The Democratic party stands before us to-day without its robes—naked—a hideous figure—the drudge of tyranny—the poor man's fee, and the would-be assassin of Liberty. It is not what it was in Jackson's time. I am sorry for it, and so are you, my best friend Colonel Forney, for we both loved it with a perfect love, as sincerely as Petrarch loved Laurs—as devotedly as Justice loves Truth. But the ancient days are gone and gone forever. They cannot return to either you or me. It is pardonable to be toarful, but riot to be disconsolate.
