LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 16, 1871. MR. EDITOR: Reform in any branch of the ublic service is certainly desirable. To elevate he standard of clorical ability, should be the object of all good men. & Competitive examinaon combined with probationary trial eacht to secure the most competant men for the positions open. All this is very good, and if the civil service commission do nothing more than secure the adoption of a system having these objects for its basis, their appointment will not be in vain. But there is such a thing as going too for in the matter of reform, and, if formed on Eighth-avenue, where they the commission should fall into the fatal error loaded with ball and cartridges. Nex fice, the system evolved by them will fail to pieces by its own weight and the good which they propose doing will be defeated. The principle involved in this magna proposition is as defective in theory as it would e injurious in practice. The government is ruled by party, that is, certain party principles are endorsed by the people ; certain party men are placed in power through this endorsement and the people demand of these officers a faith ful and honest adherance to those principles which have received their sanction. These elective officers in turn elect or appoint certain other officers to carry out in detail the legitinate work of the government, and to endors the policy of appointing men to office under them, who differ in political sentiment, who belong to the party defeated by the people, is to insult the popular will and to act in direct opposition to the expressed wish of the majori-
