth $56 an here, and now more than double; put up some $20,000 worth of buildings, and now lives on a fine estate of 700 acres, thousands invested besides. He has never made a dollar by any outside speculation. He takes hold with his own hands, or is always in the midst of his business. He adopts the following rotation: One-fourth of the plow-land in wheat, one-half of which is on fallow and and half on barley stubble; one-eighth in corn and other hoed crops; one-eighth in barley; one-fourth in pasture and fallow; one-fourth in meadow—clover always after wheat—and the fallow deeply inverted clover sod.—Country Gentleman.

About the Door.—A bit of shrubbery in the yard, a vine climbing by a trellis, a strip of refreshing green spread from the door, are sure to make a place of greater marketable value, which, with many, is a consideration to be thought of before any other. Such need no further appeal to their sense of neatness, then. But those who really love the suggestions of beauty for their own sake will not omit the turf patch, and shrubbery, and the hedge and vine, because they make almost any home more attractive and lovely, and cause the sentiments to sprout, like the very leaves and buds themselves. How few stop to consider what a powerful association lies lurking in every simple but familiar object, like a bush, a bit of grass, or a border of flowers. They are objects that hold us almost as steadily and strongly to home as wife and children—they are closely associated with a pleasant home and can with difficulty be separated. Therefore, we say to all, brush up about the door, and plant near by an object of simple beauty. It will bear fruit in the heart of a hundred fold.

Weeds.—If not already done, pull out red-root from winter wheat. Spud the thistles; pull docks after a soaking rain, while the ground is loose. Attend to the weeds in the fence corners and along the ditches, and around stone heaps, and suffer none to go to seed. The oftener thistles and other weeds can be mown in pastures, the better. The weeds generally rob us of half our profits, and often take the whole. Declare a war of extermination. Give up the silly notion that weeds cannot be killed and go at the business with energy and promptness, and success will attend him who preserves. Recollect that it is the last blow that kills. If you stop short of this, your labor is thrown away.

Greeley answers an inquiry as to the best way to make a hot bed thusly: About a quarter of a pound of cayenne pepper sprinkled in just before retiring will probably make it warm enough.

Secondly,

WHERE THEY ARE SOLD CHEAP

And in order to be able to sell a good article cheap the merchant must understand his business, and know how, where and what to buy as a practical man does; and a

RAWSON

Mowing Machine.

HARVEST OF 1871.

A NEW INVENTION,

PATENTED NOVEMBER 29, 1870.

And applied to every Machine: is so constructed that you do not have to use the lever in turning either way. It will run on any line just as easy as on a straight line, taking all the side pressure from the horses. It has a full joint and will describe a full circle either way, saving half the labor for the horses and driver. The upper frame is so jointed or attached to the lower frame, as to form a lifting lever taking a large part of the weight of the bar from the ground and placing it back upon the driving-wheels, and lessening the draft of the machine, making one of the lightest draft machines in use.

The machine has been greatly improved and is manufactured by using wrought iron and steel in the place of cast iron. The Castor Wheel is upon a steel spring with wrought iron bolts, making it light and strong. We can say to farmers that they can depend upon having a machine that has no equal. It has cast steel shafts, and both sides plated with cast steel. Machines are warranted in every particular. If any part breaks from defects in material or workmanship new parts will be sent without extra charge.

The Finger Bar is carried at both ends on wheels; can change the wheels so as to cut three heights of stubble. The machine has a flexible finger bar, and will conform to the inequalities of the ground over which it is drawn, doing as good work upon uneven ground as upon even ground.

THE REAR BAR MACHINE

Has a double-folding Finger Bar, having a longitudinal, oscillating motion. This machine has wheels at both ends of the finger bar, and is so arranged that you can set them to cut any height, and can back out without raising the lever.

Ever opened in this market, is now on exhibition and for sale at the well-known store of

W. A. CHAMBERLAIN.

Mr. C. has just returned from the city, and flatters himself that his stock has been bought at bottom figures, and that he can offer better inducements to purchasers of first-class goods than any establishment in the country. Dec.8,'70

IMPORTANT TO ALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT!

The sight of the aged assisted, the weak strengthened and the perfect preserved.

PHILADELPHIA OPTICAL INSTITUTE,

For the manufacturing of the

CONCAVE CONVEX, CRYSTAL LENSES, LONDON SMOKED AND TINTED GLASS FOR WEAK OR INFLAMED EYES.

The Concave Convex Crystal Spectacles, made by the above institute are now a long time before the public, and the rapid and increased demand for them combined with the universal acknowledgment of their clearness in vision and ease to the eye, shows plainly that they are superior to any other glasses in the market.

The majority of Spectacles, (mostly imported) and no matter how fine the frames, contain but a poor and worthless article of glasses, generally cast or pressed; they are unable to be ground only, without any calculation respecting benefit to the eye, and therefore the great complaint of poor and weak sight. Thousands are using glasses now which tire and fatigue the eye, where the objects are dim after short usage, or require an intensely strong light and therefore destroying the sight, which, were they properly suited, would be preserved a life time.

The advantages claimed for the Concave Convex Crystal Glasses are the following:

The Lenses are ground of the best material, pure and hard, and made only for optical purposes, they are therefore not liable to get scratched or dim.

They confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision not found in any other glass.

They can be used equally well by day or candle light without tiring or fatiguing the eyes.

They are ground mathematically true in the concave convex mirror, according to the philosophy of nature, and shape of cornea of the eye, therefore assisting nature only instead of forcing it.

That the lenses are centered correct into the frames.

They can be used longer than any other glasses without changing to a higher power.

The frames are made strong and durable by experienced workmen and warranted to give satisfaction.

WM. A. CHAMBERLIN,

Dealer in Watches, Jewelry and Silver Ware, Towanda, Pa., has the sole Agency for these glasses in Bradford county. No Peddlers employed.
