JUSTIAE, YOU LOVE ME NOT!

"Helas! vous ne m'aimez p as."-PIRON.

I know, Justine, you speak me fair,

And yet it does not please me quite

For me you're something too polite-

A charming temper," say the men,

"To smooth a husband's lot":

I wish 't were ruffled now and then—

Justine, you love me not !

I know, Justine, you wear a smile

But who supposes all the while

Though azure skies are fair to see

In yours would promise more to me—

I know, Justine, you make my name

Such words, for all their kindly scope

Just so you would have praised the Pope-

And say-if any chance to blame -

As beaming as the sun;

It shines for only one?

A transient cloudy spot

Your enlegistic theme,

You hold me in estcem.

Delight me not a lot:

Justine, you love me not !

What friendly voices tell-

I know, Justine-for I have heard

You do not blush to; say the word.

"You like me passing well;"

And thus the tatal sound I hear

There's nothing nost to hope or fear-

MUTILATED NOTES IN THE TREAS- thing or somebody dicidedly unin-URY DEPARTMENT. Further on we come to the room devoted to the counting of the mutidevoted to the counting of the muti-lated money received by mail, for, in keep one's mind at work upon a dull addition to the receipts by express, an average of one hundred packages is received each day by mail. The money so received is in much worse condition than that which comes by express, for the reason that currency which is mutilated is redeemable only by the Treasurer, and usually comes in small amounts by mail while the various assistant treasurers, depositaries, and depositary banks are agents for the redemption of currency merely soiled and de faced, which is forwarded by them to the Treasurer by exprese. 4 The money received by mail comes in all sorts of damaged conditions, and has all imaginable kinds of horrible or
