Most of her life was passed in this county, and here about twenty-six years ago, she was married. The relation was blessed with the fullest measure of happiness. Kindness of the most genuine and substantial nature, earnest and unsassuming piety, charity which never faileth, nobility of character and fin intellectual powers, were features of her character that endeared her to friends and eighbors, and made her doubly dear to the loved ones who mourn her loss. Missed she will be by the poor, who have known the kindly bounty of her hand; by neighbors who always found in her the ready, true sympathy that beautifies the commonest acts of life, and by friends who knew the strong, constant earneatiness of a true and unfailing friendship. But she will be most missed, as most cherished, by him whom she always blessed with the abundant love and besseless devotion of the true wife, and by her children, she knew in the name of mother, all that is best firshat sacred word.
